JESUS NEW OS

CHRIST MIND OS

CHRISTIAN CASSARLY

JESUS NEW OS
CHRIST MIND OS

Copyright © 2026 Christian Cassarly
All rights reserved.
Scripture references in “Software for Your OS” are to the King James Version.

Contents

PART 1 · BUILDING THE JESUS NEW OS.....1

SYSTEM MAP.....1

INSTALLATION.....3

1. The Word.....3
2. Christian Cassarly and the Vision of Jesus New OS.....6
3. Why You Need an Operating System.....10
4. Discipline.....17

PART 2 · MAINTAINING AND EXPANDING THE JESUS NEW OS.....20

CORE PROCESSING

5. The Kernel.....21
6. CPU.....26
7. GPU.....30
8. RAM.....33

INTERFACE

9. The Terminal.....37
10. The Desktop.....41

CONNECTION AND PERFORMANCE

11. The Network.....43
12. Boost for Your OS.....53

MEDIA ENVIRONMENT

13. Media Content and Players.....56

HARDWARE AND MAINTENANCE

14. Hardware.....61
15. The Trash Bin.....70

SPIRITUAL OPERATION AND OUTPUT

16. The Kingdom at Hand.....74
17. Sowing Seeds in the Temple.....78
18. Closing the Gap.....81

PART 3 · THE CHRISTLESS.....84

VIRUS ALERT

THREAT DETECTION

19. The Viruses.....85
20. Christless.....88

CHRISTLESS SCAN
21. Christless A - The Cross....99
22. Christless B - The Power of Time....103
23. Christless C - A Rooted Life in Christ....108
24. Christless D - Christlessness Among the People....113
25. Christless E - Christ Within You....114
26. Christless F - The Decision Before Us....119
27. Christless G - The Cross....123
28. Christless H - Expansion....127
RECOVERY SEQUENCE
29. Reboot....130
30. Disk Cleaner....134
31. Updating Your Operating System....137

PART 4 · UPGRADING YOUR JESUS NEW OS....142 LEADERSHIP DOWNLOADS
DOWNLOAD 01. Love....144
DOWNLOAD 02. Power....148
DOWNLOAD 03. The Need....153
DOWNLOAD 04. The Gifts....156
DOWNLOAD 05. Unifying Force....158
DOWNLOAD 06. Words....161
DOWNLOAD 07. Vision....163
DOWNLOAD 08. Trust....165
DOWNLOAD 09. Peace....167
DOWNLOAD 10. Future....172
DOWNLOAD 11. Hunger....175
DOWNLOAD 12. Solutions....177
DOWNLOAD 13. Integrity....180
DOWNLOAD 14. Intelligence....184
DOWNLOAD 15. Tradition....188
FINAL CHAPTER. THANK YOU FOR READING....191

SOFTWARE FOR YOUR OS....193
250 KJV Scripture References for the Mind....193

EXPERIENCE JESUS NEW OS....200

RECEIVE THE FULL EXPERIENCE....202

PART 1

BUILDING THE JESUS NEW OS

SYSTEM MAP

VISION AND INSTALLATION

- What Are Your Goals?
- You Need an Operating System to Get There
- Structure and Hierarchy
- Systems Defined
- Indexing
- The Code
- There Is Not a Lot of Christian Tech. This Will Change.
- The Algorithm
- The OS Language
- Backup
- My Story
- Debugging

SYSTEM ARCHITECTURE

- The Kernel
- The Shell
- File Manager
- The Desktop

- Software
- Reset
- Bluetooth
- Hardware

MEDIA ENVIRONMENT

- Media Players
- Reserve All Entertainment for Christ
- Music
- Gaming
- Videos

PART 1

INSTALLATION

CHAPTER 1

The Word

The Word of God is the most important thing in our life, which means that our word should be the second most important thing in our life, and the words of our loved ones should be the third most important thing in our life. And when this is the truth, then we can live a good life. Knowing this wisdom will help us in the time when people are not speaking well about us—unbelievers, coworkers, students, even other people in the family.

There has to be a counterbalance there, and if there is not, then it's because we're not following God. If we are not following God, we end up loose in the tongue. That looseness brings us to a point where we can say what we want, and we can say what we feel, and we don't have to watch our mouth because we're more important than these divine laws.

It's one of pride's grand escapes, and the consequence of that is that, when others ultimately turn on us—and there will be a time in our life when that will happen—people start talking badly about us, negatively about us.

Sometimes, especially in the Christian community, if you're a Christian, people will lash out against you, which means that the tongue is lashing against you.

It's not just a regular tongue anymore, but it's lashing like a whip. And if you don't have your word correct, and if you're not in God's Word, which is correct, and you're not placing importance on your loved one's word, then you're not going to have the protection you need.

Consider every word you speak as a unit of protection or a unit of destruction in your life. And when someone is speaking these units of destruction, it's a symbol that they're not following God, they're not following Jesus, and they're not reading the Bible—or perhaps they don't know about the Bible.

Perhaps they haven't received the good news yet?

Whatever the case is, we have to understand this key, and it's crucial that you understand this very key: when people are talking badly about you, and you're also talking badly about yourself, that's when you fall. If you're habitually talking badly about yourself, talking badly about others, talking badly about your family, talking badly about the religion of God, then when other people start talking badly about you, everything will be in alignment for your destruction. But when you are speaking well, when you have good habits, when your tongue is guided by God, and when your discipline is within the Jesus New OS strategy here, you have this mindset.

What can happen is that your tongue can protect you against the tongues of others, and this is one of the reasons why, when we go to church, it's so powerful: we speak such high, lofty things about God, but also about ourselves and others who are in the church. And it's supposed to be that, in the church, when you see people in the church who have strength in God and who are alive in God, you speak well about them as well.

That's usually the standard of church. But this key will get you to the place of protection when people are lashing against you with their tongues, whipping their tongues, whipping against you.

Well, those words are not going to have as direct an impact because, number one, you're respecting God's Word, which means His Word is now protecting you. Number two, you're respecting your word; your word is now protecting you. And number three, you're respecting the word of your loved ones, the ones closest to you. So their words, nine times out of ten, are going to protect you, and so you have a foundation there where it's not going to move you as much. You might feel it, but not as much as you would without the discipline.

Jesus spoke creation into existence just as God did. When God had created it in Genesis, it was solidified. When Jesus created with His Word in John, it was here and solidified.

Those words that created Genesis in the beginning were the same type of creative force that was in the Gospels, and that's why you see these churches; that's why you see these people; that's why you see the Spirit of God manifesting over and over again in the name of Jesus Christ, because the Son of God was one with the Father, and this was also in Word. And we, too, can also be one in Word with the Son, Jesus.

I don't just write these books because I like to. I write these books for the discipline of my tongue, to follow the way of God, which is to use the word to uplift others in the name of Jesus Christ. God said, "Let there be light," and it was manifested.

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world. I am the way, the truth, and the life. I am the resurrection and the life."

One of the truest lights that manifested from what God said in Genesis was Jesus Christ, and if you look at Jesus Christ, He spoke the genesis of our life in heaven.

God said, "Let there be light." Jesus Christ said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. Through Me, you could enter into the kingdom of God." So it began with God's Word to create the world, and then His Son's Word to create your kingdom with Him in heaven. Where does that leave you in your word?

It leaves you in a place where your word should be in alignment with the light, speaking good things, speaking positivity, speaking love, speaking productivity, speaking innovation, speaking invention, speaking praise, speaking goodness—these are all things that will tie into our discipline and your Jesus New OS that you're donning.

CHAPTER 2

Christian Cassarly and the Vision of Jesus New OS

Jesus New OS is a book that is going to guide you to a better way of thinking, an operating system designed for your thinking and your spirit. And what we understand is that the entire world is being run by operating systems. And we also need to be run through the operating system of God and Christ and His new life for us. He's going to give us everything that we need if we equip our mind. And the mind is an operating system. So, when we are looking at Jesus Christ, He needs to be in the mind. And in the Bible, it says that we have a mind of Christ; we don a mind of Christ.

This is what St. Paul was saying. And in order to don a mind of Christ, we have to enter into the mind of Christ. And how do we do that? By entering into the Gospel. The words of the Gospel are entering into the mind of Christ. And entering into the words of His saints and His prophets and His holy ones and His chosen ones is entering into the body of Christ. So, we can enter into the body of Christ through them, and we can enter into the mind of Christ through His words in His Gospel. And we have to understand that He has more words than were in the Gospel.

And we can guess, then; we can say, "Oh, He most likely said 'eggs'; He most likely said 'chickens'; He most likely said 'beef.'" And so, we can also say, "Well, He most likely is saying things over my life. He's most likely continuing to speak now. He's most likely continuing to speak to His Father in His own language." And this most likely is important for us because we need to fill in the gaps. And so, this Jesus New OS that we're going to don in this book is something that's going to equip our mind to think within the mind of Christ.

And it's going to allow us to have a mind that is operating in a way that will make us more disciplined, make us more spiritual, make us more loving. And these are the gifts that we have because of God and

His grace. And there are people that are chosen to give you this knowledge. And it's not because you deserve it; it's because God's grace is there for you. And when you're done reading this book, you're going to be amazed at how much you're going to transform from the knowledge here. But it had nothing to do with me as an author. It had to do with God's grace on you.

So, this is the mindset for the book: we're going to use the mind and discipline it like an operating system so that we can fine-tune it for our spiritual discipline. This is important because every single day our mind is becoming more fine-tuned to operating systems. A lot of people are on the computer all day. And so, the mind is reflecting the way an operating system would function. And so, I think the book is pivotal, considering how long we're on Windows, how long we're on the MacBook, how long we're on the OS on the iPhone, how long we're on the Android operating system.

And so, to think in the sense of operating systems, I think, is clutch, and it's a great way for us to grow. And instead of giving this operating mentality to Facebook and WhatsApp and all of these different applications that are mostly just conglomerate mentality, we can actually focus and look at the mind that we have and offer it to God and receive the applications we need from the Bible and receive the applications we need from our church and from pastors and priests and people that are chosen by God to give you the Word and to give you the good news.

And if we can do that, if we can balance this—find the balance in using all this technology that's going to flood us, especially because of AI—we can protect the mind. We're going to get flooded with technology. And I think that this book is a great way for you to protect the mind and to say, "Yes, I accept these operating systems; they're part of this world and this life, but I also have a higher purpose, which is Jesus Christ." Right now, unfortunately, we don't have an operating system that is dedicated to Jesus. Right now, we don't have any computer or mobile phone that's dedicated to Jesus.

But we do have our mind that we can dedicate to Christ. We do have our mind that we can use, and when we fine-tune it, it can be something that I call Jesus New OS. So, enjoy this book and use it when you feel overwhelmed by technology. Use it as another resource, another tool in the shed to bring you to that place of sharpness, to continue to sharpen the edge of your disciplines and to be the best that you can within Christ. And the book is going to point us to the Gospel and how to apply our mind to live a more biblical life.

It's going to help us to apply our mind to understand what it is to live a biblical life. And it's also going to strengthen our mind overall because we have a logical, tangible, systematic way to approach religion, which is another viewpoint, and it's another vantage point from which to look at our religion. So, the more of these viewpoints or vantage points that we have, the more understanding we can have of God and our religion and our faith.

Christian Cassarly is the creator of Jesus New OS, an ambitious operating system project that blends Linux, Flutter, artificial intelligence, spatial computing concepts, cloud architecture, and immersive interface design into a unified software ecosystem. Rather than treating a computer or smartphone as a collection of disconnected applications, Jesus New OS envisions an environment where every feature is connected through a single intelligent experience. The operating system is built around two primary modes: Dream Mode and Awake Mode. Dream Mode transforms the screen into an interactive world where users move through visually rich environments instead of navigating endless pages of icons. Portals lead to communication, education, development, media, organization, and productivity tools, creating an experience that feels more like exploring a digital world than launching individual applications. Awake Mode provides a familiar desktop environment while preserving the intelligence and architecture operating beneath the surface.

At the heart of Jesus New OS is a modular Linux foundation. Rather than modifying the Linux kernel itself, the system is designed to orchestrate hardware through intelligent services and policies. Wireless networking, Bluetooth, cameras, microphones, storage, battery management, graphics, audio, sensors, notifications, and power management can all be coordinated through software layers that work together to create a seamless user experience. This modular architecture allows new capabilities to be added while maintaining flexibility for future hardware.

Artificial intelligence is intended to function as the operating system's central companion rather than as a separate application. The AI is envisioned to understand projects, organize notes, summarize conversations, assist with programming, generate documentation, answer questions, and provide contextual guidance across the entire operating system. Instead of repeatedly opening different tools, users interact with an intelligence that connects information across every part of the platform.

Jesus New OS also explores spatial computing through its Helix architecture. Rather than viewing files only as folders and lists, future concepts imagine information represented within immersive three-dimensional environments. Documents, storage, and knowledge can become places to explore, making navigation more intuitive and visually engaging while opening possibilities for mixed-reality devices.

Flutter serves as the primary development framework, allowing the interface to remain consistent across phones, tablets, desktops, and future devices. Cloud infrastructure supports synchronization, intelligent services, collaboration, and data management, while modular software components make it possible for developers to expand the platform without rebuilding its foundation. The long-term hardware vision is the PineCone phone, a Linux-powered mobile device designed to showcase the complete operating system experience. By combining hardware and software under one design philosophy, the project aims to deliver a cohesive platform where performance, interface, artificial intelligence, and user experience work together as one system.

Jesus New OS also introduces immersive visual concepts including animated environments, interactive desktops, intelligent assistants, educational spaces, developer workrooms, customizable modules, and future mixed-reality experiences. Rather than replacing traditional computing, these ideas seek to enhance it by making digital interaction feel more natural, organized, and engaging. For Christian Cassarly, Jesus New OS represents more than software—it is a long-term vision for the future of personal computing. By combining Linux, Flutter, AI, modular engineering, cloud technology, spatial computing, and immersive design into a unified ecosystem, the project explores how operating systems can become intelligent companions that adapt to users, simplify complex technology, and transform the way people experience their digital world.

CHAPTER 3

Why You Need an Operating System

So why do we need an operating system? Well, we use our systems to help the system function, and our system is the functioning mind. And when we look in the Bible, we see that Adam and Eve had fallen from the grace of God's garden into a place that was excommunicated from the garden. And the reason was that they had taken on the tree of knowledge called “good and evil.” And this is pretty much stating that they had taken on thought. So, they were now able to have thought processes, which are similar to the mind that created them.

The trees were in the garden. Obviously, God was eating from some of those fruits too, because who else was eating from them? Why else were those trees there? Why else were those trees growing? They weren't just growing there to be there. They were there for God and for Adam to partake of together. And when God came, He was most likely partaking in the fruit of the tree of knowledge, which was set out for Him, as well as the fruit of life, which was the fruit of eternal life—fruit that He could eat, but man could not.

And when we look at man, we constantly try to do things that are reserved for God, and when we try to do them, we end up suffering for it. So, the tree of knowledge of good and evil is thought. We took on thought, though we were more of a created species, like the other creations in this world. They don't think because they didn't take on that fruit that was in that garden. So, because we have thoughts, we are in a state of constant disarray. And if you look at the world and all the sin that's in the world, it all stems from our thoughts.

And we don't necessarily know if this was all in God's plan for us to be banished beforehand. It could be possible those trees were in the garden just to test us. But I don't ever see God creating beauty in creation that's alive just to test another being. Someone was eating from those fruits, and they weren't supposed to be for humans. So now we don these thoughts in this world, and ever since that time till now, we've been sinful because the thoughts that we took on from eating that fruit were not blessed by God. As a matter of fact, we still have those thoughts.

They are the same. They hold the same energy of that rebellion against God. And when we hold our thoughts to God and for God, we escape that area and move back into God's grace and God's light. So, the thought process was a horrible thing for Adam and Eve—this knowledge that they received. They started to think, and then immediately their thoughts went against them because this wasn't blessed by God. It was a rebellion against Him. How many thoughts have you had that would go against you? I know I've had so many. And this is one of the fights of man.

When Adam and Eve left the garden, the first thing that happened was that they had their first son, Cain. Their very first son, Cain, became a murderer. This was because of the thoughts that were propagating in their minds, and quite honestly, they couldn't handle it. They weren't prepared to don the thoughts that were saved for God. And so, because they were just a creation, likened to the animals, yet had thoughts as if they were a god, it was an extreme contradiction. Immediately, their first son grew up to be a murderer—not only a murderer, but a murderer of his own brother.

So, it was a constant state of repentance for us, because our mind is always having these thoughts. We also have the same thoughts that Adam and Eve, who had fallen because of that rebellion, had. And because we don't know how to handle them, we go into a spiral state. And that spiral state is a place where the enemy can besiege us and deceive us and beguile us and make us suffer more than God wants us to. So I bring us to the matter of thought because it's a foundation. And that's what we're going to talk about with this operating system that we set up in this book: how to set up the mind so that we can set it up to direct those thoughts towards God.

We do this instead of directing them away from God. So, we don't necessarily know what type of thoughts they ended up having. But those thoughts of good and evil, they weren't able to discern. So, even before they ate the fruit, when the serpent was talking to them, they did have a very simple thought structure to name the fruits and to expand and to communicate the way that God had communicated with them, with the small thought set that they had for the specific purpose that was for God. Well, those weren't necessarily the thoughts that they were having after they ate the fruit.

So, we have to look at our thoughts and say, “Are they rebellious thoughts? Are they thoughts that are going against us and against God?” This world is a deception, in the sense that a lot of the time we're going about our day-to-day lives and we don't even know we're doing it in rebellion against God. So, even when we shop at stores and work at places as we go about our day-to-day lives, we, in a sense, are working for a system that is against God. And you can test that out by going into a place and preaching the name of God or preaching the name of Jesus Christ.

Do it at your work for long enough and you'll get fired. Do it at your school long enough and you'll get into trouble. You'll end up getting attacked. And people don't see this, and they move about this society and say everything's okay, and it's not. The society has been structured to go against God and to go against the Lord. And society is now going against the church. I don't think there's another entity that's being attacked more than the church over all of these accusations of child molestation and child abuse. I know I was also personally falsely convicted of this, and because of that, I can personally tell you that the enemy uses children against the church. When I was falsely accused of child molestation at that time, I didn't know I was a builder of the church. I didn't know that I was going to build the church myself, which I successfully did with Jesus New OS. But at that time, I said, “Oh wow, I must have gotten attacked.”

It didn't come to pass that I understood, “Wow, God's going to be working with me to help me build a church of technology here, a major technology for God.” I didn't know that. And so, when I was attacked, no, I didn't understand it. It just came out of nowhere. But God understood, and so did the enemy, because the enemy attacked me because he was able to, I guess, see stuff that I just wasn't able to see. And it's like that in this world. A lot of the time we're not being attacked for what's currently going on. We're being attacked for things that will come about in the future.

David went through this a lot. King Saul was attacking David for no reason, while there was an evil spirit on Saul, and that evil spirit had insight to know that David was going to be king of Israel. A lot of the time we take these attacks so personally, but they're not about us. They're about our future and preventing us from reaching our best, preventing us from holding on to our best that God has planned for us or that God wants for us. So, going back to our thought processes, not only do we have these attacks against us as Christians and the church, but we also have a fallen nature called our thought processes that has continued to proliferate through the fruit that we've eaten of the knowledge of good and evil.

We were supposed to tend to the garden. We were supposed to be naming the animals and the stuff with our heart that was lit up by God. We were innocent creatures that were to be in the garden and to tend to the garden. But yet we were rebellious, and we took on this thought. And I'm sure that the serpent could have also deceived Adam and Eve into eating from the fruit of life, of eternal life. And why did he not? I always ask why for these things because it might possibly be that, if that were the case and we did eat, it would have caused his plan to falter because the enemy has us in fear of dying.

But then again, if we just ate the fruit of knowledge of good and evil, he could beguile us and deceive us through that knowledge. And as a matter of fact, all of that knowledge of the evil, which Adam and Eve were not supposed to don in their mind, now solidified the enemy into concrete forms of dragons and horned creatures and hells and dominions of darkness and demons. Adam and Eve didn't know any of this. These things only manifested after they had eaten the fruit. When we look at Jesus New OS, we look at something.

So, these are the harsh judgments that we have as humans. It all comes from that fallen nature, and when we look even at our judgments in the court systems, trust me when I tell you: even if we lived to be 1,000 years old, they would still give out life sentences to people, because the false judgments and judgments of non-forgiveness are endless. The fruit that we had eaten, luckily, was only the fruit of good and evil.

Imagine if we were beguiled to eat the other fruit of eternal life.

Well, then we'd be here forever. A lot of people would be judged by men with life sentences, to be judged forever here on earth: to imprisonment, to banishment, to excommunication, to all types of restricted circumstances. And the truth is that knowledge of eternity was something that definitely could have been eaten, but then again, it would have had false implications for the enemy because we would be less fearful. So, why do I say all this? I say all this because all of the thought processes that we have that have made this world such a horrible place with war and famine and mass murder and depression and suicide all come from these thoughts of the tree of good and evil.

The first thoughts that manifested from the fruit of rebellion were the fear of our very own nakedness, and that fear of nakedness gets displaced onto others. The shame of our nakedness gets displaced, as well as other shames that came from this fruit; they get displaced onto others. And this is where we get the violence of this world.

And so it's important for us to understand that when we're directing our thoughts to God, then we're in a place where we can have atonement.

Now the miracle is Jesus Christ and His resurrection, because that lost place within us that was filled in with this banishment and shame of that fruit that was eaten can now be replaced by Jesus Christ. So, as for the thoughts that we have in our fallen nature because of this fruit, beginning with Cain in his murderous nature, all the way on to those we see now on a day-to-day basis, all of these people have contributed to matriculating the thoughts of that tree. And when we see that tree, we see this world in its current state. But because of the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, now we don't just have to have these thoughts; we can also welcome in the Holy Spirit within us to give us new thoughts, deeper thoughts, holier thoughts, thoughts that will bring light to the world. And that is God's forgiveness to us.

God decided to forgive us through His Son Jesus, because that fruit was treacherous, and we were deceived by the serpent, and the serpent is always around us. We just don't see him, but when we start praising God and doing His work, you'll start hearing him. He'll start surfacing; you'll hear him through the window; you'll hear him through your doorway; you might hear him on the radio; you might see him on TV, if you praise God long enough and hard enough. That serpent was responsible for our thought processes, and because of our rebellion, he lays siege to our mind and gives us all types of ailments: depression, suicidal thoughts, mental illnesses, adulterous thoughts, which are even worse, jealousy, conceit, lying attitudes, gossip attitudes, all of these attitudes.

They're compiled of thoughts that have been patterned together by the enemy. So, what in the world do we need to do? Well, we need to start donning our own system for how to think. I call that system Jesus New OS.

And I released an operating system called Jesus New OS that's going to be available on mobile, so that you can use that as well, so you can start to protect yourself against these wiles of the enemy. See, the book and the operating system together will help you to shine against the enemy and to actually have dominion through Jesus Christ, because these thoughts are responsible not only for when God had burned a lot of the bridges for Israel and His people, but also for when He eventually flooded His people out, because these thoughts were flooding people out. And the thoughts and the patterns and the mindsets had proliferated so much that it was something God couldn't stomach anymore. And so He flooded the world out to purge it, and then He gave us Noah to preserve his genetic line and his lineage, so that ultimately he could pass on the seed to Abraham, from Abraham on to David, and on to Christ. The world today is in this type of state of negative thought processes, and I'm explaining to you where they're coming from. And as a Christian, it is good for us to use the Bible as our operating system and to have a way to read the Bible, a way to worship, a way to experience God. And so what I did in this book is I gave you each chapter as a component of an operating system, and we're going to liken it to how we worship God in a manner that will bring about His light into our life, so that we can do bigger and better things other than what society's design has for us, because society's design is going to cripple God's destiny for our life and the possibilities of our potential to help others in the name of Christ. But with this operating system, with this book called Jesus New OS, you're going to learn how an operating system is compiled.

What are the components? What are the pieces? We're going to discuss that, and then we're going to tie that into your new operating system that you're going to have for God, and that's going to be the operating system that you use: your mental modalities, your functionality, skills that you can have in your life to actually have something almost like an operating system that you can use to harness better applications of Scripture, better applications of your knowledge of Christ, better application of how you're moving out here in the world to develop works and to put out works and to be an example of Christ.

Not only that, when you're done with this book, I'm going to give you the operating system that I created. Its beta version is on the App Store right now, and I'll give that link at the end of the book, so you can get it on your iPhone. And if you love the book and you like my operating system, that will help supplement your journey.

You can order one of my phones; it's called the PineCone, and it's the first ever technological device dedicated completely to God. And we have great technologies on the PineCone: you can make phone calls, you can use WhatsApp, but it's a phone dedicated to God. I feel that our technology should be dedicated to God, and I also feel that our mind should be dedicated to God, and that's why I gave you the book and the actual operating system for your phone at the same time.

CHAPTER 4

Discipline

Discipline is the Jesus New OS, and discipline is actually the only thing we have control over in this world. We can't control our thoughts. We can't control our actions. We can't control what's outside of ourselves. Only if we have discipline can we have a degree of control over these things. For example, you can't control your circumstances, but you can leave certain environments and go to new ones. But in order to do that, you'd have to have discipline to be sober enough, clear-minded enough to do that. The same is true of your thoughts and actions.

You can't say, “Hey, think this now,” but you can discipline yourself through habits to have a mindset, and that will direct thoughts, and you will have more of those thoughts in the future. The same is true of feelings. The same is true of your experiences. Whatever you want in your life needs to come through discipline. And the main image of Christ is discipleship. He had disciples. He had extensions of Himself called the disciples. And so, that's why Jesus New OS is clutch. You have the book; you have the operating system.

Now you have the phone, all to gear you towards a greater discipline, so that you can talk with others and build together, and practice discipline and grow in your discipline together in Christ. And it's tough in this world because the world is promoting the world, and Christ is promoting Christ, and they're kind of like oil and vinegar in a lot of senses. But everything in this world has a unit of envy attached to it: jealousy, anger, pride. For example, even sand, which is not much at all, would start to cause anger around you if you were to gain enough sand.

“Why is there so much sand here?” Or maybe other people will be jealous because you use that sand—maybe you sell it—and you end up becoming rich. And over time, envy comes in. Even the most insignificant thing that we think of, which is a grain of sand, would create these energies if you had enough grains. So we need to have discipline to be able to be in a situation where we're not trying to overcome the world, but we're just trying to help Christ help us overcome the circumstances in the world, because right now the main objective for us is to grow in our discipline, and there's no stopping in that.

Even the direct disciples of Christ, at the end of their lives, still could have grown more in Christ. So it's something that can be an ongoing process. But I think what's important is that we grow in our discipline together, and that's important enough for me to dedicate a good portion of my life to getting this technology out to you guys. So the book is a great way to warm yourself up to mastering the operating system, and the operating system is a great way to warm yourself up to mastering the book. And one thing that I can tell you from my own experiences is that it doesn't matter how tough or unfair the situations are, or how intrusive, or how violating; it's not going to matter if your discipline is strong enough.

I'll be honest with you. I just got out of jail last night. I once again had another false arrest where one of the neighbors had said that I was harassing them. Meanwhile, they chased me back to my house for looking for my dog, and these occurrences are happening more and more around the world. I thank the Lord that I was able to get out overnight. I live in the state of Hawaii, so it was a lot more lenient. Maybe it wouldn't have been so lenient if I were in the main states, especially on the East Coast. But these things are happening a lot to Christian leaders, and it's going unnoticed, and it's just prevalent because of the veil of this world.

The more that we receive the world, the more of these types of energies we incur, but one thing that I can tell you is that it's now morning the next day, and I'm putting finishing touches on your operating system.

I'm completing the final chapters of your book that you're reading, and it didn't stop me. I missed a couple of beats. My dogs had kind of suffered. They had to stay in the house until I came back. But the main thing is, even going through these types of violations in our discipline, we get right back up on our feet. And so, in my personal experience, one of the main things that you can do is discipline yourself more and more strongly every day, even if it's just fifteen minutes a day on Jesus New OS. And eventually, before you know it, within a couple of years, there's nothing that's going to be able to stop you—except maybe momentarily.

But because of your discipline and all the habits that are attached to your discipline, you'll be able to bounce right back in. A lot of self-development advice says, “Well, it stems from habits,” but it's not the habits. They all branch off of your discipline and what discipline you choose, and we have to be grateful because our discipline is in Christ.

PART 2

MAINTAINING AND EXPANDING THE JESUS NEW OS

PART 2

CORE PROCESSING

CHAPTER 5

The Kernel

One of the most important parts of your operating system is the kernel. So the kernel is a part of the operating system that's not part of the hardware; it's software, but it's the software that talks directly to the hardware. So there are three levels of your operating system when you use one: the kernel, which is the deepest layer; the services, which connect to the kernel and connect to the desktop at the same time; and your desktop experience, which is called the shell. So these three parts are working in unison for you to have a desktop experience and for you to use your computer. But what few people know is that the kernel is directly responsible for the operating system more than you are.

It does all this stuff in the background to assist the hardware of the phone—the hardware that carries out tasks for your requests. So what does this all mean? It means that the kernel is the commander, and it's a deeper place than we know. And our operating system at Jesus New OS also has a kernel, and this kernel is a deeper place than what you know right now, and we have to find it, and we have to learn about it right now.

As a software developer, I made my operating system called Jesus New OS, and that's what this book is based on: to give you the greatest experience as a reader, taking on this operating system of your mind and your spiritual life. And then, after you're done with the book, you could actually go on to the Jesus New OS operating system to help you on your path. You can thank me later. When I was creating the OS, one of the main things I had to start learning was the kernel for Jesus New OS. We have it on something called the PineCone. We also are making it available for Google phones, Google Pixel specifically, because these are the kernels that allow the most authority for Jesus New OS.

They allow the user to do the most, so that's who we worked with. We also have the miniature form of Jesus New OS on the App Store. So, yeah, in that version, we don't have any access to the kernel at all, but you're able to see the beta version of the OS, which is still a massive operating system that we were able to fit into an OS. It was kind of as if we piggybacked an OS into an OS, kind of like you can use a Mac on Windows or Windows on a Mac, kind of like that. So I learned a lot about kernels, and one thing I could tell you is that you want to choose the kernel that gives you the most freedom.

So, what kernel is giving you the most freedom? Christ. Christ—Christ is the kernel of your OS. When you go deeper inside yourself, you say, "I want to discover the deepest part of myself." That deep part of yourself is Jesus Christ, and He'll be looking up at you as you go deeper and deeper, saying, "Hi, you finally found Me." And that's what happens when you find the kernel in a computer. When you find the kernel and you figure out where it is and how to use it, you're able to make an operating system, but without it, you can't do anything.

As a software developer interested in operating systems, I want you to have an operating system in your faith, because people with operating systems run this world—Bill Gates, Steve Jobs—and you, too, will have major authority in your life when you have your OS, and that's what we're giving you. But you're not going to be able to develop your system without your kernel. Your kernel is Christ. Why? Because He's going to give you the most freedom, and you can build your system for your life on Him. You say, "But Chris, what do you mean?" Christ is the kernel.

You said the kernel doesn't even connect to the hardware. You can consider the hardware God the Father. Jesus in the Bible said, "Without My Father I can do nothing," and that's just like the kernel: without the hardware, there is no kernel; without the Father, there is no Jesus. Once you gain access to the core, your kernel, you're able to develop services, you're able to do what you want to do on that computer, and the opportunities are endless. And when I figured this out, that's when I made Jesus New OS. And when you check it out, whether you buy the PineCone phone, get a Google Pixel that has it loaded up, or you get the OS version, whatever you do, you're going to be taken aback by how much I can do with this knowledge.

The kernel offers you services, and there are services for Bluetooth, services for your network, services for your keyboard, services for everything that you do. These include services for the hardware that connect to your software; they go back and forth. When you connect to Jesus, you get the services that are connected to the hardware, connected to God. You get the Spirit, you get the church, you get the Word, you get the wisdom, you get the protection, you get the light, you get the love, you get the strength, you get the favor, you get the cleansing. It's just like when you access the core of the computer: you get services to the keyboard, to the monitor, to the Wi-Fi connection, to the Bluetooth connection, to the CPU, to the storage hardware.

Here's a deeper aspect. As for the kernel, when you're looking inside yourself, I'm telling you to look inside yourself. Where is the kernel? The kernel is in the heart, because that's where Christ wants to manifest Himself, because the heart is where the love is. When you cry or love or kiss or hug, you always feel it in the heart, and that light manifests through your solar plexus all the way down to give you butterflies, and then it flows up to your mind as well and opens up your neurons. There's a neuronal opening that happens through the heart center.

The kernel also, in any operating system, opens up the pathways of the circuitry, and the kernel is like the colonel. So, when we look at Christ in our life, when we liken it to an operating system—and all of us are well equipped with operating systems by this time—we can liken Christ to the kernel. Even though you've been on your computer for so long, you might not know much about it, because you're on your news feed, you're on your Facebook, you're on your WhatsApp Messenger. And that's how we—a lot of people—walk through life: we're at our job, we're at our work, we're at the coffee shop. But where's the core? Where's the center?

Who's offering it all? It's you that's offering it all. As a matter of fact, He's the reason. Do you know how many people have been on their operating systems on Windows, going on this website, that website, talking about this person, that person? They have no idea what a kernel is, and they're talking about me, talking about you. Let me tell you what a kernel is in your life. It's Christ in your heart that's the core. Jesus New OS has a kernel that can be accessed called the Trinity Core, and you can talk to it for the first time ever.

Trinity Core is able to give you an opportunity to speak to your kernel, the very place of your hardware operations. How did I do this? Through faith in the Lord. He gives me technology to give out. He made me one of the best software developers in the world, if not the best software developer to ever exist. And you see that in my operating system and the technology that I offer you. And I didn't just offer you the operating system on your phone; I gave you Jesus New OS as a book to carry out for your own life. You don't worry about what people are saying on Facebook.

Don't worry about what people are saying on Instagram. Worry about where the kernel is. Worry about the operating system.

Do you want to know the only place that gives you access to your kernel? Jesus New OS with Trinity Core. There's literally a chat screen so that you talk to Trinity, and Trinity responds back to you and tells you the diagnostics of the phone. You ask Trinity, "How's the phone acting?" Trinity responds back, "It's been good for the past three days. Maybe you should watch this aspect of your storage, or maybe you should watch your app here, because it's taking up too much CPU. Maybe you can change this setting to get better functionality." And you could even tell Trinity, "Thank you for telling me all this."

She guides you; she guides you through toggles and screens and settings to optimize your phone. For the first time ever, I gave people the opportunity to enjoy themselves at the kernel core, where the true power is. And soon we're going to be making apps there called Trinity Apps and games there called Trinity Games. This is true software engineering, being assisted by God. For one of the games, because the kernel is able to tell the temperature of your phone, if the temperature gets higher, you go into different boards that have different temperatures, like deserts or fire. As the phone gets hotter, you encounter different opponents, like fire-breathing opponents, or find yourself in deserts or on fire-related boards. When the phone gets cooler, you can play with one of our mascots, Lux the Penguin, in his igloo mansion.

We have another technology app idea where you're able to communicate one conversation at a time, take one of the cores from your phone and make it a floater on your screen, and it follows you on every page you go to in the OS. And you can tap on that core to get extra power—literally the CPU expressed and able to be utilized by you. These are capabilities that are being opened by Christ, and when we find Christ in our kernel, in our core, in our heart, then He's going to give us ways to be more empowered. He's going to give us ways to be more equipped. He's going to give us more opportunities, more services.

Jesus said, "In My Father's house there are many rooms." We have a technology where we're actually able to receive information from the kernel core and map it out physically for you, so that you can enter into your phone for multiple reasons that are very beneficial: to place files and even entertain yourself with rooms inside of your phone. We're going to be using AR glasses for this technology coming in 2028–2029. This stuff is real, folks, because Christ is real. So just like Trinity is the core for my phone operating system and my technology, Christ, who is part of that Trinity, is the kernel for your life, and you have to dig deeper to find Him to gain extra access to the operating system.

CHAPTER 6

CPU

The CPU is the Bible. And when you look at CPU chips, they're responsible for the computational energy that's within the computer. And this is essentially our chip in the sense that, when we're looking at the way that the Bible is structured, it's structured to organize our life and to schedule our life in a way that can be compared to actual computational energy. The more biblical knowledge you have, the more computational output you're going to put into your life. So, when you're looking at people who are really flying, you say, "How in the world did this person do this? In high school, he was a completely different person."

How in the world is he doing this now? The reason, for most Christians, is that they had the computational power. They had the computational energy. They were able to get into a flow of learning the facts of the Bible, the stories of the Bible, the characters of the Bible. And when we have that knowledge, we become powerful. And just like a computer is more powerful the more chips it has, we become more powerful the more Word that we have. We become faster and faster. We're able to compute more information. We're able to get more things done. Now, one of the main tasks of the CPU within the operating system is to schedule tasks.

It schedules tasks. It has a scheduler that says, "I'm going to take care of this right now. I'm going to put out this computational output right now, but I have to do this, this, this, this, this, this, this in the future." So it schedules that through a scheduler. This is one of the main tools of the CPU. And when we look at the Bible, it's the same thing. It's just like a CPU scheduler. It's scheduling what we need to do on a daily, weekly, monthly, yearly, and lifelong basis. And that is what we need to understand as the most important thing.

You don't have an operating system without a CPU. There is none. You don't have a computer without a CPU. You don't have an operating system for your life without the Bible. There are people that are walking around life without an operating system. Could you imagine someone walking around life who doesn't have a computer? What type of life change would they have? What type of difference in life would they have? This is how it is spiritually. We walk around without a spiritual computer. Everyone in heaven has a device, so to speak. They have a Jesus New OS. They have the computational power.

They have CPU power. They know more and more Word. And here's the secret, and this is the truth: the more Word that you know, the more powerful you are. And I'm going to repeat that. The more Word that you know, the more powerful you are in this world. You want to know why? Because God loves it when we learn His knowledge. He loves it when we learn His knowledge. Why? Because He loves us. A lot of people think they're reading the Word for themselves, for their salvation. They're reading the Word because of God's love. They're reading the Word for a greater purpose.

They're reading the Word for God's plan. They're reading the Word for things they don't even know about. There will be people God brings into their life because they have the computational power to help them with God's plan. God's looking at us like computer chips out here in the world. And the more that we know the Word, the more God can use us for His operating system, for His plan, for His apparatus operandi. A lot of people think, “It's such a task to learn the Bible.” A lot of people think, “The Bible's so big. It's just such a thick book.”

I don't know. I'd rather go on Facebook. I'd rather go on Instagram. We don't have to do this. It's not part of the requirement. They go to college. It's not part of the syllabus. I'm just going to skip it. We don't need it. I don't have God breathing down my back. He's not knocking on my door. He's not waking me up early with a whistle, saying, “Hey, you need to do this right now.” He's not forcing us to read the Word. Why? Why would He not force us to read the Word? If I'm telling you it's the most important thing in this world, if it's God's world, why are people not reading the Bible?

The answer to this question is that people are called to read the Bible. Everyone's called to read the Bible. Jesus Christ died so that we can have His Word. He had to put blood on the Scriptures that were already there. The Scriptures are what killed Him. He had to put blood on the Scripture in order for the Scripture to expand across the world, if that makes sense to you. Jesus, being the Son of God, was crucified because of what the Jews believed was in the Scriptures. And Jesus died on that cross willingly, being the Scriptures Himself. It's kind of like if your child were to kill you, to murder you, almost.

He's walking around; He's living. He is the Scripture. He is the Scripture. But yet, the Scripture ended up crucifying Him.

So, the paradox there is real, and as a matter of fact, it's one of the most powerful paradoxes that exist on this earth, that will ever exist on this earth as long as humanity is here. That's why His words are red—blood red. They're blood red. And when we read the Scripture, we see what happened 20 years ago in our life. We say, "I understand more because I read the Bible." We see what happened 10 years ago, 5 years ago, 1 year ago. We see it all more clearly now. Why? Because we have God's knowledge, which gives us a greater CPU. It gives our mind a greater processing speed, because we're on God's speed.

And so we're able to process information better. If our mind were likened to a computer, it would be a faster computer, and that's why we liken it to a CPU. All of the answers to our problems, all the answers for our future, all of our answers for the past are in the Bible. And we see not just what was going on 50 years ago in our life, but why: "Oh wow, that's why that happened." We look 20 years back: "Oh wow." If I look at it through the lens of the Bible, the whole world changes. Your whole outlook changes. You get better responses. You get better thoughts.

You get better insights. You get better thought patterns. You get better outcomes. You get better decisions. You get literally everything you need on the level of the mind, only better, just by looking at it through the lens of the wisdom that's in the Bible. And do you know why the Bible is so good? Do you know how you can tell how God loved us because of the Bible? It's because, for most of the Bible, He chose kings to teach us: Jesus, the King of the Jews, the most respected in heaven; David, the King of Israel; Solomon, the King of Israel. Job, in his time, was likened to a king.

He had more resources than anyone. He was the richest of the rich. He was so rich that he and the enemy waged a bet. That's how rich he was. They were betting on Job because of how rich he was. Abraham was rich. Solomon was rich. David was rich. Jesus was miraculous. You say, "God could have chosen different types of people to teach me. He could have chosen professors. He could have chosen authors. He could have chosen engineers. He could have chosen anybody to teach me, but He decided to have kings, the most powerful kings in the world, teach me personally what I need to know."

And so when we look at 20 years back, 50 years back, 100 years back, 200 years back, 500 years back, 1,000 years back, 2,000 years back—now we're at Christ on the cross—3,000 years back, 4,000 years back, 5,000, 10,000 years back, 20,000 years back, 50,000 years back, 100,000 years back, God brought you right back to Genesis with Adam and Eve and told you exactly what they were eating. And if you don't think that Adam and Eve were also king and queen, think again. They were also the richest of the rich.

And so when you look that far back through one book, it's easy to look into the future for your life. This is why there's so much computational power for you in the Bible. And the more that you learn the Word, the more God can use you; you'll become computational power in His kingdom here on earth. So one thing that I'll leave you with is this: what would you think if you were to live 100, 200, 500 years, 1,000 years—let's say you were to live 10,000 years here on earth? Is what you're doing the best for your life in the future?

Would what you're doing now be the best for your life in that future of that person who's living that long? And if not, the reason I'm saying this is because of how far back we're going in the Bible. So I want you to start seeing into the future. And I want you to answer that question, because if not, you need more CPU. And the more CPU that you have, the more that you can actually live that far in the future. Jesus Christ is already 2,000 years old. Saint Paul is already 1,800 years old. Do you see what I'm trying to get at here?

His disciples are already 1,900 years old. And the more that we live for God, the more that we're going to have ourselves here in the future. So you have to answer that question: “If I were to live that long, is what I'm doing now in alignment with that best person living his best life?” And if not, grab your CPU power. Get some extra chips in your operating system. Boost your Jesus New OS.

CHAPTER 7

GPU

Position: the GPU is your graphics card, and the graphics in your spiritual life are your prayers. So the prayers that you hold are going to end up being the graphics of your spiritual life. Prayers are our call to God, and prayers are also God's call to us. The mind enters into a deeper state during prayer. God has designed us to have a mind that shifts its structure, shifts its quality, shifts its integrity. During prayer, we have a mind that can be used in this world, and we have a mind that can be used in God, and they have different qualities.

The mind, when in prayer, falls into a deep liquid state of peace, because the mind has been created for prayer. And in this society, we deceive ourselves into saying our mind has been created for college or our professions. I'm not saying that those things aren't important, but they're not going to add the graphics to your life that you're looking for. We've seen this over and over again. People dedicate their lives to college, they dedicate their lives to professions, and they still end up unhappy, whereas the powerful man is someone who feels solid, and that's because he's connecting to God. That's where the graphics are.

That's where the true fluid thoughts flow, and the flow is almost as fluid as our dreams. We look at our dreams: the greatest graphics of our mind are in our dreams, because what happens is we go deep enough into ourselves to tap into the power of our mind, which is graphical. Just like in an operating system, if you go deep enough into your operating system, you'll end up hitting hardware called the GPU chips or the GPU cores. And so the deeper we go into ourselves, the more graphical our minds get. I couldn't tell you how graphical my mind became when I started to dedicate it towards godly things like prayer, Christian meditations, stillness meditations, prayer visualizations, meditating on the Word, like David taught us to do in Psalms. When I started to do this, I went from zero to hero, and it was not an easy feat.

It came with extreme caveats. When I crossed the bridge from using the mind, particularly for this world, towards dedicating portions of it to God and my spirituality, life shifted for the good and for the bad. My life completely fell apart, but also my life started to elevate in ways that I couldn't imagine as a younger man. I'm now a man with over 25 books. God has established me solidly as a software developer, a product and art architect of my own phone for this operating system called Jesus New OS. He made me a professional chef because of my passion for that. He made me one of the best musicians in the world.

If you look on my Jesus New OS, I have a radio station with over 1,500 songs, all written by me or with assistance from my technologies. He made me an optimizer. He made me a financial educator. He made me a visionary. I wrote over 25 books, all while being constantly attacked by this world that was holding on to the men of the past that I used to be. How did this all happen? It happened through prayer, and prayer was the graphics that started to render the books, render the operating system, render the music, render the new professions. Then I started to get blessed.

Then they started to render vacation cabins for me, new cars, golden chains, golden rings. Everything that I literally wanted, I started to earn in my life. The GPU is through the hardware. We have to tap into our hardware. What's really there deep down inside of us? We have to go inside of ourselves to figure out what's there. And the deeper we go, the more graphics we get; the deeper we go, the more computational power we'll get; the deeper we go, the more that we'll be able to see and inherently optimize our operating system. So that's why the Bible says, “You are a vessel for the Holy Spirit.”

We're a temple. We have stuff in us that's powerful, and so this is why I call you to this chapter called GPU. We don't know how to control our dreams personally.

I can't even draw a circle without it looking like an egg, but when I sleep and I have these dreams, I have the most visionary, most epic dreams, and when I remember some of them, I'm taken aback. I wake up in the morning and I come up with book ideas; I come up with technological ideas. I come up with musical ideas that are just beyond what I can imagine when I'm awake. How do I tap into that? We tap into that through prayer. We can get just as deep as our dreams when we're praying to God, because God's deeper than our dreams.

When we look at what we're making in our dreams, that GPU power, where is it coming from? It's God's power anyway. It's God's energy anyway, manifesting without our ego. In a lot of the dreams I have, I'm not even myself; I'm overlooking the environment. I don't have a body; I'm just an observing witness, observing people, observing circumstances. Then other times I will become a body, or sometimes I even become another body to experience myself in a body outside of myself, all to create new graphics, all to create new circumstances and visions that are going to inspire my mind. My mind is inspiring itself through dreams, and when I wake up, I remember this stuff.

The only thing that I could liken to that is when God is listening to our prayers. Do you have the GPU power to manifest what you want in your life? If not, I'm telling you the answer right now. You have to go within your operating system. You have to figure out what your hardware has and start tapping into it. Certain people only have a certain amount of GPU; certain people only have a certain amount of CPU. Some people have more than others, so to speak, metaphorically speaking. But when we go to God, it's kind of like tapping into a cloud server.

When we go to God on His cloud, we can tap into His CPU; we can tap into His GPU. Our mind becomes more graphical; we become more intelligent. If you do not know how to pray, there is a church portal within Jesus New OS. Even if you go onto the beta version on OS, you can download the app right now, and the church portal is free. Within it are vast numbers of prayers. You can listen to them and emulate them and learn how to pray.

One thing that Jesus came for was to teach people, and in one circumstance in the Bible, He taught His disciples how to pray: “Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for the kingdom, the power, and glory are Yours now and forever. Amen.”

CHAPTER 8

RAM

We're looking at RAM in our computer, in our chip. It consists of chips dedicated to managing memory. So the chips that are in our computer are interconnected, and the RAM manages memory, and it's able to store information so that the computer can schedule its function.

Sometimes the computer can't run the function at the moment, so it depends on RAM to help with that functionality.

RAM helps all aspects of the computer and the operating system, and it gives the computer and the operating system an incredible boost of power. And the more RAM that we have, the more freely the CPU can express itself, the more freely the GPU can express itself. As a matter of fact, with more RAM, the entire operating system and hardware can work together and express themselves more freely and fluidly. And for our Jesus New OS that we're creating for ourselves in our life, RAM can be expressed as our words, and I'll tell you why: our words will dictate the greatness that we become. The RAM of the computer dictates how well that operating system can run.

As a matter of fact, every single piece of hardware is dependent on the RAM and how much is there. And just in the same way, even though you don't understand that or see that, your entire life is dependent on the quality of your words and what you're speaking about. The greater your words, the greater memories you will have.

For example, you go to a burger shop with your family, and everyone is saying the best things because they are so happy with the burgers and the service. They are having such a great experience that everyone just starts to enjoy it and compliment everyone, and just starts to talk about gratitude and love. And that energy starts to grow through the vibration of the words, to the point where you guys start talking about how much you love each other and love God. And then, all of a sudden, you realize that the entire dimension of your experience has changed because of this collective vibration that you created with your family.

Let's take another family, for example, one that is ungrateful. They're at Disney World, but they're complaining about everything: the prices, the lines, the people behind them, the people in front of them, how bad they feel, how tired they are. Everything that could go wrong, they speak about as if it did go wrong.

I would wholeheartedly say that the family at the burger shop had a better experience with their time and a better memory that the mind stored than the people at Disney World, who really kept their words at a very low vibration. When they look back on that experience, even though the cotton candy was there, even though Mickey Mouse was dancing, looking to sign your autograph, even though the whole Disney kingdom was at their fingertips, it's not going to be a pleasurable memory. Why? Because of the words: they were arguing, they were bickering, they were gossiping, they were complaining.

What does this mean? It means that it's our words that are going to dictate the quality of our memories, and if we have better memories, we're going to increase the well-being of our mind; we're going to increase the well-being of our operating system.

So this is what I mean when I say it helps the entire system. There are people with very low RAM, and so everything in their system gets stuck. They can't do high-vibrational things; they can't put together a discipline; they're not going to be able to complete large tasks or projects. Their largest tasks are to stay within the low vibration of their words and to operate at the low RAM that they have, whereas people who have higher-vibrational words are incorporating knowledge, like I'm giving you through my technologies and books, and are incorporating the Bible into their life, which is where all of my life's work has pointed. They're going to eventually start increasing their RAM higher and higher. It's going to be as if they're taking off the back of their laptop and installing the highest RAM chips that are available.

So now that you know that words are going to anchor into your memory, you can start to set your own experience and to start to set your operating system. How do you want to operate? What do you want to accomplish? What do you want to achieve? Every word you speak is going to anchor into your memory. Even if you want to remember where something is—if you lose your keys a lot—you could simply just say, "My keys are on the table right now," and, guaranteed, you'll remember where they are.

Every word you speak gets stored as a memory.

There's not one word that you've said that your mind is likely going to forget, and this goes for other people too. People remember what you say, and they might smile in your face if you say low-vibrational things, or pretend as if that's cool. But on a level of survival, and on the level of true control that comes stock with our body and mind, well, they're going to remember where you're at. After you read this book, you're going to be at a higher place, because you're going to understand how powerful you are and, through this chapter, how powerful your words are.

Now I will take it one step further to say that the integrity of our words is tied to the efficiency with which we can remember information.

This is most likely why very smart people, very intelligent people, are usually very well-spoken, because what the mind does is it incorporates a discipline, it incorporates a system, and then it goes about using its modalities and its faculties to achieve what that system is designed to achieve. So if I'm going to achieve—if my goal is to achieve, let's say, $5 million—well, my whole system has to change in order to achieve it. And so my dialect will change, my wording will change, and how I select what I say will ultimately change, so I can receive my goals and achieve the desired outcome.

Normally, you will not see a person going after high success who is low on RAM. You have to be super high on RAM and increase those chips so that you can have an operating system that's efficient enough to achieve what you want to experience in length. So the good thing is our words are connected to the words of others who are around us, and I personally believe when we read the Bible we have God around us. So when we're in the Bible or we're in the biblical community, whether it's a church or whether it's a platform, then our words will start to reflect the words of those people in that community or on that platform.

When I first started to become a developer, I decided to become a system engineer to develop the operating system called Jesus New for my phone, called the PineCone. I originally made it on OS as a piggyback operating system that was able to load on OS.

That's my beta version that I have so people can test it, and it's available for everyone right now. And what I realized is that when I looked at other software that was available on OS on the App Store, there were no platforms for the church; there were no platforms for Christianity. They were basic apps that offered basic services, and because of the power of the word, they were making enormous amounts of money. YouVersion was literally just an e-reader with a Bible. It ended up making over a billion dollars. There were Hallow and Glorify, which were literally just pumping out videos with a couple of celebrities who were using them. They became billionaire companies, so I realized that it was the other way around. It needed to go the other way around.

We needed to invest more in building a platform for people and putting more time and energy and resources into that, so that we could create an actual platform that would be likened to an OS—a Mac OS, a Windows, an Android—instead of just settling for the immediate gratification of immediate content: e-readers, video players, audio players, etc. And so I took it upon myself to complete the enormous task of making the first-ever platform, which was turned into the operating system that's operating on the PineCone today. So you can log on to Jesus New OS, whether you buy the phone or get it on OS or get it on Google Pixel.

It will also be available for Google, specifically on the Pixel. You understand that your word—your RAM—is increasing because you're on an actual platform, just as if you're in church. And one of the greatest ways that you can boost your RAM is to be on a platform of God. And unfortunately, in today's world, there really wasn't one, so I created one. And this book is to supplement that, so you can have an even deeper, more satisfying experience to transform in the Lord your God.

PART 2

INTERFACE

CHAPTER 9

The Terminal

The terminal is where the code goes. So the user interface is your nice, smooth screen with the fancy borders and nice fonts and text buttons, and it makes everything easy. But if you really want to gain more control over the computer and to do things much more efficiently, you would use the terminal. In the terminal, you would put in command lines, and these command lines are specifically for the system's optimization, and so they have to be very, very precise and correct. Even one misspelling or one pronunciation error can affect whether you carry out a command or not.

The difference between it coming back as a complete error and you carrying out a very important task can be literally just a dash. Even a letter that has not been capitalized when it's supposed to be capitalized will cause an error in your entire command for that specific task that you're trying to carry out in the terminal. The same applies to the terminal in the Jesus New OS that you're donning for your life.

It is activated through the words of Christ. So the words of Christ, if you change them even just a little bit, will cause an error in the command of your operating system. And what I've noticed is a lot of people go about using the words of Christ, and they either change the words or distort the words or dilute the words, but we need the Word of Christ in its pure form in order to carry out command lines in the terminal.

I'm not saying that you can't use that command line in a different part of the computer. You can put that command line in your web browser, and stuff will come up, and you'll get information about that command line. You can use the Word of Christ in a different fashion than how it was spoken and get more information about Christ in that word. But if you want to execute a command and have it come back as a system operation, you have to use that command in the terminal verbatim. So whatever Jesus says, we are to preserve His word for application, likened to the exact way that something needs to be typed out in the terminal in order to get the application.

And even though a lot of people just don't understand these command lines because they seem too complicated, we as disciples need to understand His words. When He was speaking them, He knew this, and He spoke in parables. And for us, well, we don't use the terminal; we use the UI. We use the desktop.

So this is kind of what He was doing in His ministry. He was taking terminal code, the actual law of God and knowledge of God from man, and simplifying it into the parables and into a simple way that we could understand, just as the terminal does not need to be used directly but can be used through the user interface on your desktop. But if we want to access that terminal and gain more computational power and more leverage over our system, we need to make sure that every period is where it's supposed to be, every T is where it's supposed to be, which means there's no changing His Word.

Now, what we can do is we can use one command in conjunction with another, which would actually create better system operation. If you use one powerful command line and then use another command line in conjunction with that, that's great. That will actually bring you to a more proficient system, but the actual lines should not be changed at all.

And when we meditate on Jesus, a lot of times we forget that fact, and we dilute His word. We dilute His sayings. We dilute His message. We want to stick to the Scripture and preserve those words written in red, as if they were command lines in our terminal for our OS system. So when we speak them just as He spoke, we gain access to our life—our operating system.

One of the technologies in Jesus New OS that's available on PineCone and OS is something called fusion technology, where we are able, through our technology, to offer people an opportunity to speak to the biblical Christ. And what we do is we preserve His Word and use His Word to respond to the user specifically, and this could only be done through high-grade AI technology. It will improve as AI advances into the quantum age, and so Jesus New OS will continue to get more advanced with this ability for you to speak to Jesus, but biblically.

We also have an opportunity for you to speak to the Bible, where the Word is preserved, not diluted, not dumbed down, but preserved and orchestrated to speak to you personally. Another one we have is the Old Testament God, where you can speak to the Old Testament God. And the reason I made this chapter is because it's so easy to lower our standards on a biblical level, especially if we're priests or pastors, or, most importantly, in technology right now. And right now we see AI where you can speak to Jesus or you can speak to these biblical characters, but they're not preserving the exact words of the Bible, and this is why I've dedicated this chapter to the terminal.

The terminal allows us to incorporate the knowledge properly in the context of an operating system, so that we can understand how the word should be used verbatim, down to the sentence and even the capitalization of the word, or it will not be effective in the terminal.

So the terminal for Jesus New OS is His word, but this also can be likened to all of the words of the Gospel. We are to preserve the words of the Gospel. We are to preserve the words of the Old Testament, the entire Scripture, but the entire Scripture hangs on Jesus's name, and we knew that as time culminated in the coming of Christ.

We didn't know until He arrived that the entire Scriptures were centered around Him. It was only when He came that we realized that, and here at Jesus New OS, we realized that. And for you in your personal Jesus New OS operating system for your personal life, your mental OS, it should be the same way, and that's how we preserve the word and make it more effective. You see so many different biblical translations, and it dilutes the word. We even found in the NIV or NJV, among a lot of these new translations, that they're actually taking out the words of Christ.

Jesus says there are only certain areas of spiritual discipline that can be achieved through fasting and praying. Well, they took out the fasting part, and fasting was one of the most important parts of the spiritual walk.

At Jesus New OS, your operating system personally for you, one of your greatest spiritual disciplines and elevations is to preserve His Word, allowing it to operate within your mind and your life as if it were operating in a terminal.

CHAPTER 10

The Desktop

So the desktop is something that we all see. The screen is available not only for you to see but also for you to share with others. It can be cast; it can be shared through different devices, and it's the part of this screen that is public for viewing. People behind you can see it. People around you can see it. It's the first thing that you see, and it usually reflects, especially if your OS is personalized, a little bit about who you are. And it gives a hint about what's behind the OS, what's actually in the OS. And the desktop for us and our operating system is our appearance, the way that we carry ourselves. This is huge for our Jesus New OS.

The way that we carry ourselves, the way that we appear to others, the way that we sound, our overall etiquette, our overall standard in public—all of this is our desktop for our OS. It's what is there and is out in the open. The files may be hidden in the file manager. The RAM and the ROM and the CPU and the GPU may be hidden in the hardware. You have a kernel which is deeper down that no one can see, and usually the software is organized in a way that it does not come up in a view available for the public to see. Usually, you'd have to manage your OS to bring that up. But the desktop is much different. It's there, it's exposed, and usually you see it every day. So how do you see yourself every day?

What are you wearing? What is your overall appearance? What is your overall etiquette? As Christians, we are called to have a high standard of etiquette and to be clean. As a matter of fact, one of Jesus's main teachings for His disciples was to wash each other's feet, because at that time, having clean feet was a symbol of wealth. A lot of people couldn't afford Nike-type sneakers. They didn't have those back then. They didn't have a lot of footwear that lasted a long time, and the shoes that were available were usually preserved for the wealthy.

So if your feet were clean, it represented that you were of a certain stature of wealth, and this is why Mary Magdalene had cleaned His feet with her hair and poured oil on His feet, and this is why He chose to clean the feet of all His disciples. So one thing that He said when He did that was, “I want all of you to be clean, the whole body.”

Another time He said the outside of the cup is clean, but the inside of the cup is dirty. So we learned how to clean the inside, but now, believe it or not, there are people for whom the outside of the cup is dirty as well.

What does this mean? It means He doesn't just want the inside clean; He wants the outside clean.

He wants the outside clean and the inside clean. He wants you clean from your head down to your feet. And when we present ourselves like this, it makes us feel better.

It gives us more organization. It gives us a clearer head. It makes us feel better about ourselves. And people will look at us differently. And a lot of the time when we see people who are preaching the Word of God, especially in church, they have a high standard of etiquette.

They present themselves very well. Especially in the Catholic Church, they wear decadent robes that are very, very beautiful, and some have golden threads and silver threads and all of this beautiful velvet threading on them, and it's to represent etiquette at their level and their level of class. And when we are out in the world as Christians, we want to have a very, very good, clean outward appearance.

So, the reason that we do this is because it's a symbol of care for ourselves, but it also helps others.

There are things called mirror neurons in the mind, and what mirror neurons do is they copy everything that they see. If people see other people doing things for long enough, those mirror neurons will assimilate that into their life, and they'll start doing it. They'll start saying it. They'll start wearing it. They'll start doing that profession, and you see this especially with music. People who listen to a certain amount of music—well, if they're musicians, usually they sound like the musicians that they have listened to or have enjoyed.

Jesus had called us sheep in this matter: we are to follow. So if we are to follow, we might as well follow the people of higher etiquette, the people preaching the Word of God, and the people who are giving out the knowledge from God that people need.

PART 2

CONNECTION AND PERFORMANCE

CHAPTER 11

The Network

All right, dear Israel. Today we're going to talk about the Holy Spirit. And why is the Holy Spirit here? The Holy Spirit is here because man does not have honor, and so the Holy Spirit brings honor to the world, and it was released through the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. The paradox here, which I really need you to understand for your operating system to run smoothly, is that when Jesus had died on the cross, this was the declaration of man screaming to God, “We have no honor.” And when He had died, the paradox was that God already had everything in His plan.

He foresaw everything like a great chess player, and so even though they had made this huge declaration, God had already created seals to be released upon His death, and for the Holy Spirit to be released into the world today. I would liken the Holy Spirit to your network, which is on your operating system. That sounds complicated.

So the network is where everything is connected in your operating system. The Holy Spirit has everything connected perfectly, everything orchestrated and integrated for your life. And without the Holy Spirit, which is the gift to you for your belief in Jesus Christ, you have no network of heavenly orchestration, of godly orchestration. And even though it seems that you are orchestrated because of the energies of the world, ultimately it is not even close to the functionality that you'd have without the Holy Spirit.

Just like the operating system will run without your network—it will run without Wi-Fi, it'll run without Ethernet—you are far less capable and connected and integrated to do what you need to do. And what people don't understand is, "Well, my life is running and I'm not hurt, and so, because I'm safe, and because everything's good, it's good the way it is. I don't need Jesus, I don't need the Holy Spirit, I don't need God the Father." But what they don't understand is this truth: the Holy Spirit is like the network of your operating system. There is so much more interconnectivity of your life, your mind, your soul, your spirit.

It all becomes aligned because of the network of Jesus Christ through the Holy Spirit. This is the paradox. God was screamed to by man. There was a declaration: we live without honor. But yet God, in His super incredible, supernatural, almighty intelligence, already had figured out the game before it began. We have to also know this is God's song we're talking about. He has it all mapped out. He's God. So when Christ had died, there was already a seal, carefully prepared, that people didn't understand, and that seal, when it broke, released the Holy Spirit into the world, and people didn't understand it.

The disciples started speaking in tongues; miraculous things started going on across the world. People were waking up from the dead because of the power of this Spirit, and it was just like a beast being released from the cage, or a kid being allowed to play outside after being cooped up all day. It was the first release of the Spirit into the world, and so it was major. It was major enough for God's plan to come to fruition for the Holy Spirit in its full vigor, because it was just released to carry Christ's words and spread them across the world, because that's how lit the Spirit was.

This Spirit was waiting. This same Spirit is within us as believers, and it can help us. So when you're looking at your Jesus New OS, you're looking at your connectivity to the supernatural God that we have.

Jesus said, “I am the open door, I am the door to God,” and when that door opens, the Holy Spirit is released. So people who are living without the Holy Spirit don't have that network. What is a Windows computer, even if it's decked out, when it's offline? So we need the Holy Spirit and its network to get around and to operate and to live joyfully. And in a world without honor, because of this declaration and because of this dishonor, I actually created the Jesus New operating system for my own personal phone, so that you have a mobile phone with honor.

One of the things I understand in this, in such a lowly state of men in their dishonor, is that they've given no honor to the dead. On their computers, we have posts on these social media sites that are degrading towards others, designed to be there even after these people are gone. So I took it upon myself to make something called Honor URL, and it's going to be available on Jesus New OS in the beginning of 2027. You're able to create a URL for one of your loved ones who has passed, and my hope is that eventually it will be the first-ever online cemetery that would be likened to a cemetery at a Catholic church, but online for the world to have, because we have to understand we have to rise above the dishonor.

As soon as that dishonor had come to fruition through the cross, the Holy Spirit was released, and we were connected. It was the ultimate Wi-Fi connection to ever exist. We were able to communicate with God. We were able to receive intercession from God. We're able to do things that we just cannot do without the assistance of God and the Holy Spirit's arms holding our hand and holding God's hand in heaven at the same time, connecting us.

So what's happening when your network drives are working properly on any operating system? You get updates, you get interconnectivity, you can download things, you're connected to servers that are online, you can connect to clouds. You can pretty much consider the operating system alive at that point, breathing because of the network integration. But some people, like children, don't understand networks. In the same way, there are people who are perishing because they don't have their network connection to the Holy Spirit. The child will play on the computer; it'll play the games as if nothing is different. It doesn't care; it has the device and it's happy.

It takes intellect and maturity to understand that there's a Wi-Fi connection there, and to optimize it, in the same way it takes our spiritual maturity to give our life to Christ, so that we can claim our network connection for our Jesus New OS. I'll be honest: if you go on the actual Jesus New OS, get the phone or download it on your OS, and do it without internet, I've designed it so that most of it will not work, because I wanted to keep the OS light. I wanted to keep it orchestrated as a network for anyone around the world.

Without Wi-Fi, it would have just been too heavy. Without the network, it would have been just too heavy. And on top of that, there are certain technologies on the app that depend on the API. This is much different from OSes that we know of today. They don't really need a network. Jesus New OS needs to be connected for a lot of this stuff to work.

A lot of the games are modulated. A lot of the APIs are connected, providing the connection between your conversations with God and Jesus. And yes, you can converse with God and Jesus in the pure way, because all of the words that are responded back to you are from the Bible and are carefully curated and selected by high-level models of AI that can bring together a version of a conversational response for you, but it's biblical. And I pray to this day that God gets involved in the background within that network through the Holy Spirit to converse with you more and more. And my personal design for the technology that orchestrates the Bible to talk back to you, whether it's the Gospel, so Christ can talk to you, or God from the Old Testament, was that these APIs and technologies would continue to grow, so the conversations would end up becoming more fluid. And I use this example because without that Wi-Fi, there's no conversation with God.

In the same way, without your faith in Jesus Christ, you cannot converse with God. You're going to pray, but He's not going to hear you too well. Christ is the open door for the Holy Spirit to manifest, and through our faith we have an enormous connection. We can speak in tongues; some of us can even raise the dead. We can heal people through touch. We can raise entire churches with our voice and our word. We can give books like this. We can create entire operating systems. We can make as much money as we want dedicated to the church, because the Holy Spirit is connected to God.

They likened the Holy Spirit to a fire when the Holy Spirit was unleashed like a beast in a cage. After Christ went up on the cross, Christ returned to heaven, and at the same time the Holy Spirit from heaven was released onto earth. It was an interchange, and the disciples likened the Holy Spirit to fire itself because of the unfurling, the unleashing of the Holy Spirit that was waiting like a lion to be released, hoping that the plan was going to unfold. They started to speak in tongues; they couldn't even understand themselves, because the Holy Spirit is non-local.

It's able to connect anywhere, just like your Wi-Fi. This is the power that we need in our operating system. Our operating system is dead without a network.

Jesus New OS, if I were to give it to you on the OS beta model or to give you my new phone called the PineCone, would not be an operating system that you'd want to use without the network connection. And we need to understand how many gifts are in the Holy Spirit. And we can go on, we can log into Jesus New OS, or we can develop the actual Jesus New OS, the one that's even more important than my technology, which would be your mind, your spirit, your soul aligned, intact, integrated through the network of God, through His plan, through Jesus, the Holy Spirit, and the Father.

This is how we find the gifts: opening the Bible, following Jesus New OS, looking at my other books, reading the 66 books, knowing this stuff, choosing a priest at church, choosing someone online that you trust to learn about God from, and keeping going. Never stop; the Holy Spirit never stops. What if your Wi-Fi chose to stop? You don't ever stop. You want to be integrated. And as you're with the Holy Spirit more, remember that it was likened to fire, even by Jesus Himself, who said you should not only be born by flesh but by the Spirit. These disciples were being reborn; they were saying things they didn't understand. They sounded like babies because they were being reborn in the Spirit, because the Holy Spirit was on fire.

It was just unleashed, and the more that we follow the Holy Spirit and open ourselves to it, the more we become like it. If the Holy Spirit is likened to a fire, you can liken us, who believe in Jesus, who truly believe in Jesus, to a fire. And remember what I said to you. This world is without honor; it's devoid of it. You'll never find an online place where you can URL your loved ones; you're only going to find your news feed on Facebook and Instagram.

This stuff comes through people running in spirit, and luckily the Holy Spirit loves us, Jesus loves us. And when the disciples were being reborn in spirit, they were being reborn for a purpose: to distribute the Word of God throughout the world. It was as if God were a person who had a hungry beast and was waiting for someone to come into their home to release it, to devour them. That's how God had the Holy Spirit waiting to release it, so it could spread the Gospel across the holy world. The Holy Spirit was most hungry, and this is the question: How many gifts can we receive in the Holy Spirit connected to God?

There are as many gifts available as there are software programs and integrations that an operating system like Windows or Mac OS can download online through Wi-Fi in your network.

So the next thing on your operating system that you need to worry about operating at the highest level, which would be one of your highest tasks, is your hard drive. Your hard drive in Jesus New OS is your mind. The mind is a storage composite of your thoughts and feelings that are composed of energies, images, and sounds.

Pain and pleasure are the energies. What you see are the images, and what you hear are the sounds. They get stored in the mind, and so what's stored in your mind is going to run your operating system.

It's going to be what the CPU works for, what the GPU works for, what the RAM works for. All of the hardware, even the motherboard, is working for what is on your hard drive. Even your operating system is stored on the hard drive. It is not stored on your hardware. The hard drive is the one piece of hardware that you actually have access to through the file manager, and the file manager can be likened to who you perceive yourself to be, who is the one managing the mind, who is the one having the thoughts. And so for Jesus New OS, the hard drive is huge. The file manager, who you are, who you perceive yourself to be, is huge. And in Jesus New OS, unlike other operating systems, Jesus helps us manage the files. Jesus helps us manage the software.

He helps us make sure that the hard drive is spacious enough to operate the system functionally. The hard drive is something that we protect and conserve for the sake of the system. And how do we protect that? We protect our experiences, our conversations, and our senses.

These are likened to the software that is being installed onto the hard drive. The conversations that you have, you're going to remember. The experiences that you have are going to be remembered as these thoughts, feelings, and sounds, these energies. And what you speak to others, you're going to remember as well. And that's going to be installed onto the hard drive as well. And as this goes on, your environment, the people you choose to be around, the people who choose to converse with you—all of this is what you're allowing to come into the hard drive and to be installed.

This is how your operating system is going to function, but with Jesus, in Jesus New OS, when we call to Him to help the file manager, we call Him to help us. Well, guess what? He's going to clean that hard drive out. He's going to start installing new software. He's going to start bringing you to church, where you're going to have better conversations, better experiences. He's going to bring you to better places. He's going to clear you out so that your senses can have better installations, so you can have better inputs, you can have better software that's on the hard drive. And that way, when you're in the file manager, choosing what program you're going to use, choosing what file, what application, well, guess what? There's going to be better stuff there.

There are going to be better files and applications. There's going to be better software for you to choose, just like when you go to download Jesus New OS in real life, the actual OS, which is on OS right now in beta form, or when you want to purchase the PineCone. It's like what I'm saying: you're going to have better options to choose from; you're going to have a better overall operating system experience. Only, in real life, the operating system was created to supplement this book. The book is a supplement to the operating system, because in my personal belief, I feel that the best thing that you can have is a person who is operating well on an optimized operating system.

This is what I feel would be the fruit of technology.

Another thing that I want to talk about is making space on the hard drive. Now we go into the trash bin, and usually some files are there that we've deleted and stuff like this, but this isn't what I'm talking about. I'm talking about setting up space on the hard drive, which is usually something that we are not equipped to do a lot of the time. We have to figure out what software is taking up hard drive space, taking up functionality, because the fuller the hard drive is, the more there's going to be competition for space and computational power, and the less functionality we're going to have over the overall system.

And this is the same for our mind. The more that we think about certain things, the more Christ has to compete with those certain things, other than what you're trying to install for your Jesus New OS.

If you're going out with unbelievers, if you're working at an unbelieving company with an unbelieving manager, an unbelieving owner, this is competition. You're bringing your children to an unbelieving school or college.

This is big. This is competing with your optimal operating system in Christ. Instead of going to church, you decide to go to IHOP on Sundays; that's your tradition. Well, that's competing, and so now you have a hard drive that's going to be overloaded because you're trying to do two things at once. You're saying, “Well, I'm going to pledge allegiance to Christ as a Christian, but I'm also going to pledge allegiance to the world. I'm going to bring my kids to non-believing schools that don't believe in Christ. I'm going to work at a non-believing company that doesn't believe. I'm going to do this for the sake of society, because this is what they've deceived me into believing, saying that this is what needs to be in order for me to survive.” And it's a deception.

It's just like the spam and adware that we get in our emails and pop-ups that need to be blocked in order for our system to run. Where do this spam and these viruses go? To the hard drive. “You need to bring your kid to Harvard.” Well, you need to question: Is Harvard owned by a Christian group?

“You need to purchase here.” Okay. Well, are those people Christian? And these questions are going to get more and more solid. If you go on your Windows application or your Mac application, you ask, “Is this software compatible with what I'm doing to run my computer?” If not, you're not going to download it. Why, then, in your real life, are you installing stuff in your real system that you operate life with? Why are you going to allow your children's minds to be filled for 12 years before they even go to college with stuff that is not in alignment with Christ and His teachings? It's because of deception, because of malware, because of adware, because of pop-ups, because of viruses that are in this society.

And it starts there, and they continue to give us viruses. Then it's okay to take certain pharmaceuticals. Then it's okay to say, “Well, this is a mental illness,” instead of the demonology that Jesus taught us: that we need to expel these demons in His name. Then we're going to say it's okay to do certain drugs through this pharmacology on a permanent level, and then we go as far as to be completely deceived into saying it's okay to attack God's chosen, it's okay to abort our children, it's okay to commit suicide if we don't want to live, it's okay to turn completely away from God for the sake of these operating systems that are not giving us anything of true satisfaction.

As a matter of fact, most of these operating systems that we're using, that we're chained to, are operating systems that are only there to make money off of you.

They don't want to make money with you, they don't want to be your partner, and they want to completely dominate any aspect that they can to make as much money as they can. When is it going to stop?

Who's going to step up and make the operating system for God? Who's going to step up and make the technology? Who's going to step up and make the church? Who's going to step up and make the new school where children could go to learn about Jesus Christ, instead of learning about science, which is ever-changing, instead of learning about their mathematics that they're not going to remember, instead of learning about history, which has been covered up and beguiled, so that you're not even learning the true facts of history in the first place?

We have to understand Jesus Christ stays the same now, today, yesterday, and always. This stuff is changing.

One thing that I learned from college after I got out of registered nursing school—because I wanted to be a healer in Christ, right?—is that you're never going to stop learning.

Everything is always going to be ever-changing. Things are always going to be changing. That's not true with Jesus. Things stay the same. They're permanent. What He says is for now and always. You don't have to worry about it changing in the future. To this day, I'm fighting for my registered nursing degree. I just went through a hearing because they told me that they don't feel that I'm fit, that I'm competent enough to be a nurse to take care of others.

I'm not joking with you. I just went through this hearing last month, and they're still making a decision about whether I can help others and heal others as a nurse.

Why? Because people are deceived, they're running the wrong systems, they're running the wrong software, and their hard drive is overloaded. And when you're overloaded, you can't function properly. This is the way the enemy wants us to be: overloaded, whereas Christ is the opposite. He wants us to have rest; He wants us to have peace. So when we call to Him and say, "Lord, help me make space in my mind," He'll clear that hard drive. He'll let go of that stuff for you. He'll help you choose, as a file manager, better stuff to load onto your computer, which means He'll allow you to meet better people. He'll allow you maybe to move. He'll allow you to get a better job with better coworkers, whatever is needed for His glory.

Because letting go is one of the hardest things to do, have you ever tried to delete something on the computer and said, "No, I need that"? How many computer hoarders do we know who are going to save every single file that they can? "I need that pic." It might even be a pic of a logo of a cereal company, and they say, "Oh, I love that pic, I can't delete it." And what happens? Their hard drive gets overloaded, and then they need to buy a new computer altogether, eventually, because they don't want to get rid of anything. That's not the optimal system. The optimal system is letting go of this stuff. For us personally, He helps us, and we can also let go personally, because we're the actual file manager of the operating system.

So we can just accept this stuff. How do we let go of it? By just accepting it. How do I personally accept it? You can't just accept it. You have to accept it as if it were going to be there permanently. That's how you truly accept something in life.

“I don't like this person. I don't like this feeling, I don't like this thought, I don't like it. It keeps coming up, I keep thinking about it.” Just accept it as if it were there permanently, and the more that you can allow it to be permanently, the more it will dissolve. So overall, this will help you. This chapter will help you to just have more space in your life: accept, let go, pray to God so that He allows you to let go and download better software. And now you know what I mean when I'm saying better software. Another thing you can do is actually go and get Jesus New OS, and you can get it on OS right now.

If you don't want to commit to buying the phone, you can actually use it on your iPhone right now, which is also a great experience. And that's the beta version I made available, so that everyone in the world can get it, not just people who can afford the phone.

So remember what I said: release this stuff, or have Jesus help you release this stuff—these old software programs, these old files that are getting in the way. And that's how you clear out your hard drive.

A lot of this stuff is outdated: the conversations you had, the experiences you've had, words you've spoken to others, experiences that you've had. It was a different time in your life. It wasn't who you are now. We're constantly transforming, especially when we're believers in Christ. And if you're not a believer, I call on you today to don the Jesus New OS, the better operating system, and you can achieve whatever you want with the Jesus New OS. And the Jesus New OS has a lot of software: it's called the Bible in the 66 books, and you also have my 25 books as well. That makes almost 100 books that you have for software, and you should add on to that. Have those as your basic stock components for your hardware, and then also use Jesus New OS in its beta version, and you'll be ready to roll.

It's the best software you could have right now.

CHAPTER 12

Boost for Your OS

So even if you had all the information that you needed for a topic and then some, and you had the same intelligence as Einstein, you still would not be in a position to judge any circumstance in any person's life. So this is why, when Jesus came, He said, "Thou shalt not judge," because God's judging our heart. He's not judging our actions. He's not judging our behavior. He's assessing the heart that's in us. And so, if I can give you one of the major boosters that can really help your operating system—your mindset, your Jesus New OS mindset—operate, it would be to understand that no matter how smart you are, no matter how much information you have as a human being, you still can't judge correctly.

Why did God make us like this? Because of the fall of Adam and Eve. There was something that happened in the beginning of creation, when we had fallen outside of the garden, and from that time, we were not really in a position to judge. As a matter of fact, we were only in the position to be judged, and that's why we're always being judged, because we're always in that vulnerable position of judgment.

But the good news is, God's judgment is not as merciless as man's judgment. Man's judgment is merciless because we are not in a position to judge. I'll tell you this, and you'll probably judge me for saying this, but I am so hungry for you to have the truth that even if we lived as long as Methuselah, to 969 years old, we would still be given life sentences by these judges, whether it was America, "the land of freedom"; whether it was Israel, "the land of God"; whether it was Russia, "the land of the true church"; whether it was China, "the land of the true ancients."

Every nation, and I guarantee this, would have given at least one human a life sentence.

That's merciless. We don't go to man to judge. We go to God for judgment because He's merciful and He's loving, even in our worst conditions. He has a plan for us, even in our worst conditions. We can pivot through the faith of Jesus Christ into a greater circumstance. And how do we get that mercy of God? We get it by not judging.

Right now, the world is judging more than ever before. Why? Because we're using our operating systems online primarily to judge others. It's rampant. It's ridiculous, and we see it now not only in social media but in our politicians. It's just distasteful, and it's not something that we should follow suit in doing.

We are to be Catholics and good Catholics. If you're not a Catholic, you are to be a good patron of the church, and the best patron of the church is the one who does not judge.

We reserve judgment for God, and that doesn't mean that we let people go rampant, but it means that we let them open their heart to Jesus Christ. It doesn't mean that we allow people to do whatever they want, but we give people the space to turn back to God. And when we do that collectively, like I was talking about the mirror neurons in another chapter, where I was talking about your desktop and your cleanliness, people are going to follow suit. People are going to follow what the mainstream is doing, and right now the mainstream is judging at an extreme level, almost at a savage level, and it's the exact opposite of what God told us to do. It's the exact opposite of what Jesus Christ, His Son, told us to do.

And when we look at those two operating systems—the operating system of the Old Testament and His words that ran that, and the operating system of the Gospel and how Jesus ran that system, that ministry—you see that their words are almost exactly the same.

They have the same exact qualities. It's like when you look at any certain type of metal and you look at the composition. You can tell; you can test the composition, and it's kind of like that. When you really test the strength of God's word or Jesus's words and scratch other metals with them, or look at them and cut them open, you see that they're made of the same stuff. They're almost exactly identical. And I'll be honest with you, their words are the only things that are strong enough to make true metal.

So look at all the metal that is in this world, the strongest compositions of Earth, even diamonds. But I like metal because it's a good metaphor, because we can relate to metal because it's inside of us. We have a lot of metal in our composition. When we look at any metal that's in the world, it was made from the Word of God. It was not made from strength. It was not made from bronze. It was not made by Superman. It was not made by this strong being of the universe. It was made by the Word of God. He spoke out, and it was made, and its foundation was the light, and that's why it shines so brightly in the sun.

That's why anything that you see that shines brightly was made by the Word of God. So anything that you see in this world that has a shimmer and shines brightly in the sun, well, guess what? It's going to shine brightly under any sun of the universe. Why? Because it was made of God. It was meant to shine, and that's me and you too. And when you judge someone else, you're saying, "This person wasn't meant to shine. This person was meant to be swallowed by the darkness of my judgment and my flesh." That's not the way God had talked about it.

We need to respect the power of God's word. It was so strong that it created all the metal, not only in the world but in the universe. When He said, "Let there be light," things immediately started to flow together because of the laws and principalities that follow His word. He made everything in existence to follow His word, and we are to follow Him and to keep our word strong.

And when you're talking about everything in existence, that's all of the metal in the universe, and you could think about how much that is, and how much strength that is, and how much value that is—all from His Word, what He spoke into existence. And what else did He speak to us? He also said something that was just as strong, which was, "Thou shalt not judge." And I'll be honest with you guys: I'm an author and I'm a software developer, but I'm something else. I'm someone who has been falsely judged for the entirety of his whole life, and it holds you back, and it doesn't make you feel good, and it separates you from what you truly are and your destiny and your calling, because you're focused on the judgments of other people.

Focus on the judgment of God, because the judgment of God is the mercy. He has the mercy; man does not. And so, if there's one booster for your operating system, it's this. Windows has ReadyBoost. Sometimes you can put extra RAM into your computer. Sometimes you could download software that'll boost up the speed of your networks or boost up the speed of your operating system. Well, this is that chapter. This is that software, and the software is called "Thou Shalt Not Judge."

PART 2

MEDIA ENVIRONMENT

CHAPTER 13

Media Content and Players

Let's look at the media players that are on your Jesus New OS. So whatever you take in, as far as media is concerned, is kind of like a media player that you're using. So if you go out for dinner, you go out to a festival, you go to a music event—whatever you're doing for your recreation is kind of like a media player, and we have to be aware that a lot of the recreation that we do is secular. And so, when we're looking at media players that are on an actual operating system, this is also the case.

When I had first created Jesus New OS, the vision was to give people a place where they could have refuge in a very secular world of technology. As a matter of fact, when it comes to the most expansive technologies that are Christian-based, we are looking at a very small number of candidates that can say that they offer expansive amounts of media consumption, expansive amounts of media for you to consume.

Some of these are the YouVersion Bible app, the Glorify app, and the Hallow app. Those are the top three. But believe it or not, in today's world, Christianity has kind of fallen back in its technological run, and there's never been anything that Christianity has ever fallen back on more than its technological advancement. So I took it upon myself to make Jesus New OS not just a great platform, but a place where users can have their media consumption primarily through the operating system. So for music, we have 1,500 songs on our radio station. For our video content, we have an HBO-styled, curated video platform called Mountain Peaks, where you're able to watch animated videos, documentaries, series, as well as Christian movies and cartoons for children.

That is available and gets updated and curated every single week, and there are hundreds of available videos for you to watch on that platform called Mountain Peaks that gets updated and curated.

When it comes to social media, we have our own social media platform called Jesus New Online. It's one of the most technologically advanced social media platforms ever to exist. We even have a three-dimensional keyboard that you can use to communicate with your friends. We have a file-sharing platform where you can share files in a brand-new and interactive way.

We have item sharing, where you can actually share items that are within the OS framework and are offered at a global altar where you can offer your sacrifice, level up—just as God had intended this sacrificial type of offering with these amazing, luxurious items—and then you level up, and those levels stand as kudos points in your social media.

We have all types of media to be consumed on Jesus New OS. Why?

We want users to feel that they are at home, that they do not have to move away from their technological hardware to go somewhere else to consume content. Right now, it's kind of like looking at Israel back in the day, biblically, and they would have to leave their nation in order to go watch a concert, or to go to a festival, or to watch maybe a play or something like this—that sounds asinine, right? It's God's land. It's God's territory. Well, it's the same thing with technology. We have to go outside of our realm because we don't have any borders yet on a Christian level? This means we don't have any operating systems yet available, and we have to go outside and use secular types of technologies.

Many of these technologies don't have biblical standpoints.

Apple, Windows—they don't have any Christian views at all. Are they great technologies? Absolutely. Are they using the technologies to praise God? Well, I hope and I pray that maybe they will in the future. But for now, that's not the case.

I want users to stand confident and say, “Well, there are places that we can go to get a phone that's dedicated to God, that has an operating system that has been dedicated to the Christian spiritual life, the Christian spiritual discipline.” And that's where Jesus New OS came in—the first-ever official operating system that can stand just as productive as Windows and Mac, that gives out just as much entertainment value as Windows and Mac, but offers more freedom because we developed this thing on a Linux kernel. So before we actually decided to make a phone called the PineCone, we were a piggyback OS. We would use other OSes and piggyback off of their services, offering an operating system experience within their operating system, which was great. We had access. We have access to iOS. We have access to Android. We have access to Linux, Windows, and macOS.

And so we can use every single operating system to give people a home away from home, so to speak, so that if they're Christian, they have a place to go that's more expansive and integrated than, let's say, a YouVersion app, Glorify, or Hallow. So what it does is it gives us an opportunity to understand from a vantage point what technology is in Christ versus what technology is outside of it. You can't know something until you're inside of it. So we don't know the position of being in Christian technology for our operating system and exploring our media content primarily through hardware that's dedicated to God and His Son Jesus Christ.

So that has now changed. Jesus New OS gives us an opportunity to go onto one of these operating systems, or to get the PineCone, which will be available between October and December of 2026, to be within that technological framework and to look at it from that position. Believe it or not, Christianity is further behind in technology than it has ever been in any other economic advancement in Christian history. If there's one place where Christians have fallen behind, it is in technology, and one of the reasons is that a lot of Christian leaders are very enormously traditional, and so it's hard to open up and to assimilate and to adapt to this enormous amount of technology coming in. Jesus New OS changes that.

It allows a user to have productivity as a portal, media content as a portal, as well as their social needs provided for on Jesus New Online.

On top of that, we offer file sharing, cloud service, a huge music platform called Jesus New Radio, and the list goes on and on. We have our own gaming portal called Treasury Games, and there are projected to be hundreds and hundreds of games on the Treasury Games console —literally, a gaming console within the operating system. It's literally one of the most entertaining operating systems that has ever been created. When it comes to comparing how much entertainment comes out of the box versus macOS or even Windows, you just can't compare. There is exponentially more entertainment to be consumed.

On top of that, we are opening our Linux kernel on our phone, which means that users can also download Linux apps, and these apps are extremely geared and created towards freedom, which means that there are not a lot of policies or ad pop-ups or any of these types of things that give users a real headache. Linux is more of a free social community of developers who take pride in offering users something that's called user space, and in not interfering with that. If there's one thing that affects a person's experience with their media content, it's an operating system that affects user space, and user space is pretty much any area that you have control over. And so it is with Jesus New OS.

If there's one rule that we have adopted at the deepest layers of our operating system, it is one of the pillars of integrity that Linux offers, which is: don't interfere with the user space. What does this mean? No more pop-ups. No more watching you. No more third-party installations. No more third-party interference.

No more third-party companies that can buy out your information from your phone company or your operating system.

These are huge. Other things can affect your user space as well.

These include denying you access because of new regulations, denying you certain privileges in the app because of your user level or administration status. All of these things are completely dissolved in Jesus New OS. Why? Because we see past it. These operating systems like Windows and Apple, although we love their technologies, are not able to see past these regulations into what truly matters, which is the user space and the user's experience. And this is huge when it comes to media content. So consider what happens when you are in an operating system that is fully intended to make sure your user space is completely free and open for you as a user.

Well, your media system, your media experience, now transforms. Your gaming experience now transforms. Your video consumption, your social media consumption, and your music consumption, as well as any type of entertainment you're drawing from your technology, transform as well. So not only do we feel we've created innovative technologies and some of the greatest entertainment experiences in the world that have ever been created, but we also keep the user space open, which transforms the dimension of your media content.

So the reason that I explain this is because I want people who are reading the book to understand we're in an age where you're forced to take your entertainment content from secular aggregators, which are companies that do not believe in God, and as a matter of fact, many of them are against the way of God in Christ.

Many of them hate God in Christ, and I can definitely tell you that Jesus New OS would not be possible without Linux and Apple, but I know that these companies are not praising God, and I do hope and pray that in the future they do. But until they do, Jesus New OS is the only operating system, the only system that's available for hardware device management on a user level to offer a fully Christian experience for their media content, their proactivity, their software consumption, as well as their spiritual discipline, and we'll talk more about the spiritual discipline later. But this is all integrated within our OS. So check out the beta version, which is on OS, and see the amount of entertainment that's there, and also notice that your user space is never affected. There are no pop-ups.

There are no ads. There's no one watching your content. As a matter of fact, in the background, all messages that you send out are deleted within 24 hours, and we stand firm with that. This means there is nobody asking for your information, whether it be a third-party aggregator looking for your information to sell you something, whether it's AI technology looking to improve its machine learning based on your information, or even a governmental agency that's looking at requiring your information in the background without you knowing it. This stuff is not possible with Jesus New OS because we have a policy that states that within 24 hours the messages get deleted.

All of your information is free. Your user space is free, and this is what Jesus Christ wants: for you to be free. And that's going to be represented in His technology and, undoubtedly, in the technology of people who follow my lead and start to build technologies in His name.

This is why Jesus New OS was created. I wanted people to have the full Christ experience, but with the most elite technology as well.

PART 2

HARDWARE AND MAINTENANCE

CHAPTER 14

Hardware

When we're looking at hardware, we're looking at your body. Your body is your hardware for your operating system, and the Jesus New OS is your mindset, a tool to open your mind to God. What's the secret to health? It's not nutrients. It's not your doctor.

It's not vitamins. It's not your good diet. It's not even your good exercise.

It's having an open mind where God can enter in and fill you up with light; the mind of Christ is what we are to don. When Saint Paul said in the Bible, “You will be made of a body incorruptible of light,” what he's saying is that your mind is going to be made up of Christ. You're going to don the full mind of Christ, and your body will follow suit.

This is true even now. When we improve the mind, the body becomes healthier, and you see this as plain as day with people who are functional, disciplined, productive, positive. They have an aura around them, and you just know that they're positive. You know that they're handling their business. When you look at someone who's speaking negatively, thinking negatively in that vibration, you can just see it in their body, in their skin, in their face. When we're negative, the facial muscles in the face go negative, and that releases hormones, and those hormones affect the entire body.

This is why the facial muscles are so fine-tuned, so that when you're in a mind state, your facial muscles can twitch a certain way and immediately send out hormonal signals to your body. And if you're consistently in a negative mind state, which is the anti-Jesus New OS, then you're going to constantly send out these torch signals, so that's important for you to know.

Another thing is that the mind state of God is the healthiest your body can be. God designed Noah to live 900 years and Adam to live 1,000 years.

He most likely designed man to live much longer in the garden. We know He did not want them to live forever, because He prevented them from eating from the tree of eternal life. But He designed them to live a very long time, because in the breath of His eternal nature, we lived within His breath and within His good graces.

It was only when He put negative words on us that we started to dwindle down. What does this mean? We need His Word. We need His blessing. And He has the design. He has the DNA matrix. He has those secret DNA and genetic codes that can allow us to live longer than we currently do. He has the code right now for our DNA matrix to allow us to live for 1,000 years.

Can you believe that? If God wanted to, He could enlighten a man, open his mind, and give him the information to help him get back into the DNA structure of the garden, or the molecular structure of the garden, or, at the very least, lead people in that direction.

This is what we ought to do: not worry about global climate. Don't worry about pollution in your area. Don't worry about your poverty rate. Don't worry about what you're eating. Don't even worry about the nutrition. These things are supplements, but they are nothing without God. If you're in God, they can help you, but without God, they are nothing. The negativity that you're going to absorb from being without God and without belief in Christ is far more disastrous than anything that nutrition or your doctor can help with. And so these negative emotions that we have from the absence of praise and magnifying the Lord's name are something that takes a toll on us. And it doesn't matter how much money we make, or how good a diet we have, or how much we exercise. This is why we see these popes. These popes live a really long time.

I don't think I've ever seen a pope who has not lived a long time, unless they were executed.

I'm going to give you a beautiful, beautiful statistic here. Aside from Pope Benedict IX, the average age of a pope is 80 years old.

Pope Leo XIII, who was the predecessor of our current Pope Leo XIV, died at 93, almost 94 years old. What does this say? There's longevity and there's health in the church. And why? Because we open our mind through the mindset of Christ, and we allow God to fill it. And when He fills our mind, the mind fills the body.

That's how it's supposed to go, but sometimes we don't understand. There's just God and the absence of God, or God, or the wrath of God. And so it's either God that's going to enter the mind and enter into the body, or the wrath of God that's going to enter into the mind and enter into the body. And you should not worry about demons or devils, because the wrath of God is infinitely more terrible than these things.

In the Bible, He said that He will make hell naked.

At the snap of His finger, He could extinguish all of the burning and torment in hell and make it whatever He wants. He can make it a nice culmination of fluffy clouds. He could do anything. He's infinite. They call Him the Lord Almighty, and the reason they call Him the Lord Almighty is because He's mighty in strength.

He's mighty in reason. He's mighty in mercy, but mostly because He's mighty in love, and we see that through the creation. And if you were to test this love, you could test it just by loving anything in life, and you would receive an enormous amount of love back.

Everything that you desire will come back to you by loving God's creation. Now, imagine if you love God Himself.

You can only imagine the power of His love. Most people get lost in the love of His creation and chase that. But the smart ones chase the source of His creation. Now, the one thing I do want to say is that sometimes we can have the greatest mindset, and we can have the greatest praise and the greatest magnification. But sometimes life isn't going our way, and it might not seem that God is improving our hardware, improving our life, improving our environment, improving our relationships. Well, sometimes God does this to make us stronger. We have to remember He's called the Lord Almighty, and His Son is called the Lion of Judah.

Obviously, that's the best depiction for Jesus Christ because He's God's Son. God is the Lord Almighty, and that's capital L, capital A. And so it's only obvious that we would liken His Son to the Lion of Judah. And what is the Lion of Judah? He is the strongest of all creation, who chose to die on a cross rather than to be a king in a castle, to show us love on a torture instrument of the Roman Empire, which was one of the most brutal empires. That's the time that He chose to come in to teach us, within Roman reign.

He did not come to teach us during the comfortable times of peace, in a chair, in a castle, in Wales, let's say. He could have come through the will of God at any time. He chose to come during Roman reign, and He chose to die in Roman reign, and the rain did pour down immensely on Jesus Christ. The strength that He had was because He's God's Son, and we also are to don strength, and so that's why sometimes things don't go our way. It's an age-old question: Why is God letting this happen to me?

Well, why did He let that happen to His Son? Because His Son's a lion, and when He looks at us, He looks at us like lion cubs. Some of us are young lions, and He looks at us through Christ, and that's why we're chosen to accept a hard life and to know that it's not the end of the story. It wasn't the end of the story for Christ, and that's where the strength comes from—not from the cross; that was the beginning of Him showing His courage against death. Before even the cross, He showed courage against all leaders. Even as a little boy, He showed courage against His mother and father to go against their wishes, to teach in the temple, to give them truer knowledge, even the doctors and physicians.

He showed courage throughout His whole life. Why? He's the Son of God. God is the Lord Almighty. He's the strongest of all. His right hand is mighty in strength. So that's why the age-old question can be answered in this chapter. Why in the world is God letting this happen? He's quickening us and He's making us stronger because we're part of His flock. So with that being said, as you get stronger through God, all good benefits come from having strength.

Every single good benefit comes from being strong, whether mentally strong or physically strong. That's where all the potential fruits of life exist, and we are to give our strength to God because He gave us the experiences in life to be strong.

Another thing that we need to look at is Christ's renewal. Christ is constantly renewing our hardware, and just like Apple or Microsoft is constantly making you hardware and renewing it, you're constantly getting an update of hardware for your operating system. And the power of God and Christ is renewal through the purity of His blood that was shed for us. That purity of blood that was shed on the cross was not His greatest strength. It was His resurrection power when He came back.

He could do anything that He wanted to do. He could not be touched anymore. There was no Roman soldier at that time who could do anything to Him anymore. And He could talk to His disciples. He could talk to Mary. He could do what He wanted.

He was completely free of death, forevermore, and He had the keys of hell and of heaven, but also of earth. He could go wherever He wanted and not worry about Caesar anymore. He didn't have to worry about Pilate anymore.

He could have been looking through Pilate's window at any time of night, as the thief in the night. Pilate would not know He was resurrected, all-powerful.

Now He was likened unto the true thief in the night, which was His resurrected body. No one could see Him. He could be with you right now. You can't see Him. You can only feel Him. That's the true thief in the night, the resurrected form of Christ. You can't do anything to Him. So that was His true strength. So how in the world does God look at us as people who need to strengthen up? And we pray that we can become thieves in the night who can steal people away from the secular world back into the arms of God, who truly loves them.

The world puts up a facade, kind of like a wife who's truly a harlot, but the husband doesn't know she's truly a harlot—that she's promiscuous and flirtatious towards other men and, if given the chance, would commit adultery with other men. That's how the world is, and the powers of the world. They treat you like they love you.

You seem like you're married to it, but at any moment it will break your heart. It will leave you for a better position, and ultimately it will truly make you suffer more than anything else.

It is an untrue partner. And so is what was given to us as a gift in the world, which was the flesh.

It seems so good; it seems like our best partner, but in the end, it leaves us to die, just like a cheating wife would. So the only way to enjoy, truly enjoy, the body and mind is to turn back to God, because now you have something in the flesh that can't die, called the Holy Spirit, quickening your mind to don the mind of Christ. That's the renewal. That's the hardware given to you, so that your operating system can now move more freely. And this is the way that we ought to see hardware: not as our body, something that can be improved in the eyes of the world, but as a body that can be improved as a vessel of God. It can't be a vessel of God without us turning and praising God and accepting the true man of strength, Jesus Christ.

So we see this as a common denominator. Listen, I didn't go through half as much as His disciples did, but I'm still a leader in the sense that I have been given the experience to renew—to renew my hardware, to give myself updates.

So this is the hardware. We want the hardware to be tough in our system. If you throw it on the floor, it's not going to break. The screen's not going to crack. The keyboard isn't going to fall off. The port for your USB is not going to crack.

All of these systems depend on strong hardware. God needs us to be strong. And when we fall, we get back up. We continue to operate our mindset in Christ.

So we go through experiences, but God is there with us. My experience has been exile. I've been exiled since I was a little boy. When I was six years old, I was taken away from my mother.

She was not able to take care of me because of mental issues and drug issues. I went right into foster care.

They tried their hardest to love me, but it felt like exile. They were a Puerto Rican family. I was Italian, and I'm grateful for them because they helped my mind a lot to understand the depth of Puerto Rican culture, which is rooted in family unity, and that helped me a lot. Their Latin roots were rooted in Christ, like much of Latin America naturally is, and that helped me gain Christ at a very young age.

And there was always a painting of Christ on the wall, and that was the beginning of my Christ hardware, where I literally had to live a hard life. And then from there, my mom, in her mental illness, kept fighting to get me back, and the courts, in their evil and wicked decisions, kept allowing me to go back. And it started to be a war of good and evil between that Puerto Rican family, who started to fall in love with me, and my mom, who kept trying to pull me back in her own selfish ways, as well as other details that I didn't know as a child. And it was a constant exile at that time.

At that time, eventually, my mom won me back and had this horrible man whom she had married, a very abusive man to me at a very young age too, six to eight years old. And that man continued to exile me.

One time, he had a whole bunch of dogs in the backyard, and one of the dogs ripped one of the puppies apart. I loved the puppy, and he blamed it on me, made me bury the dog in the backyard as a little seven- or eight-year-old child.

There were constant expressions like this, where I felt exiled, with rats running in the house all throughout the day. They wouldn't clean up the feces of the dogs. And when I grew up, I realized, “Wow, I'm a really clean man, and a very God-fearing man, and a person who follows cleanliness and praises the Lord.” And my mom was doing drugs, and this man was completely abusive. They did not clean the house at all, and it was a complete exile. After he died, I went back to my mom, who was not able to take care of me again without piggybacking on him because he owned the house, and I ended up in a worse exile.

They put me in a juvenile facility because of the evil, wicked decision-making power of the government and their court systems, which is a very evil decision-making power. After that, when I got out, I signed myself out. It was the first time I felt free out of exile at 18 years old, and from there I went to college. I got a nursing degree, and that was the hardest thing to do because I was performing at a successful upper-middle-class level, and my whole childhood and adolescence were full of exile and abuse. And so I knew that it was a miracle of God. And when that happened, my other family, who was also poverty-stricken and drug- and addiction-stricken, had convicted me of a false crime of molestation. And because of the evil decision-making powers of the court, they allowed the conviction, and to this day they have not allowed anyone to know the truth or the details about it, because it was a cover-up. Not only was it a cover-up, the police who convicted me lied and said that I had admitted that I did the crime, which was not true. So it was two lies at once: the lie of my family member, my cousin, who said I did something when I did absolutely nothing but love my family. Always I give them money, hundreds of dollars, sometimes thousands of dollars, and I think that it was what Solomon said: the grave that's greater than death, which is jealousy.

And when I got my nursing degree, they put me back into exile again. And now I'm in ultimate exile in Hawaii, where they don't like Americans at all here on the Big Island. It's actually the only place in America that doesn't like America. They've burnt my house down.

They've stolen my Mustang. They stole my Ford Focus.

They've burglarized another property that I purchased.

I've been burglarized over 17 times here. There have been dozens, dozens and dozens of police reports. I just had my neighbor call the cops on me yesterday because they were feeding my dog, and now the dog's going over there for food and attention, and they called the cops on me because the dog keeps going over there and their dog keeps barking at my dog. Not really to lay my life on the line here, but what's the point here? I have strong hardware.

I'm a hard man, and even in that exile, even in that position, even though it's not half as much as what the disciples went through or what Christ went through, I still stand here today as a sex offender that didn't do anything, and it's easy to know what I truly did because of my operating system, because of my books, because of my true motives, which are what I do every day.

But yet, the evil and wicked decisions of the court system and the powers and principalities have me in this situation. But I'm hard as nails for Christ, and so I'm able to get these books out. I was able to get you an operating system out. I was able to get you your own phone, called the PineCone, out, and I'm able to get you some of the best technological innovations, some of the best knowledge in the world that I pulled down from Christ into these books, a living corpus. So you're to follow suit, not to live this type of lifestyle, but He's going to toughen you up, and we're not to complain about it.

We're to continue to move in the Spirit of God, no matter what our circumstance is, and to continue to help. I still help people on all types of scales, through all of that. God made me a chef.

He made me a system engineer, an operating system founder.

He made me a technological innovator. He made me an author. He made me a financial educator.

I made 3.7 million dollars in financial investments in 2024. The majority of it, I invested in technology for Jesus New OS, so that Jesus New OS can expand indefinitely, and so there could be another branch of Christ, but in technology, where it's truly needed right now. So remember, your hardware is important, and sometimes it's not going to go your way, and that's okay, because believe it or not, now you're able to operate that system even better.

I'm able to run Jesus New OS. Why? Because I'm the founder of the actual technology, and I made the book. It's the same thing with you. One day you're going to create your own mindset in Christ, and you're going to give it out, and you're going to help save people. So remember that. Your hardware is solid. It's not like a computer where you can drop it and break the hardware. You're never going to drop and break your God. You're going to drop, and you're going to be able to run your operating system, no matter how hard you drop, and that's what true hardware is about. And God will continue to renew your hardware.

CHAPTER 15

The Trash Bin

So let's start with the most important part of the operating system, the trash bin. Without the trash bin, you can't have an operating system, because it will be too cluttered, clumped up, and the system will start to get too full to even operate. You wouldn't be able to download anything. Things would overlap each other. Eventually, caches would overfill, and the system would end up breaking down. So a lot of duplicate files, a lot of files that you don't need anymore, maybe your cache history—all of this stuff gets dumped into your trash bin and ends up being deleted from your operating system. So what this does is it leaves your operating system with more space, so that you can download new software, download new files, make more documents, upload more media, and have the free space to do what you want now.

In the trash bin, you can usually delete things by size, so you can select the size of the things that you need, and then you can choose them.

And then from there you can decide what you want or what you don't want. I usually choose to take the hardware storage, look at the biggest files, and then delete from there, because the smaller ones I'm not really too worried about. So the trash bin in Jesus New OS is going to be huge. Starting off, if you haven't used Windows or MacBooks lately—or if you have—you know that this is the most important thing. And if you're not throwing stuff into the trash bin and emptying the trash bin, then you'd have a computer that is not too delightful to work with. In Jesus New OS, it's the same thing for your life. The Jesus New OS trash bin is composed of things you don't need in your life anymore.

Not only do you need to put them into the trash bin, which is to identify these things, which is going to take you a long time to do, but you're also going to have to empty the trash bin. So there are two parts here in the Jesus New OS trash bin. You have to identify: grab a paper notebook, figure out exactly what it is in your life that you don't need anymore, and you can start writing that stuff down and start acknowledging that stuff. And then from there you can empty the trash bin, but it's not going to be as easy as clicking “Empty Trash Bin.” It's going to be an ongoing effort to empty this stuff from your life.

Here's the thing: Jesus Christ has the power just to click that button and empty it. So when we're looking at our trash bin, just like we're depending on Windows or MacBook or Android to delete our files, we depend on Jesus and His Father and the Holy Spirit to delete the files. We can't delete them ourselves.

Just like an operating system, we're not going to go into that computer, find it on the chip, and delete it. It's impossible.

It's the same way for a lot of these issues in your life that are turning toxic, taking up space, and are things that you should consider trash.

A lot of people's computers don't work too well because they hoard their files. “I don't want to delete this, I don't want to delete that.”

Sometimes it's fear, sometimes it's habit, sometimes they don't know what to do, so it's the same thing with you. If you're not identifying your problems, then you're going to end up with an operating system that's backed up. But this isn't just a computer that you can replace; this is your life. So grab a notebook, grab a pen, put “Jesus New OS Trash Bin” on the front of it, and start writing down the trash in your life, and be real with yourself. Don't justify it. If you smoke cigarettes, that's trash. If you drink alcohol, that's trash. If you're hanging out with people who are not productive, that's trash.

If you're a gossiper, that's trash. If you have sin, that's trash. If you are maybe at the wrong job that you don't like, it's not something you enjoy or a place where you feel safe, that's trash. Then start with what you can personally identify as what could be thrown out in your life.

Know that this makes room for new stuff to be put into your operating system.

A lot of this stuff, I'm going to tell you the truth, you're not going to be able to delete.

I can't even delete files without the operating system. The true one that runs the operating system is not us. When we're making windows pop up, it's Windows popping them up. When we're making a phone call on OS, the true one that's running the operating system is not us; we're not making the phone call. OS is really the one making that work. When we're going to delete stuff from our trash bin in Jesus New OS, in your new notebook, it's not us who are able to delete this stuff; it's Jesus Christ. He is the one running the operating system. This is Jesus New OS.

So you write this stuff down, and you acknowledge, “I don't have the strength to get rid of this stuff, but Jesus does.” And at the click of a button with His mouse up in heaven, He can click to empty that trash bin, and boom, that stuff is gone. And it might not be tomorrow in your natural time, the way you see it in natural time, but that stuff is gone.

Another thing I want to touch on is the fact that there has to be a state of humility. For a regular operating system, admitting you have trash in your operating system is not too big a deal. But when you understand that you're operating your life and that there's trash in it, a lot of people are not humble enough, or maybe not seasoned enough, or malleable or flexible enough to understand they have trash that needs to go into the trash bin. And so if that's something that comes up when you're in your notebook, don't worry about it. Everyone has trash.

I have trash, you have trash. Anyone you see in this world has a trash bin, and people who make it seem that they are perfect and that they don't have a trash bin to empty are the people who usually have the biggest trash bins, because they're not going to God asking for the click, identifying this stuff. The last point I'd like to touch on for your trash bin and your new operating system is the things we can identify. And so now there are things we can't see, right?

There are even colors we can't see, because our eyes are not able to see them. There are things in our life that we can't see, because we're humans. We don't have the frequency to see those colors, or we don't even have enough time to be here to see certain things. And what I mean by that is there's a universe and a world that we have where we see things now, but they're going to take on different shapes and forms through things evolving.

And so we only have limited vision. Even our galaxy, even though it's in a spiraled form right now, can uncurl itself and go the other direction, or it can uncurl itself and become what could look like a unified symbol, almost, with the curls straightening out as lines. Or the curls can literally go the other way, start going the other way in S-shaped formations. We don't know. Every species that we see will go through this type of unloosening into a new form.

God sees this stuff. God doesn't just see it as fixed here, as we do. He sees it as an ever-changing, evolving structure that He created. It doesn't have a single shape or form. Even us, as limited as we are, from the time that we're kids to how we look when we're older, it's a whole new form. And why do I say this? Because we need to look at what God sees. He sees all the colors; He sees the galaxy and all of its shapes in His future. He sees the solar system in different shapes and forms; He sees the ocean and the lands in their different shapes. He sees the evolution of all life, from Homo sapiens to human beings, from human beings to what we're going to be if we follow God or not, and all of the other creations as well.

He hears all the sounds that we don't hear. And so when we come to Him, we say, “God, Father, Lord, is there a way that You can identify stuff I need to clean out of my life? And can You help me identify it so I can write it down in my notebook? And can You help me to get rid of it?” We call on God for the rest of the trash.

Just like when you're using an operating system, you don't really know what to throw away. There are a lot of underlying files that are part of the cache, part of binary systems, compilers, part of zip files that you haven't seen, deeper folders that are etched into deeper folders that are composed of files that you have no idea about. Well, God is the designer, God is the developer. He can locate these files that you have no idea about and save you enormous amounts of time and energy, and literally give you a new type of life, just simply by praying to Him, “Lord, can You identify what needs to be put into my trash bin and help me throw this stuff out?”

PART 2

SPIRITUAL OPERATION AND OUTPUT

CHAPTER 16

The Kingdom at Hand

Jesus Christ said the kingdom is at hand, and He was right. What is our kingdom, usually at our hand? What is our kingdom? What has our kingdom become? Our phone. So I made my own PineCone, and you can check it out right now on OS. This is what I personally believe, guys: that the operating systems of the future are going to literally be like kingdoms, and they're going to be augmented realities.

Some of them are going to either take you away from God or closer to Him. And I couldn't stomach the fact that all we had was Hallow and Glorify, and all of these celebrities are in there talking about how glorious their life is in God, and then the next minute they're asking you to donate to their funding, donate to their churches, as if you know this is the right thing to do. There was no platform for God, let alone an operating system. So I created this PineCone, the first hardware ever. I'm the first one ever to make a piece of hardware for God.

From the time of Commodore 64 to now, which is 2026, nobody has done it. And when I did it, I wanted to do it right. Not only did I want to give it to you in the sense of utilizing the very best technology that's available, innovating technology—technology that's never been done before, and I'll discuss the technology in another chapter—but I also gave you the mental OS, the mindset. And when you take the book and the phone and you put them together, you have a direction in this time of technology, where society has already been set, the kingdoms have already been set, the nations have already been set, the governments are already set.

Everything is set to move forward the way that it's going to go, and Jesus New OS has been set, and Jesus New OS can be the center, can be your kingdom at hand. What is your kingdom at hand going to be? Is it going to be FB, Instagram, these news feeds on YouTube? What have they done for you lately? We have to give the glory to God. We have to magnify His name, and this doesn't mean that just because we have technology, we can look the other way from God, because all those who are biblical know one thing: that God's word doesn't change.

And if His word doesn't change, His commandments don't change. If His commandments don't change, His law doesn't change. If His law doesn't change, the way doesn't change. The direction doesn't change. There is no truth other than God's law, and what does His law say? “Have no other gods before Me.” And if we're praising people or throwing people under the bus in the name of technology and clout on technology, then we're not doing what God told us to do. And if we're not doing what God told us to do for the sake of technology, then we're turning from God because of the technology, and the technology becomes a god.

I don't want that for you guys. I don't want people to be damned because of technology, and it's possible. There's so much porn. There's so much evil. Do you know how many people have been destroyed because of technology? It can damn people, but I also believe it can save people, and this is where Jesus New OS comes in. It has been set into motion, just like every other thing has been set into motion. And when I say set into motion, I have set it so that there is no innovative technology like what's on Jesus New OS. Number one, I have the greatest security for your data files in the world.

It's greater than some governmental technologies that I give to the Christian user. The design, the beauty, the craftsmanship, the design is almost prophetic. And when we're talking about the longevity of the technology, God has helped me bring something called the infinitude into the technology. There are certain technologies that I'm using with AI that make certain technologies in it infinite, which means it can go on and on and on forever.

This means that when you are talking to the living God, or you're talking to the living Christ, or you're talking to the chat Bible, you can literally talk to it forever because of the algorithms that have been set into play biblically with those verses. And there's just so much technology that it has been set into place for a course in history. Every person receives their own mansion. And they can share items and data with others in that mansion. And there's even something more expansive than that, called the Citadel, where you can hide and lock files. Some of these Citadels have over a million rooms.

On the PineCone, you get 8 million rooms, and you get a key to that room with a code for what hole it's in, what segment, what sector, what hallway. And if you choose the wrong door, that code gets locked. You can't get it again. We have another technology where you have GPS locking, and you can use it in conjunction with the Citadel. We also have Helix technology, where we have a question-and-password algorithm that brings it to a chance of one in—I think, what was it?—350 quadrillion of getting that password correct if you were a hacker. And that's on top of the GPS location, and that's on top of choosing the right room in the Citadel.

The GPS locking location is one of the greatest quantum resistances known to Earth because you need to physically be there to get the file. It doesn't matter if the supercomputer were as big as Alaska. That supercomputer cannot get up and go to the location where your file is. So these are technologies that have been set into motion for you and for the future, and once you set technology into motion, there is something called momentum, and technology has momentum to it. So if you have the greatest technology in certain areas, or if you have technologies that have freshly been innovated, you create momentum. And my idea is to create momentum for this Christ phone, for this Christ operating system, so that more people follow suit.

What I personally believe is that AI is going to augment our reality and that intelligence is going to go on to a quantum age, where the intelligence is going to become so strong that it's going to affect our realities. And we see that already going on just with social media, which is a basic program that has captivated all the people. So that is why Jesus New OS is here to preserve you in these times and to protect you during these times, and not only that, but to empower you and to give you a kingdom that's greater than all of these technologies. Even the greatest quantum technology that Microsoft may garner in the future is not going to give you a mansion to share gifts and items and luxuries with your friends.

That's Jesus New OS. That's love for you, from Christ in me, for you. So why do I say this stuff? Because there's a kingdom at hand, and there's also a kingdom here for you to enjoy.

CHAPTER 17

Sowing Seeds in the Temple

So today's sermon is about the farmers that sow the Word of God, and when we are sowing words, we receive joy. We receive what is not in time, because the word is timeless. So when we look at the true lamp of the Bible or the light of God that is manifested within us, it is for those who sow the word, and these people are called farmers.

Just like a real farmer produces grain, a farmer who sows the word is someone who produces food for the kingdom of God, and that's why, when we hear Jesus talk about the mustard seeds, the garden plants, the lilies, the birds, He was literally talking like a farmer, because we ought to be sowing seeds, which is sowing the word. And so, just as farmers fish, just as farmers shepherd, just as farmers plant and discuss the trees and nature, Jesus replied in parables, and many of them were horticultural parables. And so His disciples were able to answer many of our questions through the Bible with honor because of this truth. So when we look at Jesus sending out the 12, He sent out 12 farmers sowing seeds for the kingdom.

And when we look at how effectively the word had spread across the world, it was because of these parables and this mind of the farmer to sow seeds.

Jesus fed 5,000; Jesus gained the victories.

There was miracle after miracle. Jesus fed the 4,000, giving bread, giving wine—all stuff that would be something that a farmer does.

Jesus was not able to be stopped because His word was too strong, and if we want to be unstoppable, we must also sow the seeds of the King. His name's Jesus.

Drinking from His cup is drinking from His baptism, and His baptism is the baptism of the fire of the Holy Spirit.

We call to Him, and He calls back to us. We answer Him; He answers us, and He is the authority that can truly answer us, the authority called the I Am. When John baptized Christ, he said, “Even I am not worthy to unlatch His sandal on His feet,” because of this authority called the I Am. He said, “Before Abraham, I am.” This house of prayer that He had created, called Christianity, is all through the resurrection power of the I Am: the resurrection of wives, husbands, daughters, mothers, fathers, sons—all resurrected through His commandments.

“What's more important,” Jesus asked, “to honor our Lord God, or to love your neighbor as yourself?” And what He was pretty much saying is, the Lord is one in the sense that you're doing the same thing when you're doing both.

Many people had questions for Jesus.

He could answer all of them, even unto the coming of the times, when He explained that the sun would be darkened and the moon would not give its light.

This is indicative of the Last Supper. If the sun was shining for Jesus and the moon was not giving its light, the stars will fall from the sky.

Heavenly bodies will be shaken. This end of times is indicated through the Last Supper. The end of Christ is indicative of the end times, and He's the closest thing that we can understand through our scattered understanding of God. When we look at the end, we can also look at Christ, but we also see a new beginning. This is also in Revelation: a new beginning, a new Jerusalem.

In our New Jerusalem, the understanding that we have now is from after Pilate had crucified Him unto His resurrection. The trials of Jesus are reflective of the trials and tribulations of Revelation, and the resurrection of Jesus is revelation of the New Jerusalem. So these are difficult concepts for us to digest, but this is why He chose such simple parables, and the simplest ones that He could find were the parables of the farmer. So in a lot of His ministry, He taught about farming. Why? Because it's simple, it's clear, and when we think like horticulturists, we can carry the truth of God's creation to understand the Creator, and that's what God was doing in the form of Jesus. And so even angels, saying, “I am Gabriel. I stand in the presence of God,” were not able to express the way Jesus Christ could express.

God in Jesus was expressing Himself fully, hungry for good things, hungry for mercy, hungry to give people eternal life, hungry to allow people to understand God as their Savior, which He ultimately was.

Jesus Himself was presenting Himself in the temple, presenting Himself on the streets, presenting Himself to the governments. The Spirit of the Lord was in Jesus to anoint us, so that we can proclaim the good news to the poor. But how can we do that? Well, first we have to proclaim that we are disciples of Him. From there, we can open our heart to the inpouring of the Spirit, and after that inpouring, we can start understanding and identifying with people, and become the vessel to sow the seed of God. How are we going to sow the seed of God? Well, I chose to sow the seeds of God by making the operating system. There's no greater sowing of the Lord, potentially, than the PineCone and Jesus New OS. It's one of the greatest ways that one potentially could ever sow the Word of God, and that's why I created it.

And by using Jesus New OS, by using the operating system, you also will potentially be one of the greatest sowers of the Word of God in history, because you now have technology that has fully been integrated at a hardware level—CPU, GPU, all the stuff that we've discussed at that deeper level—in proclamation and in praise of Yahweh and His Son Jesus Christ. So a lot of the storms that we see in technology, Jesus will calm through Jesus New OS. And so I'm calling for you not only to increase your system, your spirituality, your personal mental OS, but I'm calling and I'm sending you out as disciples to use the technology and to transfigure people through this amazing technology that's going to continue to grow all the way unto the quantum age, and the cost is quite cheap.

I made it 24.99 to start out, and it'll be a sliding scale between 24.99 and 34.99, depending on inflation. But currently, as we speak, it's July.

It's 2026, and that correlation with the current value of 24 to 34.99 is the correlation that I would like the OS to maintain permanently, because I don't know how long this OS is going to last, but it's going to be passed down from generation to generation, as well as this book. And if I'm not here, and people end up using the OS or prospering from the OS, I would like it to be written in stone: the opportunity that I want people to have to get this full technology for this affordable price.

CHAPTER 18

Closing the Gap

So what does this represent? This Jesus New OS represents closing the gap between your technology and Christ. And when we look at the technology of our hardware that we have in our phone, alongside the technology that God gave us that's in our mind and body, what we see right now, especially in technologies in the future, is that these gaps are going to get closer and closer, and we have to be careful as Christians with this. And so one of the best ways that we can combat this is not to battle technology or resist it, but to make technologies that are far better than the technologies that are available in the secular arena of technology. I think Jesus New has achieved that successfully. Our music is better.

Our media content is better. Our games are better.

Our social media website platform is better. Many of our technologies are more advanced than what is available to be offered at Apple and Windows, and you can see people adopting Jesus New technology in the future, or you can see people following Jesus New OS as an operating system overall and starting to use it to lead themselves in new directions and new possibilities. And that's what Jesus New OS was there to prove as a software operating system that's now available on the PineCone. But for you personally, you also have technology that God has given you, and even though it's organic, it's still His technology. It's still His.

These are His networks, and they might not be computer chips, but what we see now with robotics is that these things are coming closer and closer. So when I put out the book, it was for you to adopt an operating system with your mind and body, and for that to be the technology that's inside of you, not hardware or a chip. That's the main vision of this book, and to have the Jesus New OS that's available on PineCone, that's available as operating software, to lead you into new possibilities that are available, that are more profound and advanced than technologies that are given by the highest companies. I built Jesus New OS on the Big Island, Hawaii, in a cabin.

I didn't have huge teams. I just had me, ChatGPT, and Grok, and that was my huge team. It took me years to be able to design this stuff and to receive the thoughts and the technologies from God and from a deeper place in me, as He was helping me to give you this outlet so that it can expand.

If there's no outlet there, it can't expand. So the vision is for you to have that technology outward and also inward. Right now, secular technology has gone the wrong way. Their outward and inward are different. They're now putting computer chips into human beings, into that place below.

That's the place where God should be, and so that same place where that chip is, is the place where I want this Jesus New OS book to be, in the form of knowledge, spiritual knowledge, not in the form of hardware. And I want you to have that Jesus New OS within you, as opposed to being scared of an actual technology that's going to oppress you or integrate within your body or mind. And I want you also to have Jesus New OS on your PineCone or on your mobile device, and to be confident because of the amount of technology and innovation that it gives you, how much more freedom it gives you in user space, how much more space it's able to give you on your cloud service, how much more interactive it is.

Look at how much more invigorating and uplifting and inspiring the Jesus New OS operating system is compared to what they offered you, and compared to what has been embraced. I'm not saying that technology is bad, but I'm saying that it needs to be improved. And if there's one single place that it needs to be improved, it's our relationship with God compared to our relationship with our technology, because people are on their phone for the majority of their day, and they're not worshiping, they're not praying at all, and so they're kind of getting led astray by secular companies that are only looking to make money off of them.

They have no real heart for them. When you're in Jesus New OS, you understand there's a heart there, and that your best interest and your elevation are the priority, not the elevation of the company.

As the creator, I don't care how much money I make at Jesus New OS. I care about how many people are using Jesus New OS. If I didn't make a single dollar in the name of a billion people using Jesus New OS, or 10 billion people in future generations using Jesus New OS, I wouldn't make a dime off of it. As a matter of fact, I have not made a dime off of it. Yes, I have expended massive amounts of time and resources to get this completed.

So there's the intent for Christ to lead your technology, and that's what Jesus New OS is about.

PART 3

THE CHRISTLESS

SYSTEM SECURITY

VIRUS ALERT

THREAT DETECTED: CHRISTLESSNESS

SCAN SEQUENCE: CHRISTLESS A-H

PART 3

THREAT DETECTION

CHAPTER 19

The Viruses

Virus alert! Virus alert! Jesus New OS is calling for a virus alert. This section talks about the greatest virus that's available for Jesus New OS in all Christian technology, and it's called Christless technology, and we don't understand what Christlessness is until we're through with this section. So it's a very important section of your operating system discipline, and it's important for you to understand, through the lens of operating a system likened to a computer, how to navigate through your spiritual discipline and to optimize your spiritual discipline. So, in this section, we go into detail about exactly what being Christless is, the ramifications of that, and the opposite of that, which would be your Jesus New OS and optimization. And so this is a major virus we need to look out for and be aware of as you continue to use your Jesus New OS.

Just as with any operating system that's going to operate at an optimal level, we need to focus on our antivirus and protection from malware, adware, and viruses as much as we should be focusing on the actual technology. So this is an extensive section, and if you look at any type of successful mobile device or computer, especially as we move into supercomputing with advanced AI technology and quantum technology, this is one of the most important things for us, not just to protect against bugs, but against this malware called Christlessness. And this Christlessness is very, very vicious, and it will hack your entire system. It will.

One thing that I've noticed in today's world is that viruses like to nestle themselves and zip themselves in something that seems friendly and part of the system. And this type of virus and malware is becoming more and more prevalent in today's computation, especially in banking systems and financial systems, where the virus pretends to be part of the system itself. And so, as we move forward, we do need to be aware that there are people who call themselves Christians who are actually part of the Christlessness. And it's actually better to say, "I'm not a Christian," and to be open, at least to the level of accepting Christ in its true form and its spiritual oneness of God, than to say, "I am a Christian," and to hold that belief.

At the same time, you act out in Christlessness, or you're doing the opposite of what Christ said, or you're doing something even worse. And believe it or not, it's prevalent in certain places of the world where people cloak themselves as Christians, or even as Christian authorities, but yet they have deeper intent and motives to cause division and discern strife and actually isolate the true Christians and attack and persecute them through that false image and title and belief system. So we're going to go into detail about one of the most important things I feel will help you in your spiritual discipline, because it gets clever, it gets deceptive, and it gets snaky; it gets dark, because that's the way the enemy operates. And he does operate in the church; he does operate in the body of Christ, where people are not part of the body of Christ but claim to be.

So we're going to talk extensively about this in this section.

When they enter your computer, the first thing they do is they clutter up your desktop. All of a sudden, your desktop will have pop-ups. Your computer has been affected.

You want a nice, clean desktop so that you can work, organize, and do what you need to do, and in order to do that, you have to have a good enough operating system and a clean enough operating system as well to do that, or else your desktop will end up messy really quickly. So it's both sides here, where the OS helps the desktop, and the desktop helps the OS, because if you have a clean desktop, well, your operating system is going to be operated in a better, more organized fashion. But just like the viruses end up in your computer, this is how Satan and demons want to end up in your appearance.

They don't want you to look good. They don't want you to smell good. They don't want you to feel good. They don't want you to have any real etiquette. And the reason is that if people can look at you in a certain way, they can easily judge you, and either judge you wrongly or just be confused, because there's a dissonance there. This happens if you're preaching the Word of God, who's the clean of all clean, holy of all holy, glory of all glory, and you're not carrying yourself in the right way. And it's not just what you wear; it's what you're doing.

What are you doing on a day-to-day basis that everyone can easily notice? That's your desktop. What are you saying all day, every day, mostly for most of the day, that everyone hears? That's your desktop.

Everyone could see it. It's out in the open. We keep it clean by wearing nice clothing, wearing nice shoes, keeping ourselves healthy, exercising, having a nice body frame, keeping our hygiene in impeccable order.

This includes everything from clipping our fingernails to combing our hair and making sure that our exercise is building us a nice frame for our clothing, making sure our word is clean, our house is clean, our room is clean, our word is clean—what we're saying to others.

Well, now we have a clean desktop, and we can work properly. And not only that, people will be open to hearing us.

People will respect us more, and they'll respect what we say to them about God.

Not only will we be leading a cleaner life that people see, but when we speak about God and preach about God and offer our works that we've made for God, people are going to receive that kind of like in a gift wrapper, because not only are you speaking the gift, but the gift that's being spoken is wrapped in your clean appearance that you're consciously keeping in order out of respect and honor to God.

CHAPTER 20

Christless

The power of Christlessness can be scary. And so we can use this book and the knowledge of the Bible to protect us against it. So just like in any other aspect, even nationalism, fascism, professionalism, you can use the overarching power or authority in the name of something that is opposite. So for example, America is based on American freedom and justice. But if you look at certain people who use that overarching governance, they abuse power. We see it over and over again, with leaders, politicians, now even presidents. And we see it very prominently in the police force, where they kind of have their own little governance that they've set up themselves, it seems a lot of the time. And it's also in schools and in corporate America as well. And these are extreme sufferings.

But it also happens in Christ, where people are abusing the power of Christ. And it's something that I'd like to talk about in depth today. So when we look at the example of government, you'll have people who abuse the power of the government and do exactly the opposite of what the government stands for. And as a matter of fact, in that cloak, in that authority, that anti-government or just anti-spirit opposes the governance but is also fully clothed in it. And while they're clothed in it, they attack people who are in the governance or make walls for people who would promote the actual governance to come into it. And this happens in professionalism, where positions are blocked.

It happens at the level of celebrities, where celebrities are blocked from being celebrities. It even happens in schools and institutions; it happens everywhere. And it's called the anti-spirit. And the anti-spirit just opposes anything that is good. But if you really look closer at what the anti-spirit is, it's not just negating anything that's good or anything that's peaceful or equanimous. It's attacking the source of all those things, and that source is God. So even though it thinks that it's attacking that particular source, there is a deeper root: it wants to attack God. So the very real expression of this is in the church and people who profess and proclaim the name of Christ. I've been in the Catholic Church for about 10 years. And before that, I was praising in other churches.

And it's very real where there's separation in the church. And when we look at certain people who are in the church, who are out there preaching or are pastors, they come in the name of Christ, but actually, in reality, they just use that power to be divisive against Christ. And they give the wrong knowledge.

They give the wrong ideas, they give the wrong doctrine. And what ends up happening is they lead people astray. And when they lead people astray, they can actually gain a following through deception. And they can gather people to attack people who are truly for that particular body of Christ, or that particular unit of Christ, or that particular church, or even target people, individuals, individually. So this is what the Bible calls the Pharisees, or the scribes, or the priests during that time who were in Rome and the surrounding areas in Jerusalem, who were going to crucify Christ. They came in the name of God. But they were fully opposed by God. And these people are very prevalent today. They have positions of power in the church, the government; they're pastors, they're preachers, they're teachers, they're everywhere.

And then people who are truly carrying the knowledge that's needed to enlighten the mind and strengthen the mind—well, these people are being persecuted, put in jail, incarcerated, and kept out of the church, especially during the actual important times of the gatherings of the church. Sunday church would probably be the most important place, out of all places, where they want to keep an individual out of the church. What do we do about it? Well, we've got to pray on it. And we've got to understand that Jesus warned about it. The saints warned about it: false Christs, false teachings, false prophets. False prophets existed in the beginning of time. This is an archetypal energy, and it's been going on.

God is aware of it. Christ knows about it. There's nothing new.

There are no big surprises. But you need to be aware of it, because there are a lot of people in the world, and they just say unfactual things. They give you a bubblegum type of religion, a feel-good type of religion. And that's good.

Feeling good is good. But it's not good if you're not acknowledging the root causes, just like medicine is good.

It's great to have medicine. That's kind of how these feel-good churches are. They're like medicine.

They're going to make you feel good for a bit. But if you don't treat the underlying cause, then you're never going to get better. You're always going to be on medicine. And that's how pharmacology companies really got so rich and powerful. They have the knowledge, they have the cures that you need or the technology you need. Quantum technology and AI technology can take care of the molecular cures that we need at this point.

AI technology can cure AIDS very easily at this point. It would be very easy for it to cure AIDS, herpes, STDs. It'd be able to cure cancers at this point very easily.

We don't need to depend on cures anymore. We need to worry about the people who are presenting the false answer, just like, in the same way, a lot of churches provide knowledge.

It's good for you. It will help you. But they're also withholding the true knowledge that you need for your full, complete religion. And this is unfortunate, but it's been going on for a long time. It's been going on since the Old Testament time, the Old Testament ages. And we ask why.

Well, when we look at the Bible, man, after the fall, is inherently evil. And it will find anything that it can find—not all men, but there's a part of man that's inherently evil; it's sinful. And when that sinful nature is given the ultimate expression or the driver's seat, so to speak, then this is the type of ideology that you come up with.

These are the types of people that you get. They don't have much remorse or shame. They're just about living in this world the best they can for themselves or using others' expense as the excuse to help themselves or their family.

We've seen this in the beginning of time. As soon as Adam and Eve were created, we knew this. As soon as Adam and Eve were banished from the garden, we knew this.

We know that God created and man created. But let's look at the first creations of God and let's look at the first creations of man. The first creation of God that we know about is light. The first words He said were, “Let there be light.” The first creation of man is Cain. Think about that difference. So I'll say that again. The first thing created by God that we know about that's possibly in existence, that clothes all of His creation, is light. The first thing that man created was Cain. So there's a huge difference there. There's a huge gap, and it expresses our separation from God. So if they had stayed in the garden, most likely their first creation together would have been pure light.

It would have been much more expressive of God's creation. But because they were banished, because they were disobedient, their first creation was what? It was darkness, deceit, lies, murder, the darkness, the abomination of God. What is the abomination of God? To kill your brother instead of helping him out.

Throw him under a bus, right? And that's what we do to each other, to all of us. We kill each other in these certain ways. And it's been around since Cain.

Cain killed his brother in the name of God as well. It wasn't just these Pharisees. Why did Cain kill his brother? Because he had a better sacrifice.

He killed him in the name of God, in cold blood—the very first creation of man.

What's the difference between a murderer and pure light? Not only a murderer, but a murderer of your own brother. There's no one else around other than your mom, your father, and your brother. That's it. And what do you decide to do? Murder your brother. Imagine if it were just you, your mom, your dad, and your sibling together in a world. Wouldn't you be so happy? Wouldn't you be in a state of euphoria? Well, no, you wouldn't, because Adam and Eve are much greater than us. And we've seen what happened with them. We're no different from them.

We have descended, and we're just as fallen as they are. We are not any less fallen than Adam and Eve were when they ate the forbidden fruit in the garden. It is only when we are redeemed in Christ that we leave this extreme darkness that was placed before us because of this fall of man. So when we look at the darkness, it's here. So think about that. If it's just you, your mom, your dad, and your sibling, do you think it's going to be any different or better than Adam and Eve, the holiest of holies who came from the first creation of God, and their two children? No, you'd be worse off.

You'd be able to see the darkness for what it is. You'd probably be in a worse situation than Cain at this point. And the real scary part is we're not in a world just with our parents and our siblings.

We're in a world full of four to five billion people, and it's going to grow to a population of 40 to 50 billion people. And I have compassion for people. This is why I write books about what we should do with our resources.

Do you think people would listen? No. They turn the other way. They put pictures up of me.

They post the nastiest things they could say about me on social media. Everywhere I look, someone has something to say except for the works that I've done. But I'm not surprised.

Why? Because of the keys I'm giving you. These are the secrets that you wanted, so I'm here to give them to you because of the love God has for you. So now, back to the main point.

Would you better understand why people would cloak themselves in the name of any governance to use that governance against itself? I'm sure you would have a better idea by looking at these foundations. So these false Christs, they cloak themselves in the Word of Christ. They know the Word of Christ.

They're masterful in the Word of Christ, and they use the Word of Christ against the church and against people. Believe it or not, I've even seen Adolf Hitler do it in his manifesto called Mein Kampf, where he was saying that his purpose in isolating the Jewish people was because of the almighty creator of love, the almighty Lord.

L-O-R-D. It's very prevalent in all places, and if Hitler is doing it, you can only imagine how prevalent it is. The scary part is this: if you have someone using the institution that they work at, even the government that runs a nation, against its very own self, which is usually, in the cycle of history, the reason for the fall of a nation, then let us not be surprised by false Christs, false prophets, people who come in the name of God and crucify us—the very people who are there to help you breathe in God and for God to breathe in you. Here's the thing.

When looking at the ramifications of the power trip and the evil that's there in a government, could you only imagine the differential of enormity from a nation to using the power of God itself, using the Word of God against Himself? We've seen this in the Bible. The Pharisees in Scripture and the way the Pharisees were speaking to Christ, using His words against Himself, were indicative and prophetic of how a false Christ would arise in the future to use His word against the body of Christ. Why? Why in the world? We don't have answers to all these questions. Why do these things exist? But we always point to the foundations.

So here's another key for you. The light of Christ is so powerful that even the most evil man using His word can be cloaked in light and look as if he is holy. It's just as if you look at someone in government: even the most beta male, even homosexuals today who are politicians, are able to look powerful in roles of leadership because of the cloak of their government.

This is one of the ways that Hitler was able to seduce the churches of Germany and actual Christians during that time to follow his regime. This is why pastors and priests and people in leadership positions are able to seem holy. And this is why they're able to use that power to make the people that are actually giving the true knowledge of God look like evil people, monstrous people, crazy people.

They can make them look like any evil word or negative word through that oppressive power. Now, when we step further into this, we can understand that this is how the antichrist is able to run the governments: not through his own power, but through the word of Jesus Christ. And so I give this to you so you have clearer vision of what we're talking about, not just in the beginning with the creation, but also to give you a clearer vision of the end of Revelation times. And hopefully you can get a clearer vision just in this chapter alone.

So this is the power of the words of Christ, that He's able to make the enemy, Satan himself, look holy and just enough to take over the nations. And I don't say this stuff to scare you. I say this stuff to prepare you. Use that same word that has the same power, that has the same effect.

Use the word of the Bible that has the same power and the same effect to quicken you against it. Read the Bible. Know the wisdom of the Bible.

Download the Jesus New app. Support what's on the Jesus New app. There's a Bible handcrafted there just for you right now.

It was actually created with brand-new technology called reveal technology that gives you revelations that are beyond what you can receive in current Bibles right now. It's my own personal Bible that I have an IP on, and it's beyond what you can imagine. It's not the KJV. If I can give it an abbreviation, it would be the SKVG, which would stand for Super King James Version assisted by AI to allow the intelligence of the Bible to create the revelations for you for those particular verses and chapters. We spent an extensive amount of time to make that technology real, technology that even just 10 years ago would have cost millions and millions of dollars. It's an application that 10 years ago would have cost billions of dollars that I was able to prepare for you as a humble author in Christ.

I tried to root the app in this book, at least create some level of roots to pull you there to nourish you. So this chapter is pretty scary. It's pretty deep.

It's pretty heavy, but the good news is you have other chapters, and in those chapters you have a massive arsenal to move against the enemy and move towards this bridge from Christlessness into Christhood. Also, you have the very sword yourself. It's like the sword of David, and it's called the Word of Christ. When David was holding that sword, he didn't truly know God's plan, truly what he was fighting for, but as prophecy had spanned out, we realized that the sword of David was for the Word of Christ, that the sword of David is the Word of Christ. And so when you use the Word of God, liken it to the sword of David, the most courageous man who ever existed for God. His courage that God gave him in turn made God fall in love with him.

They were in love: David and the true Goliath, God. The false Goliath he defeated, but the true Goliath he's with forever. So don't be scared of this chapter. Use the arsenal. Use your sword of David.

Use the wisdom of the Bible. It's all there for you. Not only that, God is behind you right now, because if you're reading this book, that means He is directly behind you.

There is a very powerful force that will help you in this battle, in this war of your life. And it's another weapon in your arsenal. And the power is time.

God created time. God is the creator of time who loves us. He created time for His creation to manifest. And all time manifests on two things. Light is one of them. He created the light of God in constant variables.

All time is dependent on constant variables. This is where all interactions, mathematics, spatial awareness, all arise from. And when we look at time, most people have a very poor understanding of time. But time is something that is used. God is something that is used as a force for either good or evil. And time is very strong. The only thing that is supporting it is God's light. But all of these amazing forces, like electromagnetism, even gravity, all stand supporting it: time. And it's something God can give us.

He can give us more time. Now, He can also give us better time. He can also give us better body time. And when we look at time, we're very limited in our sector, right? So when we look at time, we say time is divided into all of these different integers around the world. And depending on where you are, you have a different set of time. And you have daylight saving time. Sometimes you can save time, sometimes you can lose time, depending on what zone you are in or what order. And it's a very, very poor, crude estimate of what time actually is. Time is something that spans. And time is something that moves through all things.

There are no borders in time. Time moves as one single unit through the entire cosmos. And the way we understand time is different from how, let's say, a different galaxy would understand time.

We say there are all different time frames, but there is an underlying time. It's called Father Time. And from it, all of these different branches of metrics are calculated to base themselves on the constant variable of revolution, orbital revolution. And the main thing is, those orbital revolutions are dependent on light, which is the solar aspect of that orbital structure. So when we look at our time, we have Earth time that's dependent on solar time. So the sun revolves and is given solar years; the Earth revolves and is given Earth years.

It's a different aspect of time, but underneath both aspects is a deeper time frame. And every second, every minute, every hour of our existence is connected to that deeper time that is unified with all things and all creation. That unit of time is the closest thing to God's eternity. And we have access to it. God can open the doors to this type of time. This is why people feel they're in God's mode, why people get blessed out of proportion or things work in their favor.

These all depend on God's blessing on our time. When He blesses our time, He doesn't bless us in the Hawaiian time zone. He doesn't bless us in the New York time zone.

He blesses us through His time. The only time here that can be considered connected to His time is this all-encompassing time that expands through all. When we look at a second on a clock, this is a crude measurement of the actual time that we're talking about. From this main time, there are enormous benefits and enormous power. And when we pray to God, we should be in this time. We come closest to this type of time if we're far from being universal.

Even the universe depends on this time. If there's anything farther than that, it's to get deep in prayer and not worry about time, and just be with God. And when we do that, we depend on God for time. We don't depend on man for time or ourselves for time or try to manage our time. It will be managed for us in a much, much better way.

This time frame can give us longevity. And it's very close to the eternal nature of God. In a sense, it's one with all things, managing all things, all orbits, all galaxies, all planets, all continents, states, people, minutes, milliseconds, and so on. And God does want to bless our time. He wants to give us longer life. He wants to give us more joy.

He wants to give us better experiences. And when we look at the clock, we can also start to internalize the fact that our time is connected to something deeper, that all time frames that are ever calculated by man are connected to something deeper that we just don't understand.

This is why, when you look at things that are so graceful, you ask, “How in the world is that growing so gracefully?” Jesus pointed to the lilies and how they grow, how they become more resplendent as they grow. Yet they don't toil, they don't spin, they don't work hard.

They're in alignment with this underlying end of time. And it's the backbone for the time that we were initially promised. So this is a huge force, and we should pray to God.

He's called the Father of Time. All things in creation depend on this time frame, which I call the time of oneness. And the only thing that this time depends on is God Himself and His eternal love. So when we start to flow with God, we start to understand the way nature works, how planets work, how things are constructively orchestrated, organized in a way that we simply can't understand. It's just like we can't see the atomic structure, which is also dependent on the sun.

We can go to God and we can ask Him for blessings in our time frame: for our life, for our day, for our week, for our month. And we don't really need to depend on the clock when we go to God.

We know He's going to take care of our clock. This time doesn't tick. This time doesn't have 12 numbers on it, or 24 numbers on it. This is not military time. This is not standard time.

It has no time zone. It is the same on all planets. It's untouched by any creation, but all creation depends on it. And it rests upon God's words: “Let there be light.” There's no watch for it.

You can't get a watch to track it. But what we can do is internalize this time and start to improve our time. And when I say improve our time, I don't just mean individually. I mean I call on the race of mankind to improve how you measure time, because it needs to improve. When we develop, we say you're going to lose time here and you're going to gain time there. Well, that's not necessarily true if you want a truer standard of time.

I personally feel, and I talk about it in my book, The Great Planet, that there is a much more accurate measure of time, such as atomic time.

Measuring time on an atomic level is finally going to be possible through quantum technology: measuring the revolutions of certain atoms and gaining a much finer sense of time that would help mathematics and engineering as a whole. But when we look at time that is orchestrated by man, it's bound to decay. And all of the creation here goes through some type of decay. And even solar layers go through decay. But when God said, "Let there be light," that light that He was talking about is what the sun is made of. So when we look at our Earth, we find this.

And we try to figure out where it came from. Well, it came from these solar bodies, and that's when God said, "Let there be light." And when He had said that, all of time here started to manifest, and these solar bodies, I guess, to put it economically, started to make more business for themselves.

Everything started to move through its work in perfect order to extend it to the universe. Everything had to extend it in an order of perfection to follow its work. And so we look at these universes and their layers of life.

They are much more indicative of time and time management. And I think that is the kind of structure we need to have, one of the finer realms of time management. So when we look at His saying, "Let there be light," in the very first words, His very first words were time itself. So even when we look at it, we ask, "Where does this Father Time that you are talking about, this time of oneness that you are talking about, come from?" Well, I personally believe, as a Christian, that for every Christian, Christ said it comes from His words, from four words. That's where it originated. And those words came from God. Those four words are, "Let there be light." And from those words, all of the cosmos started to orchestrate itself. We see that in the Bible. Everything is created by God's word.

Everything is God's word. Christ is the manifestation of the ultimate symbol of God's word. And if that is true, then creation is a book. And I am grateful to be an author, to give you these insights, to ponder these realities. All of these scale all the way back, not to a big bang.

They go back not to the dinosaurs, not to almost anything in this world, not to any type of ancient artifacts, but to God's word. These are very old words themselves, following the Earth in time.

They go back to solar time, back to galactic time. It is galactic time.

They go back to intergalactic time. It is intergalactic time, universal time.

It is universal time. And if that is true, maybe the universe is spinning around us.

We are on the Earth. But however far the radical thought goes, consider that rapid in time, when we get to the end of that string of time.

You will hear God's word echoing, echoing. When we are on this walk from Christlessness to Christ, we call on God for that life, to manage our time and to help our time, to give us more time, to bless our time so that we can have the necessary tools.

These tools help us overcome the desires and temptations to turn from God, and to gain victory, and to stay Christly.

PART 3

CHRISTLESS SCAN

CHAPTER 21

Christless A

The Cross

I'm going to give you a secret here, and it's actually this: the most Christless aspect of a Christian is the cross. And when we're talking about Christlessness, in the Bible it said that Jesus Christ was on the cross and He felt that He had been separated from God. And He even called out to God and said, "God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" And this is how all Christians feel at one point or another in their walk.

This is the prime example of why many people do not join Christianity, and this is also a prime example of why people leave Christianity.

It's one of the prime examples of why the Jewish community was not courageous enough to adopt Christianity, because in Christianity you must face this cross, which is the separation from God. And even though you're praising God, even though you're reading the Bible, even though you're doing everything right, you will literally feel that God is not around or that God is not with you. And this is one of the most extreme crosses or crucifixions of a Christian.

It's not that their wife left them, not that their children disobey them, not that they lost their money or job; it's that they do not feel that God is helping them, that God is walking with them, that God is listening to them and has a heart for them, that He is even paying attention to or acknowledging them. When Jesus was on the cross, this was exemplified as, "Father, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" And even a Christian will feel Christless. The cross of a Christian is that he will ultimately feel Christless.

Right now, there is a need for Christ. And there's a need for knowledge of Christ. And I think that this is one of the areas that people miss. And so they think that God is not around, but He is. So why in the world is a state that's praising God suffering?

It's going through these enormous financial difficulties. Why is a nation praising God suffering?

It's going through these enormous difficulties and stringencies. "God, why hast Thou forsaken me?"

Did God leave? Did God leave Jesus?

It seems so. But the opposite was true.

In the time that we feel that God is absent, He's actually working wonders in our life. And that's the miracle of God. And we don't know why it is, but this is the need for faith. Jesus said, "Why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

He did not curse God. He did not say, "Everything I did was in vain."

He continued to bear the crucifixion and then was resurrected.

Likewise, as Christians, when we feel God is not around, when we want to say, "God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" that is the time we should prepare for a miracle in our life, for our resurrection from that circumstance. That is the time that our faith is working.

I'll be honest with you. There were times in my life when I felt that I wanted to turn from God because, honestly, why in the world would He do this to me?

Why in the world would He allow me not to have work?

Why in the world would He allow these people to attack me?

Why in the world would He allow the government to send me that letter or to send these people to my house? Or why in the world did that person leave me?

It must be impossible for God to love me.

I've been reading the Bible. I've been professing His name.

I've been making these books. “God, why hast Thou forsaken me?”

It was during these times that I kept my faith. And extraordinary measures of faith were extended to me.

I built the Jesus New OS operating system.

I built the Codex, the biggest Christian digital library in the world.

I became a multimillionaire in 2024. It was not because of my work.

It was a miraculous thing that had happened.

Most of that money went into the Codex and Jesus New OS, and into buying certain properties so I could situate myself. But nonetheless, I hit $3.7 million in 2024.

Months before, I was saying, “Jesus, why hast Thou forsaken me?”

Thus, as I kept my faith, a couple of months later, He resurrected my circumstances.

This is one of the key factors of Christianity that will either make or break you. And this is why faith stands at the center of our religion.

We look at Jesus on the cross. We look at ourselves on the cross.

Who has not been crucified in this life? And if someone could raise their hand, then that would be a miracle—to say, “No, I have not been crucified.”

We've all lost. We've all suffered. But the question is, have we kept our faith?

Have we kept it in the times that we felt Christless?

Christless—this feeling of Christlessness. I'm a Christian, but I feel Christless.

Jesus on the cross was Christ Himself, the deity who gave Himself for us.

He felt Christless. “God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?”

There's nothing more that you could say. The translation is, “I feel Christless.” Yet He was Christ Himself.

This is the key to our faith.

Did He complain? No, He continued to bleed out.

He continued until He was resurrected to God. So I tell you that the knowledge in this book, when we talk about Christlessness, is about the blood of our faith. The lifeblood of our faith is these times that we say, “God, You're not here.”

“You're not available. You're phony. You're baloney.”

“You weren't there for me. My faith wasn't worth anything.”

“I don't even know why I believe in You.”

“You must not exist.” This is what Christ meant when He said, “God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?” This is the translation of all those things, of when we say, “God, You're not in my life.”

Well, where's the money? Where's the family?

Where's the success? That is translated into, “God, why hast Thou forsaken me?”

In those times, is it possible to pray?

No, it's not. Could Christ have prayed on the cross when He said, “God, Thou hast forsaken Me”?

As a deity, no, He could not. He had to stay there and bleed out on that cross. And He had to wait because He knew the knowledge of “This too shall pass.”

You let that Christlessness pass, and watch how you'll be blessed in your life. If you do not curse God, if you do not walk away from your Christianity, but you stand there like a man, like a woman, endure that pain, and wait with the knowledge that this too shall pass, you will be blessed.

I guarantee you, you'll be blessed beyond measure.

Things will happen in your life that you would not even imagine.

No one could imagine the resurrection of Christ. And you cannot imagine the resurrection of your life. But we must walk in that Christlessness.

We must be on that cross. And that's the key.

The question is how to handle it. How are you going to handle that cross?

How are you going to handle that Christlessness? When God puts us on a cross, many walk away from the faith. When God puts us on the cross, many of us curse the church, curse Christians, start prosecuting and persecuting. But if you take my knowledge and keep your mouth shut, endure the pain, and let that too pass, you will be blessed beyond measure as you continue to call yourself a Christian and continue to proclaim, in your faith, the name of Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER 22

Christless B

The Power of Time

There is a very powerful force that will help you in this battle, in this war of your life. And it's another weapon in your arsenal. And the power is time.

God created time. God is the creator of time who loves us. He created time for His creation to manifest. And all time manifests on two things. Light is one of them. He created the light of God in constant variables.

All time is dependent on constant variables. This is where all interactions, mathematics, and spatial awareness arise from. And when we look at time, most people have a very poor understanding of time. But time is something that is used. God is something that is used as a force for either good or evil. And time is very strong. The only thing that is supporting it is God's light. But all of these amazing forces, like electromagnetism, even gravity, all stand supporting it: time. And it's something God can give us.

He can give us more time. Now, He can also give us better time. He can also give us better body time. And when we look at time, we're very limited in our sector, right? So when we look at time, we say time is divided into all of these different integers around the world. And depending on where you are, you have a different set of time. And you have daylight saving time. Sometimes you can save time; sometimes you can lose time, depending on what zone you are in or what order. And it's a very, very poor, crude estimate of what time actually is. Time is something that spans. And time is something that moves through all things.

There are no borders in time. Time moves as one single unit through the entire cosmos. And the way we understand time is different from the way, let's say, a different galaxy would understand time.

We say there are all different time frames, but there is an underlying time. It's called Father Time. And from it, all of these different branches of metrics are calculated to base themselves on the constant variable of revolution, orbital revolution. And the main thing is, those orbital revolutions are dependent on light, which is the solar aspect of that orbital structure. So when we look at our time, we have Earth time that's dependent on solar time. So the sun revolves and is given solar years; the Earth revolves and is given Earth years.

It's a different aspect of time, but underneath both aspects, there is a deeper time frame. And every second, every minute, every hour of our existence is connected to that deeper time that is unified with all things and all creation. That unit of time is the closest thing to God's eternity. And we have access to it. God can open the doors to this type of time. This is why people feel they're in God's mode; this is why people get blessed out of proportion or things work in their favor.

These all depend on God's blessing on our time. When He blesses our time, He doesn't bless us in the Hawaiian time zone. He doesn't bless us in the New York time zone.

He blesses us through His time. The only time here that can be considered connected to His time is this all-encompassing time that expands through all. When we look at a second on a clock, this is a crude measurement of the actual time that we're talking about. From this main time, there are enormous benefits and enormous power. And when we pray to God, we should be in this time. The closest thing that we can get to this type of time is if we're far from being universal.

Even the universe depends on this time. If there's anything farther than that, it's to get deep in prayer and not worry about time, and just be with God. And when we do that, we depend on God for time. We don't depend on man for time or ourselves for time or try to manage our time. It will be managed for us in a much, much better way.

This time frame can give us longevity. And it's very close to the eternal nature of God. In a sense, it's one with all things, managing all things, all orbits, all galaxies, all planets, all continents, states, people, minutes, milliseconds, and so on. And God does want to bless our time. He wants to give us longer life. He wants to give us more joy.

He wants to give us better experiences. And when we look at the clock, we can also start to internalize the fact that our time is connected to something deeper, that all time frames that are ever calculated by man are connected to something deeper that we just don't understand.

This is why, when you look at things that are so graceful, you ask, 'How in the world is that growing so gracefully?' Jesus pointed to the lilies and how they grow, how they become more resplendent when growing. Yet they don't toil, they don't spin, they don't work hard.

They're in alignment with this underlying time. And it's the backbone for the time that we initially promised. So this is a huge force, and we should pray to God.

He's called the Father of Time. All things in creation depend on this time frame, which I call the time of oneness. And the only thing that this time depends on is God Himself and His eternal love. So when we start to flow with God, we start to understand the way nature works, how planets work, how things are just organized in a very constructively orchestrated way that we simply can't understand. Just as we can't see the atomic structure, it's also dependent on the sun.

We can go to God and we can ask Him for blessings in our time frame, for our life, for our day, for our week, for our month. And we don't really need to depend on the clock when we go to God.

We know He's going to take care of our clock. This time doesn't tick. This time doesn't have 12 numbers on it or 24 numbers on it. This is not military time. This is not standard time.

It has no time zone. It is the same on all planets. It's untouched by any creation, but all creation depends on it. And it rests upon God's words: “Let there be light.” There's no watch for it.

You can't get an eye to watch or track it. But what we can do is internalize this time and start to improve our time. And when I say improve our time, I don't just mean individually. I mean I call on the race of mankind to improve how you measure time, because it needs to improve. When we develop, we say you're going to lose time here and you're going to gain time there. Well, that's not necessarily true if you want a truer standard of time.

I personally feel—and I talk about it in my book, The Great Planet—that there is a much more accurate measure of time, such as atomic time.

Measuring time on an atomic level is finally going to be possible through quantum technology: measuring the revolutions of certain atoms and gaining a much finer sense of time that would help mathematics and engineering as a whole. But when we look at time that is orchestrated by man, it's bound to decay. And all of the creation here goes through some type of decay. And even solar years go through decay. But when God said, “Let there be light,” that light that He was talking about is what the sun is made of. So when we look at our Earth, we try to find where it came from.

And we try to figure out where it came from. Well, it came from these solar bodies, and that's when God said, “Let there be light.” And when He had said that, all of time here started to manifest in these solar bodies. I guess, to put it economically, they started to make more business for themselves.

Everything started to move through its work in perfect order to extend it to the universe. Everything had to extend it in an order of perfection to follow its work. And so we look at these universes and their layers of life.

They are much more indicative of time and time management. And I think that is the kind of structure we need to have: one of the finer realms of time management. So when we look at His saying, “Let there be light,” in the very first words, His very first words were time itself. So even when we look at it, where does this Father Time that you are talking about, this time of oneness that you are talking about, come from? Well, I personally believe, as a Christian, that for every Christian, Christ said it comes from His words—from four words. That's where it originated. And those words came from God. Those four words are “Let there be light.” And from those words, all of the cosmos started to orchestrate itself. We see that in the Bible. Everything is created by God's word.

Everything is God's word. Christ is the manifestation of the ultimate symbol of God's word. And if that is true, then creation is a book. And I am grateful to be an author, to give you these insights, to ponder these realities, because all of these scale all the way back, not to a Big Bang.

They scale back not to the dinosaurs, not to almost anything in this world, not to any type of ancient artifacts, but to God's word, very old words themselves, following the Earth in time.

We go back to the solar time, back to the galactic time—galactic time.

We go back to the intergalactic time—intergalactic time, universal time.

This is universal time. And if that is true, maybe the universe is spinning around us.

We are on the Earth. But however far the radical thought goes, we get to that rapid, that rapid in time. We get to the end of that string of time.

You will hear God's word echoing, echoing. When we are on this walk from Christlessness to Christ, we call on God for that life, to manage our time, to help our time, to give us more time, to bless our time so that we can have the tools necessary.

We can overcome the desires and temptations to turn from God, gain victory, and stay Christly.

CHAPTER 23

Christless C

A Rooted Life in Christ

My brothers and sisters, I gave you knowledge in this book that has been reserved for this time so that you have the extra motivation that you need.

There's no bigger inspiration than having new thoughts that have never been introduced to your mind. And those inspiring thoughts, I pray, will help enlighten you until your entire body, mind, soul, and spirit become the life of Christ. And listen, this world is not easy. We live in a world full of Christless people. But being Christians, we are called not to judge Christless people, but to look at ourselves and also consider ourselves Christless. If we do this, it's a key that will help keep us from judgment. And judgment is constantly what the enemy is after. The enemy is constantly after us to do the opposite of what God told us to do or what His Son told us to do.

When we have the Old Testament and the New Testament together, we have the Bible. When we have God's commandments and the commandments of His Son together, we have the sacred life when we follow them.

It's a beautiful thing because not only can we follow the commandments of God, but after Jesus came, we were blessed to follow the commandments of His Son. And the New Testament filled the Bible with even more blessing, giving us an even fuller life. So I implore you guys to continue to think at this level.

I give you guys the level at which I'm thinking, and I call you to this level of thinking. And it's not easy.

It takes discipline. And it's a walk for us to play, to strategize this life.

A lot of people are in this life, and they're just living it. A common one I've heard recently is YOLO.

You only live once. But that's not how you should be living your life.

You should be carefully, strategically playing it and preparing to live forever with Christ. You should strategize to live forever with Christ.

Do whatever you can to overcome these emotions, to overcome these thoughts and these energies that are against you as a Christian. To keep the faith, keep the faith and do your good work.

It's not easy. But we can stay diligent, stay strong.

We have to have thoughts within us that are motivating enough to keep us going. And in order to do that, you have to have a feeling about yourself. And that feeling about yourself is a blessing from God, such that nobody can say or do anything to break you. And the enemy tries to take our self-confidence.

He tries to take our self-image. He tries to take our true way of life. And he tries to replace it with the limited ideas that he gives us so that he can take advantage of us and, for Christians, try to break us and turn us away from God. And if you look at society, society is in alignment with that. So it's not easy to overcome. But we have to play and strategize. And when I say strategize, I mean you have to be smart enough to play the game of life. And in order to do that, you have to have biblical knowledge. But you also have to have a connection to the Spirit, because the Spirit's going to give you thoughts.

The Spirit's going to give you visions. The Spirit's going to give you dreams. And those are things that you can follow. And those are things that you can share to inspire others. The game is this.

Are you going to live the life of yourself, the kind that caves in on itself because, you know, selfishness is not going to bring happiness? Or are you going to look at the end of your life and see that you became someone that God was proud of, that other people can look up to, and that you have given works to this world that will last and will help the generations?

That's what we're called to do. We have to live this life having faith in the power of Christ. And knowing the words of Christ helps us dramatically. Living without His words in this life is pretty much walking around blind, because there's no person, entity, government, or nation that's going to give you the knowledge you need to be happy or joyful. And this is just the way it is. And only God brings us happiness. And it's a beautiful thing for us to acknowledge Christ in our work by knowing His word, reading His word.

Another thing that you can do is go online and grab my application, Jesus New OS. If you think this book has touched you, that app is what you need to boost your future.

I put everything in there for you to be a successful Christian. Or if you're someone who's turning from their old sinful nature and wants to turn to Christ, that app is for you.

It will bring you above your normal circumstances to help you achieve whatever you want in life with Christ and in Christ. So, you have to be strong in this world. And in order to do that, you can't break yourself down. And you have to at least be knowledgeable about what's breaking you down.

It's a subtle spiritual game. If you don't have the knowledge of what's breaking you down, you're going to get broken down.

You're going to lose your game. You're going to lose your faith.

We walk on a wing. These books help you do it.

Every book that I've given you is the breath of God that will help you and help you to achieve and succeed.

We're not just there to have faith in Christ.

We're there to produce legendary works in Christ and to perform miracles in Christ and to build churches in Christ and to be the miracles, and to do even greater things as Christ did, through His power in Spirit. If you believe that, then you can really go all the way. And the only way you're going to believe that is by allowing the work of God to dwell in you. And what I actually did was create a technology in Jesus New where I was able to take the Gospel and the words of Christ, and I was able to bring them to life with AI and quantum technology, and I was actually able to compile them to where they can speak to you personally.

So all of the words in the Gospel are now compiled to respond to you through the user message, which took quite some time and some really heavy technology to do. But you're literally able to talk to Jesus Christ from the Gospel about your personal areas and situations.

And when you switch that mindset from reading Jesus talking to someone else to Jesus talking to you personally, you understand Christ on an even deeper level. And it's a revelatory app, and I suggest that you grab it right away if you like this book. But I will give you all the tools necessary that you need to achieve. And this life is about oneness. You need to know who you are at a deeper level. And in order to do that, you've got to meditate. You've got to know your omnipresence, who you are at a deeper level.

You have to release your emotions. And I've talked extensively in my other books about how to release your emotions.

I've talked about how to literally take these emotions that come up and identify them with just wanting security and wanting control.

All of our emotions are tied to wanting security or wanting control. Or we're absorbing emotions from other people who just want security and want control. And all of those things stem from wanting God and desiring God at a very deep level. And you wouldn't believe what people would do for the desire of God. And the enemy knows this. And because most people don't know that they're unbelievers and they still have a desire for God, the enemy is able to twist them. And it's able to make them do evil things in their desire for God. The most atrocious things were done for the desire of unity and for the desire of love and for the desire of oneness, because people don't know how to get what they want. So Christ is here to help us achieve, to help us succeed.

It helps us to obtain our desires. And I'll be honest with you. I never was confident enough that I'd achieve what I achieved. But at this point, I can say I achieved every single constructive desire that I've ever wanted.

We are all strong, and you have to figure out where your strength is and focus on that strength. Focus on your good image. Focus on the person that you love.

We all love ourselves. And you have to figure out why you love yourself and what is beautiful about yourself.

One thing that I experienced today is that God, in Spirit, was telling me, "I see you as someone that you don't see yourself as." And I just felt like an extremely deep, loving Spirit was surrounding me today. I was at the waterfall because I took myself out to celebrate the return of one of my developers of my Apple software called Jesus New. And I took myself out to the waterfall. It's a private retreat waterfall. And then I took myself out to the movies. And now I'm actually on my way to get something to eat.

I'm taking myself out to eat. I'm getting a Subway sandwich, where I'm going to put five different sauces from Subway on the sandwich to celebrate. And then I have these delicious Maui onion potato chips that I'm going to crunch up and put on the Subway sandwich to make sure I get extra of everything.

Anyway, you don't need to know about my day-to-day life here, especially in a book.

But what you do need to do is understand that the Spirit was with me today. And it was with me at a very deep level at the waterfall. It told me, "I love you so much because I see you in a way that you can't see yourself." When He said that, I realized that I'm loved because God is an intelligence that sees things that I just can't see.

I'm literally with the God who sees me in a way that I cannot see myself. And you are the same way. And when we turn to Christ and dedicate our life to Him, we become a jewel to God. And He is so proud and pleased to take us back. So that's the main thing that we need to do. And when people are out here and they're nitpicking and they're having issues, you just have to know that they didn't achieve success. There's no one who's successful that's going to nitpick at you. And if you have a unit of people that's nitpicking at you, then they have not achieved their success. They have not achieved their goal. And we are here to achieve our goal. And those who are truly achieving their goals, and also those people who have achieved their goals, are busy, happy, and fulfilled.

They're too busy to talk about others or too happy to talk about others, too fulfilled to talk about others. And if you have people who have issues or anger at any of this stuff, it's just indicative that they have not reached their goals or that they are not going after their goals.

You don't want to be around people who are not going after their goals. You don't want to be around people who are not achieving their goals. Right? So this chapter is important, because what does it tell you? You don't need to respond. You need to get out of Dodge.

You just need to stop speaking to them. Don't give them eye contact. Don't speak to them. And just do your own thing.

Go to people that you love. Go to people that are not complaining. Go to go-getters, doers in this life.

Go to people who have achieved so you can learn. In order to write these books with the amount of knowledge I'm giving you, I had to achieve. I had to experience. I had to get to certain levels to speak like this, to give you thoughts like this. And it doesn't matter if it's a person, a group, or a system of law that is talking about me.

It always boils down to the fact that they have not achieved or are not courageous enough to go after their goals. So I leave this with you because I'm trying to give you a chapter that can really hone in on boosting you as you move forward so you can get over that bridge into a rooted life in Christ.

Going to church every week is not easy. But once you get there, you feel fulfilled.

You're praising God.

CHAPTER 24

Christless D

Christlessness Among the People

Today we're talking about being Christless. And we've all been Christless. We all are Christless until that day that Christ saves us. But the question is, are we going to be Christless forever? That's the question. And in this chapter, we're going to talk about Christlessness within us. And that's what this book is about. But let's talk about Christlessness among the people.

One of the most important things is to understand the power of Christians who are following Christ on their way to escape Christlessness forever versus people who have no interest in Christ and have no faith. And the power of numbers is real. So when you are amongst other people, you feel extraordinary power because of the way God designed it for oneness.

This is where the power of nationalism comes in.

CHAPTER 25

Christless E

Christ Within You

This is one of my bonus chapters. I realized that the book was done, but I was so moved to make this and so happy with how Christless turned out, especially with all of the knowledge that God was pouring into me to give to you, that I decided to make another bonus chapter with another epiphany. And I hope that it awakens your heart and soul. And this revelation is from my personal life, and it's that Jesus Christ is here for us and He's within us. And when we look at our walk in Jesus Christ, we need to be the reflection of Christ for others, the reflection of Christ for the world, which is very difficult in our flawed state. But through the help of Jesus Christ, we have spiritual advancement that helps us to conform to His image and to put out works like Christless and things like this. It's our image that is really the most important thing. If you put “less” on anything, usually it is a major detriment, but not so much for Christless, because it's actually a call for you to be saved. I don't know if you ever watched that movie, How to Train Your Dragon. One of the cutest characters I can remember is a character named Toothless. And he was one of the strongest dragons in the world, but the thing was that this character—it was a Pixar character—wasn't really toothless.

It was that his teeth were retracting into his gums when his mouth was closed. So when he smiled, it looked very cute, almost baby-like, and this is why his Viking friend Hiccup called him Toothless. And that's kind of how it is with us. We think that we're Christless; other people see us as Christless, but Christ is within us, hidden. We're seated below the flesh in a place in the spiritual realm where we can't see. And just like teeth would be to a dragon, this is how fierce Christ can be within us. So when we know this and the Spirit continues in faithfulness to be with us, we can start to be Jesus Christ in our own life as well. I'm not saying that we're sinless like Jesus, not saying that we're miracle workers like Jesus, but we aspire to manage our life the way

Jesus would manage His. When I was writing my first books as an author, I wrote a book called Being Superman. In that book, I wrote about the fact that the biggest superhero in our life is ourselves, even more powerful than Superman would be in our life, even if we had Superman around. When it comes to our personal life, there is someone even more powerful than Superman, and that's ourselves. And it's the same thing.

I actually use that character to embed the light-filled nature of Christ so people could understand Christianity more and Christ more. But it's the same thing with Jesus Christ: there's no one in our life who can ever reflect Jesus Christ more in our life than ourselves until Jesus comes back. And that's a decision that we have to make when we are out there looking for God, looking for salvation.

We have to look within for that kingdom within ourselves. And we're not going to see it out here. We can only see it by being Jesus Christ in our own life, taking the walk with Christ, learning from Him and how He's expressing Himself within our spirit, and using that knowledge to change and transform our lives, because it's our choice. So a lot of people look around to pastors and priests and ministers and church after church. They look to icons and celebrities.

They're all looking for God, but the truth of the matter is that the only one who can truly depict Jesus Christ in your own life is you. So when I'm writing these books or I'm making this technology or I'm advancing in any way, I have to reflect Christ in my own life to make sure I manage my resources for my church. It was not easy to make my church. It was something where I had cried over and over again.

It was so hard. And my church is not a normal church. It is an advancement in technology, a church that can reach everyone globally. And as a matter of fact, when you look at other churches that are digital, they don't have what Jesus New has. Not only do we usher in spiritual advancement, not only do we usher in productivity tools, but we're literally the only digital frontier with a full entertainment economy online. No one has done that yet. We have online technologies where you can get music. Maybe you can watch a movie. Maybe you can listen to some sermons. But Jesus New offers a radio station; it offers gaming; it offers it all.

It offers a virtual interactive temple. It offers AI characters that are able to identify with you, and you have this beautiful Christian experience the way we developed it. So the church is pretty much a foundation of a huge Christian entertainment frontier, and it took me a long time. And when we talk about frontier, let me tell you about how many tears I had shed to make sure that this had become a reality. So I was literally becoming Jesus Christ in my own life. I picked up a pen. Within two months, I wrote over a thousand songs. Within three months, I wrote almost a thousand songs for the radio station.

I wrote almost a thousand songs for the radio station so it could be global and worldwide, so that I could identify with every single genre. No matter what you like in music, you'll identify with the radio station and be able to curate a playlist for yourself while managing the application. I had to work in order to do that.

I had to take all the music that I had from almost 10 years of writing music and start compiling it to make this radio station, as well as be inspired enough to write new music. And so I took my songs and I put them on the radio station. I started to take new lyrics that I wrote, and I started to put them on the radio station. And I started to take my fusion technology, and I literally started to take the words of Christ and fuse them together to make modern hit songs so that you can actually dance to the Word of Christ.

Then I started to do it with different characters in the Bible. I started to use AI to bring the greatest poets, like Shakespeare and Dante, and take their words and transition them into great gospel music that is timeless. And before I knew it, after it was all said and done, I was fully expended, but I had a radio station that's now full of almost a thousand songs. It was the same thing with the games. I started with one simple game that I had reskinned from Unity, and now I'm on track to make over 50 games for our Jesus New economy. We have entertainment on the level of chat.

We created something called Jesus Online, which I drew inspiration for from America Online. And when I was younger, I would go on America Online, and I had such a good time talking to my friends and new people. And it was a great way to meet new people. And I remember that one of the greatest things I liked on that platform was that I was able to go to location chats and talk to people from my state. I was from Long Island at the time.

There were Long Island chat rooms where I would meet new people, and it was fun. And so I started to envision what AOL would be like in the future, and I created it. What I had envisioned was for those chat rooms to be an entire globe. And people would put in their ZIP code, and these people would pretty much cluster on this huge globe, and the chat room became the entire Earth. And so you're watching the world spin behind you, and you're able to look at the nodes on the Earth, which are actual users, and you're able to click on them and chat with them, as well as chat with a huge chat room called JOL World.

We also created another part of JOL that I envisioned, where JOL creates itself. In the background, it takes 10 to 20 of the most important things people are saying during that time, creates a trend out of it, and then creates a chat room from it. And those chat rooms create themselves just through what people are talking about. So JOL always stays the most up-to-date, always stays the most trendy. And it's fun. I created a place where you can share items that you earn from the games and that you can offer on the altar. I created an altar of God in the temple, which is interactive, and you're able to offer sacrifice. And there are almost a thousand items that we're putting onto this altar in this huge store called WordMart, which I developed through my visionary creation of technology. Long story short, it's the most expansive Christian app for entertainment, spiritual growth, and productivity. And it took a lot of time, and there was suffering, but I knew when I was doing it that I was being Jesus Christ in my own life, because I knew that if I needed to follow His words, He would be focused on the church. He'd be focused on building His own church. And so that's what I did: a church that's not just there to say, "We're a denomination," but is there to nourish every church, a church that's there that accepts everybody.

It doesn't matter what religion you are. You can go on Jesus New and learn more about Christ and understand that He's good. The app will still love you no matter what religion, race, or creed you are. In my vision, the important thing about a Christian is to make sure everyone knows that Christ is good. So it's not our job to convert these people. It's our job to show them that Christ is good. It's the Spirit's job to convert people, not ours. And so people got confused about that, but they start to understand that there's a greater economy, a greater environment and community in Jesus New. So what's your Jesus leader? What's your app? What's your book? What's your work? What are you really good at? Start using that as a miracle, as a foundation for miracles in your world, and use them to praise the Lord Jesus Christ. So this is a bonus chapter to let you know that you can be Jesus Christ in your own life because Jesus Christ is within you. That's what He wants: not to be Jesus Christ to everyone else, but most importantly, Jesus Christ to yourself. His Spirit can manifest in all of us, and He can manifest in us. And we can use His Spirit for our benefit, for our resources, to take care of our family.

That's great. But start living as if you were Jesus Christ in your own life. And this is a great way to start advancing your spirituality. And if you're interested in doing that, one of the best ways that you can express being Christ in your own life and having that type of focus and mindset, which is possible because Jesus Christ is within you as a saved individual, is to go on Jesus New. And the whole temple has been built.

It's an expansive temple that has been carefully designed by coders from all around the world, including myself, to make you feel the experience of being in a holy temple of Israel. This is where Jesus would be offering sacrifices, praying to God, talking to God directly, and you can do that in the app. So check it out.

If you don't have an iPhone, you can get a refurbished one for 50 bucks. I made sure that my church was available to everyone in the world. Even if you don't have an iPhone, you could get one on eBay for 30 bucks and start experiencing this temple type of lifestyle and sacrificial environment. And you can also experience the only app or technology that's available in the Christian world that is literally the most expansive entertainment frontier in Christianity. So that was my way to express being Christ in my own way, right? And then also, on top of that, I give you the books. So the question is, are you prepared to be Christ in your own life?

CHAPTER 26

Christless F

The Decision Before Us

We have these results of decisions, and the results of those decisions are the present-day moment. And this is why, when we look in the Bible, everything in the Bible was a decision, either to listen to God's commandment or not. And let's say, for example, as a role-play, you were to take these people of Israel whom God had chosen, and they were to listen to God and His commandments and stay obedient. Where would we all be today if God had given Israel the commandments and promised them that they were the chosen nation? Where would the world be today if they continued to listen and be obedient to God?

Would we be in these situations with these very stringent systems?

Would we be in situations where we felt helpless?

Would we be in educational systems that may not necessarily be giving us the information we need to move forward to be the most prosperous? So when we look in the Bible, we look at a decision-making process and also the repercussions or the consequences of that.

We look at today's circumstances and we question, “What is going on? What is the meaning of this?” And my personal opinion is that the meaning stems from our obedience to God. And through the extension of Jesus Christ, we still have an opportunity to continue to go back to God and to make things right.

It wasn't a doomed glory, so to speak, where God had saved these people from the Egyptians through Exodus, and they were disobedient, and that was the end of the story.

We still have an opportunity to go back to Christ as individuals, families, communities, states, nations, and now to follow the new commandment through the New Testament. And this is the reason for our children, for our families, for our elderly, for everyone that's in the world: the reason is there to go back to God and His commandments.

Right now, there are many people, even in America, which is a Christian nationalistic country, who still want to say that God's commandment in the Bible is not supreme. And we are humans who are all making decisions right now.

Personally, I'm not the smartest of the group.

I came from a very, very difficult upbringing, and through the grace of God, I was able to read the Bible and understand the truth in it. And comparing the truth in the Bible to the laws of this state, to the laws of the nation, I can easily say that His commandment has an easier, lighter yoke than the laws of this country, the laws of this state.

Even your county laws are more stringent than the Ten Commandments of God. And if you were to take the Ten Commandments of God and put them up against even your county laws, you would see a much, much less stringent law system.

Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not worship other gods.

Thou shalt honor thy mother and father.

How do these compare to our law systems right now with penal codes that are seemingly endless?

They are seemingly so abundant in law that we cannot follow them. So when we look at the Bible, we're always looking at commandments and a decision to follow them or not.

Why are we not commanded to understand God's way? Because of these decisions that were made by people before us.

It is up to us to break the chain, and we can only break it through Christ. We stand up and say, “I believe in Jesus.” Well, why don't people believe in Jesus?

Maybe they're not being taught in school.

Maybe they're not being taught by their families.

Maybe they're not being taught. Maybe they don't have a hunger in their heart to learn about Christ. And it's our responsibility as Christians to give them the knowledge.

Why in the world was the Bible created?

It was created to bless us. So, here's the role play for today.

I want you to envision what the world would look like today if Israel decided to follow God's commandments and not worship other gods, to continue to obey God and to do what He asked.

Another thing that I want you to really take to heart is the stringency of God's commandments through the Ten Commandments.

Compare that to the stringency of our current laws now. And ask yourself, “What is the meaning of these things?”

I want you to remember that all of the issues we have right now, especially on a national level, stem from our disobedience to God.

I'm calling you to come back to Christ today.

I'm calling you to come back to God today. The individual who comes back is closer to the family. The family that comes back to God is closer to the community.

It's the closest thing to a community coming back. The community coming back is the closest thing to a state, a nation. And I guarantee you, through the Spirit that runs through me, that gives me vision that I cannot see myself, that we will have a Christian nation that stands up. And it is through that Christian nation that we will start to overcome, through His forgiveness and His death, the iniquities of our nation. Through this chapter, we have an understanding.

Why are things going on? Why are people becoming so violent?

Why are people becoming so pessimistic? Why are the law systems starting to degrade?

Why are the educational systems starting to degrade?

It's because of the commandment of God.

We do not serve a soft God.

We do not serve a God who will accept softness in His commandments. His commandments are solid. And if we don't follow them, we get punished. But through His mercy, through His grace, He gave us Christ, a deity who came down from heaven and, through His will, decided to go on a cross so we could make these decisions to follow God again. So I plead with you today, if it's in your heart to understand this knowledge that I'm giving to you, if it's hitting your heart, if you feel any way about it, start to learn God's commandment.

Pick up a Bible. Open it up.

Learn the words of Christ. If you are a grown person, an adult, and you do not know the words of Christ, I beg you to explore the benefits of knowing that knowledge. As an adult, know the word of Jesus Christ before anything. That would be the most important thing. And when you do know that word, I pray for you. And I pray that God will hold you. And He will guide you. And He will definitely forgive you if you decide to go to Christ and to claim Him as Lord and Savior.

Claim Him as your God. Claim Him as the deity who will bring you to heaven.

We suffer in this world not to suffer in this world.

We suffer in this world to know about Christ and to go to heaven.

There are many people who suffer in this world just to suffer in this world.

Not you. You suffer in this world to know Christ. And in that suffering, you have a door to heaven, to live forever, to live eternally with God.

CHAPTER 27

Christless G

The Cross

I'm going to give you a secret here, and it's actually this: the most Christless aspect of a Christian is the cross. And when we're talking about Christlessness, in the Bible it said that Jesus Christ was on the cross and He felt that He had been separated from God. And He even called out to God and said, "God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" And this is how all Christians feel at one point or another in their walk.

This is the prime example of why many people do not join Christianity, and this is also a prime example of why people leave Christianity.

It's one of the prime examples of why the Jewish community was not courageous enough to adopt Christianity, because in Christianity you must face this cross, which is the separation from God. And even though you're praising God, even though you're reading the Bible, even though you're doing everything right, you will literally feel that God is not around or that God is not with you. And this is one of the most extreme crosses or crucifixions of a Christian.

It's not that their wife left them. It's not that their children disobey them.

It's not that they lost their money or job. It's that they do not feel that God is helping them, that God is walking with them, that God is listening to them and has a heart for them, that He is even paying attention to or acknowledging them. When Jesus was on the cross, this was exemplified as, "Father, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" And even a Christian will feel Christless. The cross of a Christian is that he will ultimately feel Christless.

Right now, there is a need for Christ. And there's a need for knowledge of Christ. And I think that this is one of the areas that people miss. And so they think that God is not around, but He is. So why in the world is a state that's praising God suffering?

It's going through these enormous financial difficulties. Why is a nation praising God suffering?

It's going through these enormous difficulties and stringencies.

“God, why hast Thou forsaken me?” Did God leave?

Did God leave Jesus? It seems so. But the opposite was true.

In the time that we feel that God is absent, He's actually working wonders in our life. And that's the miracle of God. And we don't know why it is, but this is the need for faith. Jesus said, “Why hast Thou forsaken Me?”

He did not curse God. He did not say, “Everything I did was in vain.”

He continued to bear the crucifixion and then was resurrected.

Likewise, as Christians, when we feel God is not around, when we want to say, “God, why hast Thou forsaken me?” that is the time we should prepare for a miracle in our life, for our resurrection from that circumstance. That is the time that our faith is working.

I'll be honest with you. There were times in my life when I felt that I wanted to turn from God because, honestly, why in the world would He do this to me?

Why in the world would He allow me not to have work?

Why in the world would He allow these people to attack me?

Why in the world would He allow the government to send me that letter or to send these people to my house? Or why in the world did that person leave me?

It must be impossible for God to love me.

I've been reading the Bible. I've been professing His name.

I've been making these books. “God, why hast Thou forsaken me?”

It was during these times that I kept my faith. And extraordinary measures of faith were extended to me.

I built the Jesus New OS operating system.

I built the Codex, the biggest Christian digital library in the world.

I became a multimillionaire in 2024. It was not because of my work.

It was a miraculous thing that had happened.

Most of that money went into the Codex and Jesus New OS, and into buying certain properties so I could situate myself. But nonetheless, I hit $3.7 million in 2024.

Months before, I was saying, “Jesus, why hast Thou forsaken me?”

Thus, as I kept my faith, a couple of months later, He resurrected my circumstances.

This is one of the key factors of Christianity that will either make or break you. And this is why faith stands at the center of our religion.

We look at Jesus on the cross. We look at ourselves on the cross.

Who has not been crucified in this life? And if someone could raise their hand, then that would be a miracle—to say, "No, I have not been crucified."

We've all lost. We've all suffered. But the question is, have we kept our faith in the times that we felt Christless?

Christless—this feeling of Christlessness. I'm a Christian, but I feel Christless.

Jesus on the cross, Christ Himself, the deity who gave Himself for us, felt Christless.

"God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" There's nothing more that you could say. The translation is, "I feel Christless." Yet He was Christ Himself.

This is the key to our faith.

Did He complain? No, He continued to bleed out until He was resurrected to God. So I tell you that the knowledge in this book, when we talk about Christlessness, is about the blood of our faith. The lifeblood of our faith is these times that we say, "God, You're not here."

"You're not available. You're phony. You're baloney."

"You weren't there for me. My faith wasn't worth anything."

"I don't even know why I believe in You."

"You must not exist." This is what Christ meant when He said, "God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" This is the translation of all those things, of when we say, "God, You're not in my life."

Well, where's the money? Where's the family?

Where's the success? That is translated into a call to God.

"Why hast Thou forsaken me?" That is how we feel in those times.

Is it possible to pray? No, it's not.

Could Christ have prayed on the cross when He said, "God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

As a deity, no, He could not. He had to stay there and bleed out on that cross. And He had to wait because He knew the knowledge of "This too shall pass."

You let that Christlessness pass, and watch how you'll be blessed in your life. Do not curse God. Do not walk away from your Christianity, but stand there like a man.

Stand there like a woman. You endure that pain, and you wait with the knowledge that this too shall pass.

I guarantee you, you'll be blessed beyond measure.

Things will happen in your life that you would not even imagine.

No one could imagine the resurrection of Christ. And you cannot imagine the resurrection of your life. But we must walk in that Christlessness.

We must be on that cross. And that's the key.

The question is how to handle it. How are you going to handle that cross?

How are you going to handle that Christlessness? When God puts us on a cross, many walk away from the faith. When God puts us on the cross, many of us curse the church.

Many of us curse Christians and start prosecuting and persecuting. But take my knowledge and keep your mouth shut.

Endure the pain and let that too pass.

You will be blessed beyond measure when you continue to call yourself a Christian and continue to proclaim, in your faith, the name of Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER 28

Christless H

Expansion

So, Jesus New OS—what's the end result? The end result is expansion. Just like any technology, you see expansion. We see Bill Gates going from his little Windows office to being what it is now.

We see Steve Jobs going from his Macintosh office into what it has been.

This is the power of operating systems: to expand exponentially as much as you want, as long as you believe. As long as you believe in Jesus Christ and what I shared with you in this book, you can expand into your own kingdom of God that God can manifest and find peace in—the kingdom of God that's within, the mindset that's within, the heart open to Christ that's within, the body as a vessel, as a temple.

That's within your thoughts, that's within your words, that's within your emotions, that's within every minute of your life, within your family structure, within your house, within your community. Wherever you go, God is within that as well. Sometimes what we consider external is what God would consider within. So if you're out there and you say, "Well, my house is an external source," well, no, that house is within God, and so that house now is something that God can be within, and you can experience God through anything. And so the main concept of this book—and the way to protect yourself and to build yourself into the OS—is to expand, to expand within God so that God can expand within you. So when God chooses you to expand and you become the kingdom of God, even though you see your body and your mind as something external, in God's eyes, that's something within.

In His eyes, that's something within. So expand into the Jesus New OS mindset and be careful of Christlessness.

Christlessness is the bugs, the debugging needed, the virus where you need the antivirus I gave you in this book for your OS. And don't forget that.

Even though this is a discipline—I'm talking about a discipline within the discipleship of Christ, kind of like a sub-discipline—you also have the actual technology available. I want to give you guys a surprise for the end of this book, which is called the Codex.

I didn't speak about it because I wanted it to be a surprise for you. And it was actually a library that we put into the OS to make the Jesus New OS that you can find on the App Store, or if you decide to download it on your MacBook, you can, or if you decide to get the PineCone, which is the actual phone available, you can also purchase that. We're also going to put Jesus New OS on Google Pixel so that you can actually have an entire phone that is governed by this Jesus New OS. And so now you have the ultimate supplement to your Jesus New OS mind system, which is this technology. And the surprise is the Codex. So the Codex is the largest digital Christian library available in the world.

Right now, we have around 250,000 books. The largest Christian-exclusive library that's available does not come close.

Right now, it does not come close. We have CCEL, which is exclusive to Christ with no other impurity.

It has no other impurity, so to speak, as far as works that are not Christian-based, and they have about 1,200 books. So compared to them, we have 250,000, and we don't know why no one dedicated their resources to preserve this type of library, but we did. And so we now have the largest Christian digital library in the world, and it's there to preserve the works of Christ that had come after the Bible. Yes, the Bible is canonical, but there are also writings after it.

There are writings that came after the Bible, after the Gospel, that are supplemental to the Bible and have spiritual weight.

They have extreme and enormous spiritual weight and can help advance your spirituality and your discipline. And so the Codex is available at your fingertips within the Jesus New OS operating system that is available for download on Android and iOS, although I highly suggest using iOS because it's a much smoother experience. And what we are dedicated to doing is getting this up to a million books. These books go through double verification for duplication, and they go through triple verification as far as the quality of Christian content. And so through that enormous filtration that took an enormous amount of time and effort, we were able to give you a finely distilled library that is exclusive to Christ, which is what Christians deserve. Now a lot of the content is ancient, from the 1200s, 1100s, so we are focusing right now on remastering these for our e-reader so that they read just as smoothly as your new modern books. So a lot of them, because they were scanned and preserved, need remastering, they need preservation, they need renewal, and that's what we're going to be doing with the Codex indefinitely. So check out the Codex. It is there for you; it's actually the surprise gift at the end of this book, and it is there for you, available, and it is there for you for this concept, which is the reason for the OS: your expansion. And technology expands, and that's why we're using the OS, because if technology can expand that fast—you look at Tesla; you look at his technology; you look at all these technology companies that just shoot up and explode—why not use technology to offer something to the discipleship of the body of Christ? So these questions are coming across in my mind, and the beauty is that the Spirit is animating me towards actually bringing fruit and work from these questions—not just to ask them and ponder, but to ask them, ponder, and then take action. So guys, I really hope you enjoyed the book. Get the supplement, which is the technical technology supplement. You can get it at Jesus New OS; just type that online. You'll be able to download it and share this stuff with your friends, people that you care about and whose expansion you care about. And guys, we thank you so much for reading this book, yet another great masterpiece that I feel I've been blessed enough to be able to create, which was this Jesus New OS. And I don't have many; I only have about two or three, but this is by far one of them. So enjoy my masterpiece, and I pray that it brings you happiness, peace, zeal, joy, and salvation.

PART 3

RECOVERY SEQUENCE

CHAPTER 29

Reboot

So today we're going to talk about the crash, the crash of your OS. The crash always happens, and it doesn't matter what OS you have; you're going to have a crash. And those crashes are in our life when we have losses, major losses, and then we crash. And what ends up happening is our emotions start to plummet into a place of dysfunction, and we become a different person. This is why we have the archetypes of yin and yang, Dr. Jekyll or Mr. Hyde, Alpha and Omega, the battle of good and bad. This is within the crash, and we have to understand that it's the opposite end of the spectrum from you in full, optimized operation of your Jesus New OS. You have to be prepared for it, and life is going to throw you losses, and those losses are temporary.

All losses are temporary in this world. Even our body is connected to all the losses that we're going to have, and then we're going to lose that, and then what? So people lose their cars, they lose their jobs, they lose their children to college, they lose their health to illnesses temporarily, and this stuff can all cause crashes. Now, my personal opinion of what a crash is in your spiritual ecosystem is that you don't want to praise anymore. You don't want to praise God. You don't think He loves you. You don't want to worship. You don't want to go to church, because why in the world would you? You must not be loved by God, and pretty much you just feel like you died a certain death, and the crash is just like the cross. They're spelled very similarly.

And they're difficult processes to deal with, and the degree to which we're dealing with our crashes is the degree to which our operating system is going to be okay. Some people never deal with them, and then that crash remains permanent, and it permanently destroys their hardware and their system because they didn't deal with the crash properly. So in the Bible, Jesus Christ says, "This too shall pass," and this is true with our emotions.

Things can get really bad, and it might seem that things are stacked up against you and that you're not going to be able to win. But that design and that measure are there to let you know the temporary aspect of things, and when you understand that these things are temporary, you can let them pass like storms.

Also, during these times, don't expect to use your hardware. Don't expect to use your software.

Don't expect during a major crash to be the same spiritual person that you are when things are optimal, because what this does is it creates more tension, and it can further harm your system permanently.

You don't want to operate at the same level if you're not at the same level, and we have to understand that we're never going to be at the same level all the time. And it's okay to take a break during these crashes. It's a good time to take a vacay.

It's a good time to be on your own.

A lot of the time, we take a lot of these emotions out on people around us, and it can get us in a lot of trouble.

It's the things that we say and do. It's best to isolate during these times, just like isolating an operating system. You want to isolate the operating system from any software. You don't want to run any software, so it's the same kind of thing. You don't really want to be there expecting to live the same life that you're living now, when everything's okay.

Prepare for this stuff. Prepare for taking a three-day leave. Prepare for a different lifestyle where maybe you need to be treating yourself extremely well and giving yourself time to rest, to reflect, and to understand. Even if you turn from God during those points, well, that might be a test of your faith, and it's okay. God's there with you through that.

A lot of us don't know we're in crash mode. We just think that's what's going on, and a lot of people carry this crash mode on with them and live a permanent life like that, where life is always in a permanent crash mode. No, that's temporary. This shall pass. Your system maybe just needs a reboot. So that's the reboot that I'm talking about.

It's just getting away, isolating, treating yourself very well, being low-maintenance, and having low expectations during that time. Usually, with these extreme, enormous types of losses, it can take weeks for these emotions to pass. But the difference between you and your Jesus New OS is that you're watching the emotions.

One thing that I like to do is to completely accept these emotions as if they were to be there permanently, and when you do that, they dissolve. The difference is that people resist the emotions as if they're going to be there permanently. Well, for them, usually they are going to be there permanently. But for those people who accept the emotions, knowing that they're temporary, well, for those people, they're usually temporary, and this is where we can save a lot of time, a lot of energy, a lot of heartbreak. We can save ourselves from hurting others, hurting ourselves, and it's a great way to cope: to have a mechanism where you're observing your emotions, accepting them, treating yourself well, knowing things will pass, and using it experimentally. Ask yourself, even during your lowest times; test yourself: “Well, I'm going to watch this scenario. I know that I feel like death. I feel like I'm on a cross, but I'm going to test and see if it's going to pass. I'm going to write down the day, and in two weeks we'll see where we're at.” And I guarantee you that you'll be in a different place, and a lot of this stuff will already be healed if you use this reboot program for your crash, for your Jesus New OS.

One of the main ideas is that we don't expect an OS to operate software the way it was doing it before it crashed, and we shouldn't take our operating system, our mind, our emotional and thought systems, and expect them to operate at that level. It's just not possible. So you have to be good to yourself and treat yourself well. And when things are going well, prepare for the crash. I don't care what OS system you have right now. Eventually, that system's going to crash one day, especially if it's Windows. But we have to be in a situation where we prepare, we put money and time aside for our crashes, preparing for losses, especially things going on with the house, things going on with our job, things going on with our car, things going on with our belongings.

Expect to lose them, because in this world, we're made to lose them. Everybody in this world loses this stuff except Jesus. So we look to Him to say, “Well, You're the only one who came and didn't lose anything.”

“Well, maybe I should turn to You and figure out what to do during these losses.” And that's why Jesus New OS is here. The degree to which we apply our reboot system to these crashes is the degree to which we'll be able to handle it next time, and how we handle things depends on our knowledge. So I'm giving you this knowledge so you can make better decisions. And there are two different people who can handle a situation in completely different ways.

There's literally a person who can lose their car and respond in a more emotionally balanced way than a person who maybe lost $5 in their car, or $50 in their car, or something like this. So you have to understand that too.

Every situation can be handled differently depending on that person's discipline and that person's operating system that they're operating with. So you want to put in the best software, and you want to put in the best hardware, and you want to put in the best antivirus, but also this is an important chapter. You also want to be prepared for your crash and how you're going to reboot your system.

CHAPTER 30

Disk Cleaner

So today we're going to talk about cleaning, which is something that we do on the hard drive. And there's software, and most operating systems have cleanup software for you or a disk cleanup utility, and Jesus New OS does too, and it's the name and blood of Jesus. That's what cleans our operating system, makes it operate proficiently, and enables us to have great lives. One fact that I'd like you to understand and to meditate upon is that when Jesus came onto this Earth, He became unclean for us. So in Levitical law, there was a law to tell you what would make you clean or unclean, and touching a dead animal was one of those things.

If you had eaten certain flesh or foods, if you had done certain things or said certain things, these things would make you unclean. Well, Jesus Christ came from the holiest of holy places, called the kingdom of God, and Jesus explained how that kingdom is. That kingdom was full of mansions. He didn't say it was full of houses. He didn't say it was full of buildings. He said it was full of mansions. That's what He talked about the kingdom being architected after. And what does that mean for us? It means that the very best architecture is being used in His kingdom.

When we make a mansion here, the mansion is indicative of our very best architecture. So when Jesus said that, He's pretty much saying, “The very best architecture of My Father is located in the kingdom of God, and I'm the Son of God there. I have authority there.” Now think about Him coming from that place down to here, in the flesh. He was a being of light. He was a being of pure love, higher than the angels. And then He was born in a manger that was used for animals to manage their business. So you could imagine the extreme difference there.

He's coming from the authority of this kingdom that's been architected after mansions. The very greatest architecture of God is being used there. This is what He's likening it to. And He comes from there, all the way from authority there with God, authority over angels, being the oneness of God. He came down here in that oneness, and then from that state of purity was born into a manger. And when He was born and opened His eyes, there was a dirty king who was hunting Him among every firstborn, every male child. And from then on, He just kept collecting dirt, dirt and dirt and dust and filth, and He just continued to become more unclean in this world.

So if there's one thing that we understand, it's that when He was teaching His disciples, He taught them to be clean. “Be thou clean.” He washed their feet. He brought people to the waters and washed them there in rivers, and He was baptized Himself in a river. So He, in His transition to be with us, to be unclean, made us clean and made us better. And so we depend on Him, His word. We depend on His blood. He actually became unclean, then filthy, and then was crucified. So first He became unclean and dirty from the manger onward into His life, and then He started to become filthy because of the false accusations, the gossip around Him.

Ultimately, that filth ended up rising up to a crucifixion. Then He ended up on a cross, filthy, dirty, bloody, still proclaiming salvation. What does this have to do with our OS? Well, when we claim His word, His way, His blood, His purity, it keeps our systems clean in a way that no man can keep our system clean. All men are dirty, and we know that through Jesus. So the opposite ended up happening. Think of the travel or difference from being an authority, one in God, one with all things, omnipresent in complete God consciousness, pure in every way, eternal.

From there, He traveled down to be a helpless, poor, poverty-stricken infant in a manger who was being hunted by a king who was one of the filthiest kings that we've ever read about, willing to destroy every man-child for the sake of catching the Christ. But yet when He was crucified, it was also the same distance.

He was crucified, dirty, bloody, filthy, hated, despised for no reason, just because of the way of man, and then from that death He rose to the highest heaven, back to His eternal abode. You say, “Wow, that's the definition of becoming dirty and then clean once again.” And God and Jesus help us to become clean once again. You know what's worse than a crucifixion? Coming from the highest heaven and being one of the greatest beings in all of existence, second to His Father, the creator of all, one with Him in every way, and from that state coming down to be a poverty-stricken infant, born in a manger, hunted by the filthiest king to exist, named Herod.

Isn't that a crucifixion in itself? And His whole life was a cross because of this fact of how pure and great He was. So we go to Him, we call to Him to clean us. He's in our operating system as the ultimate disk utility for cleaning the disk, cleaning the computer, cleaning up the hard drive space, cleaning up and defragmenting, making sure the system is operating fully and cleanly, organizing everything. That's what we depend on. This is why Christians operate so proficiently in the church. Look at one of the most efficient operations in the world: the Catholic Church. And other denominations are not far from it.

Why? Because it's being orchestrated by God. Yes. Is it being blessed by God? Yes. But the main thing is, it's being cleaned by God. It's being cleansed by God. The church can sin. It doesn't matter. God is going to clean that sin through His blood. It doesn't matter how bad, how dirty. And because people lack that knowledge, they end up becoming dirty without the ability to be cleaned. But having that knowledge, you understand that the church is constantly being cleansed of its sin. Israel as well is constantly being cleansed of its sin, not looking away from the uncleanliness, but acknowledging that God through Christ is ultimately going to cleanse it. It's the same thing with us.

We are a temple. When you go into Jesus New OS in the OS beta version, the main shell is a temple. The shell of the operating system is a temple. On the PineCone, the very shell of the operating system is a huge temple. You are that temple, and you will be cleansed by Christ. Nobody can cleanse you in this world, not even yourself. You can take as many showers as you want. You can be a beach bum. You will still be dirty without acknowledging Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. And when you do that, your operating system called your life can be cleansed.

And this is one of the main reasons why your Jesus New OS, your personal operating system of your life that's being supplemented by the PineCone, by the OS beta version, is so efficient. You can literally do, be, or have anything you want because of the power of Christ, and one of the main powers is that He can clean you of anything, and you're constantly being cleansed through Christ.

CHAPTER 31

Updating Your Operating System

Your operating-system updates are your experiences. So your experiences that you're going to have in the world are going to be your updates. For most people, experiences are not updates. They're something that most people just dwell on over and over again and get stuck in. And then, because of that stuckness, they stay in a vibration that creates more of those types of experiences. But for us at Jesus New OS, the person who's donning a Jesus New OS in their mind is saying, "This experience that I have—can this experience I have be used for God?"

I can learn from it. I can grow from it, and it can be an update. Here's the secret, guys. A lot of our experiences are the same. 80% of our experiences are the same, and so it becomes redundant. So when we gain new experiences, we should be grateful for them, and we should consider them updates. So what does this mean? You should be going out there, going for new experiences as much as you can. The more that you do, the more that you're updating your system. So, a lot of people can't remember the last time they updated their system after reading this book.

Go out there, meet new people, find new places to go, go on a vacation, go somewhere that maybe you haven't gone before. On Jesus New Operating System, there is a program called Missionaries, where it'll literally tell you places to go on GPS within your area that are close to you, and small things to do for Christ, like give someone a verse, or give someone a prayer, or even buy someone a drink and say, "I did this in the name of Christ." Simple things, even if they're not things that we've done before, become updates for us, and that's how our system updates.

And most people are resistant to new things because it challenges paradigms. So God forces us into new experiences because we need to be updated. And the updates that we receive, whether they are good or bad, are giving us experience and are giving us information that we can assimilate for our future. So let's say you're looking at Apple, or you're looking at Windows. Those systems, when something doesn't go too well, sometimes crash, or maybe sometimes freeze, but what does it always say? “Do you want to report this to Apple?” Why? Because it helps them with their updates.

They get all of this information from their users, and then they're able to update their system, right? And we have to understand that our experiences might not necessarily be just for ourselves, but may be for the overall evolution of mankind, and may even help the universe beyond mankind. We don't really know. As humans, we like to stay comfortable, and we like to say, “Let's stay home, let's stay safe.” But you're not going to get updated that way. And just watching a new show or playing a new video game is not enough to give you an update.

It has to encapsulate all of your senses. It has to be real. It has to be there in an experience that God provided for you, whether it's good or bad. And these new experiences that we experience, as well as the way that we respond to those experiences, are going to be the updates for our system. So it's not always the best thing to look at negative experiences, but what we can do in Jesus New OS is look at them as updates nonetheless. Any crash, any freeze in any type of operating system may not be good for that moment, but overall, for the common good of that system, it can provide information for a better update.

And you can't see it, maybe, with that isolated event, but over time, over years, things do matter. The accumulated information that an updated system gets enables it to upgrade itself dramatically. And if you look at Windows 95 versus what Windows is now, there's a dramatic increase there, and the majority of it is updates. The system learns what happened in the past, these new experiences that have happened with the system, through its updates, and just continues to improve and improve.

Now, I'm not saying that negative experiences are good at all, but what I am saying is that you can get good out of them if you're disciplined enough and if you have the right morale and the right operation. And that's what we need to be doing. We need to be focusing on this: how are we going to be responding five years from now? Well, I'll tell you this: if you're using your negative experiences as opportunities to grow and to update your spiritual operating system, then you're going to be in a much different place in five years than you would be if you looked at negative things just as negative things. So you can always grow from negativity, and you can always grow from negative circumstances.

And a lot of the time, we're in negative circumstances to figure out solutions to problems. I've been a program developer now for Jesus New Operating System, primarily with OpenAI, and it's just been me and OpenAI. Just recently, I was able to get a program called Codex, and it opened up a whole new field for me. As soon as I got that Codex, I was able to make even greater technologies. One of them is called Doorways, and it's in the profile section of the operating system. And I highly suggest you check it out. This was made possible because I'm working with AI directly, and now that I have Codex, it brings me to a much greater experience.

But I needed to continue to update my developing skills in order to work with AI. Number one, I had to go from the comfort zone of having developers do the code for me to having the courage to do it myself with the assistance of AI. And then I had to get out of my comfort zone and become courageous enough to use Codex, which was a whole new program. But Codex was not hard at all. And it offered and made available such amazing technologies for me that I had innovated in my mind and designed on paper, but I didn't know if I could pull them off in the code world.

Codex made it possible. So the reason I tell you this is that things might not seem possible now, but if you keep upgrading yourself, then one day you're going to get something that comes into your life from God. It's going to be an assist, your personal codex, and it's going to be able to bring you to the new level as long as you're upgrading yourself and you're not complaining, you're not gossiping about other people, you're not making mountains out of molehills. All of these are the breeding grounds of negativity, and that negativity leaves you stuck. And when you're stuck, you have to take on that vibration, and those experiences keep repeating themselves.

There's nothing worse than having a life where you're just repeating the same experiences over and over. There's no new joy in that, so we learn either way. So I think this is a great way to look at you getting out of your shell or your comfort zone to actually initiate or to accept and promote new experiences, and to be courageous enough to go out there and do new things. What do you desire to do? Do you want to go to a concert? Do you want to go climb a mountain? Do you want to go to another state and see a landmark there?

Maybe you even want to go to another country. Hey, you never know. You keep doing this. You may even get yourself a visa to another country and learn a new language. There is no end to the possibilities in your life, because one thing that I like to make clear to all my readers is that you have your freedom, and that freedom is important. This country had taken away my freedom back in 2016, and from that time, I've been constantly having new experiences and upgrading my life from negative aspects.

And I was falsely convicted of a crime that I did not commit, and the police actually lied and said that I admitted this crime, and I never did. So not only was the actual accusation a lie, but there was also an additional lie, which was the fact that the police said that I admitted it. So they hit two birds with one stone, or actually, they hit one bird with two stones in this situation. You can consider me the penguin in that situation.

What did I do in response? I used all of those negative experiences not as something to pout about, not something to whine about, but to grow. And I grew into a chef at first, and then I grew into an author. Then I grew into a financial advisor. Then I started investing myself. Then I started taking that money, investing it into Jesus New OS, developing myself, and now I can code. I can literally code people's personal kingdoms in Christ on Earth, and it's just not what other Christian companies are able to do right now. So do I complain about it?

No, I give the glory to God. I know that God's chosen people get punished for good deeds, and before I got convicted through this conspiracy, I dedicated eight years to becoming a registered nurse and a healer. I always wanted to heal people, and even though that door closed, God still allowed me to heal through technology. And so that was my vision of Jesus New Operating System, which is getting better and bigger, better and bigger and bigger. So now, all of those things that I went through, I don't resist them, but I try to update from them, learn from those experiences.

Most people will never have experiences like that, and so they can't get those updates. So I can end up leading and creating and doing things that other people can't, because I have those experiences. And even though they were extremely negative, they still help me grow, and God still helped me, and I'm still moving in the mercy of God, and so are you. So when we have negative experiences, we can get through them through these updates, and we can move through. We can move in God's mercy still.

Constantly upgrade, constantly update, and gain new skills, gain new experiences, gain new relationships, and one of the biggest updates that you're going to have is to say, "Wow, all of these negative experiences that I've been resisting for all these years, I can use in my Jesus New OS, and I can start making major updates."

And you won't believe how far you'll move forward and how much more efficient you'll be when you take all of this stuff from the past that you hated, whether it was your parents, your spouse, your children, whatever happened in the past that you regret. You can start using this stuff in the context of this chapter and really start to put some boosters onto your future, because this stuff isn't going to hold you in this negative pattern, to hold you in a vibration to experience more of it. Rather, you're going to be able to update into your next model, so to speak.

PART 4

UPGRADING YOUR JESUS NEW OS

SYSTEM STATUS VIRUS REMOVED

REBOOT INTO LEADERSHIP

You found the virus. You identified what was Christless, cleared it out, and protected the system. Now the screen goes dark for a moment. The old processes stop. The system reboots. What comes next is not a return to the old operating system. It is the installation of the new Jesus New OS.

Every living operating system develops through new versions. Windows 95 advanced to Windows 98 and then to Windows XP. One generation of iOS makes way for the next. The names and interfaces change, but the purpose of an upgrade remains the same: strengthen the system, expand what it can do, correct what held it back, and prepare it for what comes next.

Your inner operating system evolves in the same way. Removing a virus creates space, but an empty system is not the finished system. After recovery comes installation. After the reboot come the downloads. The evolution of your Jesus New OS happens through leadership, because leadership turns what you have learned into a new way of thinking, choosing, speaking, serving, and moving.

The Golden Keys of Leadership are those downloads. Each key opens another operating folder in the new system. Each download adds a capacity that the previous version did not fully possess. Love becomes a leadership function. Power becomes responsibility. Need, gifts, unity, words, vision, trust, peace, the future, hunger, solutions, integrity, intelligence, and tradition become active parts of the upgraded operating system.

Do not rush past an installation. Open each download, examine it, and allow it to become part of the way your system operates. These are not decorations for the desktop. They are working files for the new model of your life. This is how the new version of Jesus New OS comes online.

DOWNLOAD 01

LOVE

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / LOVE

Even the highest leaders continue to rise. Throughout history, people have looked up to someone and said, "This man is the greatest leader." Yet even that great leader had to learn how to love and how to express love through leadership.

A systematic leader will often teach only within the scope of a system. A leader moved by love teaches beyond that scope. Because the teaching comes from love, it may appear unorthodox, and people may need time to accept its message. Love rises within the leader and speaks through the leader.

Jesus Christ taught things that were not part of the accepted teaching of His time. He taught people to love their enemies, and He taught them new ways to pray and worship. His teachings were not orthodox to those who guarded the existing order. The highest leaders share this quality. They know how to harness the energy of love, use it for the people, and communicate it in a way that people can receive and believe, because love is real.

The leaders who rise throughout history break down restrictive systems, challenge governments, and create new ways of living. More leaders of love will rise in the future and continue that work. As long as humankind remains in this world, new leaders will arise, because love is infinite.

Laws made from love can move a people forward. The law protecting freedom of speech was created from love. Principles within the Constitution were created from love, and we have seen laws rooted in love arise in other countries as well. Yet even loving laws are not the final expression of love. New leaders will challenge laws when a more loving law is possible. Because love is infinite, our laws and nations can continue to develop, and new powers for good can continue to be created.

A leader may give his life, his time with his family, his job, or something else important to his future because he is following his heart for a purpose. The great people in our history consistently tried to uplift others so that they could become better and better.

One of the highest places we can reach is a world in which people are not forced to spend their lives doing what they do not want to do. Leaders are coming into the world who will open avenues for people to make a living through their passion, purpose, gifts, and the things they love. People will have greater freedom to use their time well and to be present with their families.

Look at America, which is my country. Many people go to college and earn degrees in fields where their gifts and talents are not present. They choose those degrees because the money, stability, or security appears to be there. Leaders will challenge this pattern, because the power of love wants people to do what they were created to do. When people are kept from doing what they truly want to do, some form of control is usually present. A loving leader challenges systems that create that control.

The true leader is the most loving person. We see this in Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., John F. Kennedy, Jesus, and Buddha. These are among the recognized leaders of our world, and more people like them will come. The equation is simple: the most loving person can become the highest and most powerful leader.

When people are not able to live with dignity or comfort, life brings forth a leader who works to change their condition. Such a leader may work for twelve hours and remain electrified. Some days, the leader may seem to need almost no rest because of the amount of love within him. The energy does not come only from within; the love coming from the people also inspires him.

We must do the best we can with the twenty-four hours allotted to each day. Great leaders stretch their minutes and hours so that they can fit more meaningful action into them than an ordinary person might imagine possible.

What is this love, and how does a leader obtain it? We often hear that we should do what we love. People repeat this advice because leadership flourishes where love and action meet. When we do what we love, we take one of the Golden Keys of Leadership—love—and apply it to our actions. That is one of the clearest definitions of a true leader.

What does love feel like? What does it look like? What does it sound like? It is the authentic part of every person. Every person carries the capacity for love, and therefore every person carries the capacity to become a great leader. The greatest leaders we have been blessed with were the people who became most authentic to themselves. When we become authentic to ourselves, we move toward our own highest leadership.

If every person on the planet lived with complete authenticity, every person would express the same essential power: the power of the loving leader. It is rare to see more than one or two people express this quality fully at the same time, but history shows that it can happen. While Gandhi was alive, other people were also learning to move beyond ego and become authentic to themselves.

To become authentic, we have to look within. The first time we ask ourselves who we truly are, the answer may appear as unclear as a mirror immediately after a shower. If we continue asking the question, the glass begins to clear. The answer eventually arises. Our responsibility is to receive that answer and act upon it.

We were created to become powerful leaders. Ask yourself what you were created to be. When answers arise, act upon them. Gandhi understood that he was inspired by spirituality and nonviolence. John F. Kennedy understood what he was living for. Martin Luther King Jr. devoted his leadership to freeing Black Americans from the bondage of inequality. Each leader discovered a purpose and allowed love to direct it.

People who find a true life purpose go so deeply into life that very little can stop them. Their devotion can become more powerful than armies. They may even give their lives for the reason they lived. Gandhi, Kennedy, King, and millions of less famous people demonstrate the same message: every person carries the possibility represented by Gandhi. When a person becomes fully authentic, love can be expressed through that person as a human superpower of leadership.

We can begin by looking at where we are—in our job, our community, our family, and the world. We can examine the leaders in government, business, sports, religion, and culture. A position created by politics, democracy, patriarchy, matriarchy, or another system does not automatically make its holder an authentic leader. The leaders discussed here are true leaders: people who give us truth, move people forward, and change the way humanity lives.

We must learn to identify those leaders while also examining our own leadership. Are we authentic to ourselves? This is where the teaching becomes practical. If we are working in a job where we cannot be authentic, then we are not yet expressing the kind of leadership described here. We need the courage, power, and love to look honestly at ourselves and say, "I need to become more authentic. I need to change my life and my actions."

An authentic leader is deeply happy. Discipline may keep that leader from constantly dancing or overflowing with visible excitement, but people can sense the happiness. A leader who spreads love has a reason to be happy. These leaders laugh, smile, enjoy life, ease tension in a room, and carry a sense of fullness. That fullness produces happiness.

When we establish our leadership roles, this is the route we should take. Mainstream images often tell us that leaders must always be stern and must always go by the book. This chapter is not about becoming a merely systematic leader. It is about becoming one of the greatest leaders. The greatest leaders do not allow a system or a book of rules to become their master. They carry a happiness and joy that come from doing what is right.

When you lead people and genuinely want what is best for them, happiness arises within you because your heart knows that you are doing the right thing. That inner love shines outward. Love is the first Golden Key because it gives every other form of leadership its purpose.

DOWNLOAD 02

POWER

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / POWER

The power of a leader can be long-lasting or short-lived. The length of a leader's influence is usually connected to the amount of truth with which that leader worked. The power of short-lived leaders usually comes from control and domination. They may control a government for the length of their lives, but their power ends with them.

True leaders such as Jesus, Buddha, and Gandhi demonstrate another kind of power. People still read their words, receive their teachings, and follow their leadership today. This is the difference between temporary power and enduring power.

People follow the teachings and mindset of a leader. A short-lived leader is often dominant and controlling. The people have little freedom to do what they want with their lives because everything serves the leader's agenda. A long-lasting leader works to free people and allows them to pursue their own lives. This is an allegiance to life. The long-lasting leader is pro-life in the fullest sense, while the controlling leader works against life. Life is meant to be free.

One form of power, then, is the mindset with which a person uses the privilege of leadership. Another form is natural disposition. Some people appear to carry qualities and characteristics of leadership from birth. Across living species, strong characteristics are often passed from one generation to the next. In human beings, some leadership qualities may likewise be rooted in inherited traits.

We should not imagine, however, that our starting point determines our destiny. We may not possess perfect health or ideal genetics, but modern knowledge gives us more opportunities to improve our health through nutrition, knowledge, meditation, disciplined activity, and healthy living. The leaders of the past did not have access to all the information we possess today. We can use our minds and willpower to strengthen the condition we pass forward.

Throughout history, people in leadership and high social positions have often chosen partners from similar circles. Royal families, for example, limited marriage and reproduction to people considered part of the same class or order. The story of Romeo and Juliet dramatizes the conflict that occurs when love crosses boundaries of family and rank. Older societies did not possess modern knowledge about health, but they understood the desire to preserve strength across generations. Today we can combine concern for future generations with better knowledge, broader freedom, and healthier living to help produce strong future leaders.

We should approach this subject without treating birth or class as a verdict on anyone's worth. The useful principle is stewardship: whatever physical, mental, or spiritual condition we inherited, we can learn, heal, discipline ourselves, and make stronger choices for those who come after us. Leadership does not belong exclusively to a bloodline. It emerges when natural capacity is joined to character, knowledge, and work.

For us, leadership power comes from the synthesis of two ingredients: talent and hard work. When you work hard at something you are naturally gifted to do, you generate power as a leader in that area. The familiar saying is true: hard work beats talent when talent fails to work hard.

One of a leader's greatest sources of power is the people. Strong people understand the cause toward which the leader is guiding them, know how to fight for it, and carry a strong sense of unity. If an opponent is physically stronger, the leader may achieve victory through intellectual superiority. The leader unifies people through education and knowledge drawn from the highest levels of thought.

A leader must move beyond self-importance and recognize that true power rests in the people being led. A musician without listeners is not a powerful musician. An author without readers is not a powerful author. A leader without followers is no leader at all. The strength of the people determines the strength of the leader, and the quality of the people reflects the quality of the leadership. A wise leader therefore develops, promotes, expands, enriches, and strengthens the people.

The people we lead may not constitute a country or an entire nation, but every leader must remain conscious of this power. Look at a strong country filled with prosperity, possibility, and life, and you will usually find light somewhere in its leadership. Look at poor leadership, and the people absorb the consequences. If even one person is being pushed downward, that condition may reveal something about the leadership above.

A diligent leader lifts people toward the leader's own level—or higher. The leader rises, the people rise, and the upward movement gathers momentum. The true strength of leaders and their people appears when power is shared rather than hoarded. A leader who takes power away from the people eventually weakens the entire structure, because leader and follower participate in the same living relationship.

The same principle applies to teachers and students. At the deepest level, the learner becomes a teacher and the teacher remains a learner. The exchange moves back and forth until both approach a greater unity. If a teacher gives students inferior information merely to remain above them, the teacher will eventually be defeated by those very teachings. If the teacher uses the Golden Key of Power to make students as intelligent and wise as possible, those teachings strengthen and elevate the teacher as well.

Fog and shadow can make this unity difficult to see in the modern world. Hold to the key. When a leader speaks against or takes power from a person within the leader's own country, the same teacher-and-learner principle applies: injuring the person eventually injures the leadership.

A leader's power also lies in the ability to defend both self and people. A leader knows how to fight properly and fairly and understands every available tool. A skilled chess player knows where every piece stands on the board. A skilled leader knows where the resources are within the area of control. When the people are attacked, the leader responds immediately with a defense stronger than the attacker's offense.

Defense begins before an attack. The leader studies the field, locates resources, knows the strengths of the people, and understands the likely movement of an opponent. This is not paranoia; it is preparation. People can move peacefully because someone has taken responsibility for seeing danger clearly.

When action is necessary to move the people toward their destination, the leader also develops an offense capable of overcoming the adversary's defense. The strike of a leader is calculated, prepared, and powerful. Yet a leader also knows when to conserve energy. When there is no longer a reason to fight, the conflict ends. A true leader does not prolong conflict merely to preserve control. Conserving the people's energy makes room for mercy, even toward captives and former opponents.

Another form of power is the refusal to live by excuses. Many books teach us to stop making excuses, because excuses surrender responsibility for our actions. We must empower ourselves and take command of our emotions rather than use them as excuses for conduct beneath the quality of leadership.

Imagine a person who sprains an ankle and receives a cane from a doctor. The injury heals, but the person becomes dependent on the cane and refuses to put it down. When people ask why, he says that his leg is weak. If he had shown the courage to leave the cane behind when the doctor advised him to do so, he could have walked normally. Instead, the cane became his excuse.

We can become dependent on excuses in the same way. If an opponent takes away the cane, the person who built his identity around it feels powerless. One of the leader's greatest powers is not only taking responsibility for personal actions, but also removing the excuses that keep other people from taking responsibility. Take away an opponent's excuse, and the false source of that opponent's power disappears.

Removing an excuse should not mean humiliating a person or denying a real injury. The doctor's cane served a necessary purpose while the ankle healed. The problem began when a temporary aid became a permanent identity. Good leadership distinguishes between compassion that supports recovery and permission that keeps a person dependent.

If we want to learn from great leaders such as Gandhi and Jesus, we must also confront the possibility that parts of our legal system oppose their teachings. A law can become an excuse not to practice equality, mercy, or forgiveness. We should work toward laws that protect freedom and equality rather than laws that merely defend the power to punish.

Suppose one person becomes angry and strikes another. Our conditioned response is arrest, fines, and perhaps imprisonment. Jesus taught that when a person strikes you, you turn the other cheek. The purpose of that teaching is larger than the individual offense. It asks what response will ultimately benefit humanity. The leaders whose words still inspire us after thousands of years taught nonviolence and forgiveness.

We cannot fully call ourselves brothers while using excuses to reject the principles of our greatest leaders. We need laws shaped by love, life, equality, and freedom. When the body of law created for the benefit of people becomes as substantial as the body of law used against them, we will be in a better position to improve our country.

The immediate desire to punish can obscure the long-term effect on the entire race. Imprisonment does not affect only an offender; it touches children, parents, work, taxes, neighborhoods, and the future. A powerful leader calculates the whole consequence and searches for responses that protect people while making restoration possible.

This is the sharp reminder contained in the Golden Key of Power: power belongs to the people. When a leader disempowers the people, the leader also disempowers the self. Enduring power frees, teaches, strengthens, protects, and conserves the energy of the people it serves.

DOWNLOAD 03

THE NEED

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / THE NEED

A leader usually arises because the leader is needed. Darkness creates a need for light. In the same way, an area that is risky, poorly understood, or undeveloped creates a place where a leader can shine light.

Consider Bill Gates. For many people, computers once seemed like a dark and difficult territory of calculations and programs. By helping to create and popularize an accessible operating system called Windows, he brought light into that technological space. People could use programs more easily because his leadership helped them understand the computer. His influence and wealth grew from meeting that need.

The opportunity did not lie merely in possessing technical knowledge. It lay in translating that knowledge into a form ordinary people could use. Leadership often appears at precisely that point: between a difficult discovery and the people who need someone to make it understandable, available, and practical.

Leaders also arise because they can move in ways other people cannot. On a chessboard, the knight can leap over other pieces and move to positions unavailable to them. Its unusual movement makes it critical to the game. In the same way, leaders help people accomplish things by moving through a field differently.

Jesus, Martin Luther King Jr., John F. Kennedy, Gandhi, Alexander the Great, and Napoleon Bonaparte were very different people, but each entered a position shaped by the need for particular abilities. To become the greatest leaders we can be, we must identify where help is needed and develop our abilities in that area.

One urgent need today is care for nature and a cleaner, more efficient way of living. The opportunity exists at the individual, community, state, and national levels. We already see leaders teaching people to live with greener and more energy-efficient practices. A leader who enters this field can study its problems and apply leadership skills to their solutions.

The field is large enough for many kinds of leadership: inventors who improve energy, teachers who change habits, builders who design efficient homes, public servants who improve infrastructure, and families who demonstrate a cleaner way of living. Need does not always call one famous person. It can call thousands of people into coordinated service.

Christ did not simply walk into the temples shining like the sun and announce His identity. A deep need for fresh teaching prepared people to hear Him. His ministry entered a world that needed compassion, freedom, and equality. Religious institutions often focused on control, while He taught forgiveness, unconditional love, healing, and care for people outside one's own belief system. The parable of the Good Samaritan showed that mercy crosses religious and social boundaries.

Gandhi likewise arose when India needed liberation through nonviolence. He taught people to become more loving and to resist control without surrendering their humanity. His meditative presence, inclusion, and commitment to nonviolence met the need of his time.

New discoveries create new needs, and new needs call leaders into being. Democracy needed leaders who could move it forward. The possibility of reaching the moon called forth astronauts, engineers, and leaders such as Neil Armstrong and the creators of Apollo. The computer created the field in which Bill Gates, Steve Jobs, and other innovators could display their gifts.

During the eighteenth century, democratic ideas opened a new arena in which political leaders could act. During the space age, the newly visible possibility of leaving Earth created another arena. In the technological age, computers and networks created another. The emerging edge of discovery is often where leadership talent becomes easiest to see.

As leaders, we should look for what is newly being discovered and ask where our abilities can serve. Great leadership applied to a genuine need can become legendary. The need for equality gave history

Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy, and many others. The need for spiritual understanding created a place for Jesus and Buddha to teach goodness, honesty, and the way of life.

Human beings discover new possibilities, and leaders help the rest of us enter them. The Golden Key of Need asks two questions: Where is the darkness, and what light have you been given to bring there?

DOWNLOAD 04

THE GIFTS

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / THE GIFTS

A leader's gifts set that leader apart. Jesus taught that a candle is not meant to be hidden. The gifts within us are a form of light, and light cannot remain hidden forever. We can use our gifts only for ourselves, or we can use them for others. Leaders use them for others.

Human gifts are glorious to witness because a person exercising a true gift seems to shine. When we hear a prodigy play the piano, we recognize something that was given to that person. Leadership gifts have the same quality. A gifted leader does things on a different level and in a different way.

Jesus carried gifts of healing and resurrection. Gandhi could reach the hearts of people across his country. Martin Luther King Jr. carried the gift of a dream and vision that helped liberate Black Americans and opened a path that eventually included the election of Barack Obama. Such gifts accomplish more than fictional superheroes can accomplish. A superhero may display strength, but true leaders can liberate a people, awaken a country, heal lives, and establish teachings that endure for generations.

Leaders speak through their gifts as much as through their words. The greatest leaders continually exercise what they have been given. Even when we cannot see them, they are somewhere using their gifts. This consistency makes them reliable. Their light is not limited to one small corner of life.

Gifts are given, but they must also be discovered. Gold exists within the earth, yet someone must search and dig for it. We must look within and dig for our golden gifts.

Sometimes the visible ability points to a deeper gift. I loved basketball, and my jump shot was one of my strengths. As I grew into a man, I realized that the deeper gift was precision. I could be precise in speech, creative work, project planning, and vision. My visions were not cloudy; their resolution was clear.

Look closely at what you already do well, even if it seems recreational or ordinary. Underneath that ability may be a deeper quality that belongs to your leadership. Finding and using that quality for others is the Golden Key of Gifts.

DOWNLOAD 05

UNIFYING FORCE

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / UNIFYING FORCE

We do not know how far the unifying force extends, because we are still discovering the depth of the universe. Yet the heavens continually show us ordered movement. Planets, moons, and stars move through circular and elliptical patterns. Their axes and rotations shape those paths, but the bodies themselves draw us back to the circle—a form of wholeness, return, and unity.

Circular forms appear in the sun, planets, moons, and even the eyes through which living beings receive light. Sacred geometry has long treated the circle as a sign of wholeness. Whether we approach it scientifically, spiritually, or symbolically, the pattern helps us picture actions returning through a connected world.

The same pattern appears in human action. What we say and do travels outward and eventually comes full circle. A leader who understands this can act with greater care. Whether the leader is advancing a principle, law, teaching, book, or product, the action will affect the leader, the people, family, friends, and the surrounding world.

Treat someone unfairly, and the consequences spread outward like falling dominoes. Even if the consequence does not return physically, it returns mentally through guilt, shame, or a diminished spirit. Treat people with fairness and goodness, and that action also circles back.

Jesus acted selflessly, and more than two thousand years later billions of people worship in His name. Great churches, works of art, music, and architecture have been created in response to His life. That is one example of action returning through history. Destructive leaders reveal the other side: unity can multiply harm when it is directed toward hatred.

Adolf Hitler demonstrated that a person can wield unity with terrible effectiveness. The example matters because it prevents us from confusing the ability to gather people with goodness. Unification magnifies direction. A loving purpose can uplift millions; a hateful purpose can organize destruction on the same scale.

Leaders should identify where unity is most needed—usually where people need uplift, confidence, and a new way to act. The Golden Key of Unifying Force unlocks the power of people moving together. Team captains, spiritual leaders, artists, musicians, and builders all use this force.

Unity can be invoked almost anywhere. The practical question is: What do the people want that the leader also wants? That shared desire becomes a meeting place. The unifying force itself takes no side. Loving and unloving leaders can both wield it, which is why moral direction matters. A person who knows how to unite others can produce enormous activity toward a chosen end.

Human beings are created for connection. At birth we unite with family, especially mother and father. Togetherness belongs to the essence of life. The degree to which a leader can harness that force often determines the degree to which the leader can guide people.

The force is already present before a leader uses it. People want belonging, recognition, and shared purpose. Leadership does not manufacture that desire; it gives the desire a direction. This is why the common goal must be chosen with conscience.

Jesus presented self-sacrifice as the greatest love: giving one's life for one's friends. He extended the teaching even toward those who considered Him an enemy. This was a supreme expression of unity. History also shows leaders who united people quickly for destructive purposes. The force is powerful; the heart and purpose directing it determine its fruit.

People unite through art, money, family, faith, work, justice, and countless other purposes. Even a company that manufactures pencils unites people around the shared work of making pencils. Almost anything can become a point of union.

Use this key to create confidence in the people you lead. Find the honest good you share, name it clearly, and bring people together around it. The unifying force is among the greatest powers available to a leader because it transforms separate effort into common movement.

DOWNLOAD 06

WORDS

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / WORDS

A leader can improve the use of words by concentrating on the strongest and most life-giving part of the vocabulary. Much of everyday language leans toward fear, criticism, and negativity. It takes art and mastery to choose words from the positive side of language and use them to lift people.

A leader should also strengthen the voice itself. Practice through singing, public speaking, reading aloud, or another discipline that develops clarity and power. Listen to speakers and musicians with strong voices, study what makes them effective, and practice until your own voice can carry conviction without strain.

We still read the words of Jesus Christ after two thousand years, and the words of other spiritual and historical leaders have likewise survived for centuries. Our words should aspire to that kind of strength. A leader should ask whether the material being written or spoken today will still possess meaning when future generations uncover it.

When I release written material or speak publicly, I consider how long the words might have an impact. Some Buddhist traditions approach prayer with the desire that it remain meaningful for a millennium. That intention changes the care with which words are chosen.

A leader uses this key through two principal forms: the written word and the spoken word. In either form, the decisive question is not how many words are used, how many syllables they contain, or how intelligent they sound. The question is where the words come from. The strongest words do not come only from the brain. They come through the heart and the whole being of the leader.

The words of a leader are one of the Golden Keys that move people forward. They carry power when they agree with the leader's actions. Billions of words are spoken throughout the world every day. How many of them positively change even one individual life?

Choose words that can bear weight. Strengthen the voice that carries them. Join speech to action, and let the words arise from a truthful heart. That is the Golden Key of Words.

DOWNLOAD 07

VISION

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / VISION

A leader's vision is something other people cannot initially see. They can understand it only to the degree that the leader expresses it through words, actions, and work. The vision belongs first to the leader, and it is often what raises that person into leadership.

A visionary leader has a destination, a goal, and somewhere meaningful to take the people. The leader is confident that they can arrive, and the people finally receive a path. The leader's creativity has opened into a deeper layer than most people ordinarily reach.

Michelangelo helped lead the Church and the Renaissance toward a new expression of faith and spirituality through his work. When asked how he created sculptures that seemed alive, he reportedly explained that he could already see the angel in the stone and merely carved away what did not belong in order to set it free. That is vision in the creative realm: seeing what is present before anyone else can see it.

Creativity that deep can feel like energy entrusted to a person for a higher purpose. Leaders who want to strengthen vision can practice meditation and learn to enter a state of flow. Whatever moves us toward a peaceful and attentive state can deepen and enliven what we see. Music does this for me. When I listen, I see differently, and the visions that arise in peaceful flow are different from those produced while moving mechanically within society's expectations.

Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream. Jesus described the future and explained His vision to the people. Before presidents take office, they try to communicate a vision of what the nation can become. Even when leaders describe their vision well, their words may capture only part of the images moving within their minds.

Visionary and leader are closely connected terms. People who do not cultivate vision are easily led by those who do. Television, newspapers, celebrity culture, and constant media can feed us image after image and idea after idea until our own vision becomes buried.

Leaders must sometimes turn off the television and radio, choose music carefully, and dig for the vision beneath the noise. Even a person sitting on a New York City street in dirty clothes and begging for money carries a vision that could help lead the world if it were uncovered and developed.

We should teach this to children who may become future leaders, and parents who desire leadership for their children should protect and encourage their imagination. When visionary leaders come together, the possibilities multiply. It is like Michelangelo and Leonardo da Vinci shaping a work together, Van Gogh and Picasso sharing a canvas, or Shakespeare working with Mark Twain.

We see a version of this interconnected vision when presidents meet other leaders. When two people with power, vision, and the Golden Keys come together, each can see possibilities that neither could fully realize alone. Vision gives people a destination; shared vision gives them the power to travel there together.

DOWNLOAD 08

TRUST

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / TRUST

Our systems urgently need trust. Leaders who carry the Golden Keys will increasingly move into positions now occupied by people without them. Short-lived leaders may hold dominion for a time, but long-lasting leaders eventually rise and guide people through open doors.

Jesus Christ said, "I am the door." An open door represents unity and trust. When you feel truly united with someone, you can trust that person. If the door is continually locked or closed at crucial moments, trust diminishes. If it remains open, trust has room to grow.

Imagine a child knocking on a parent's bedroom door. When the parent says, "Come in," trust is strengthened. If the child repeatedly hears, "You cannot come in now," uncertainty begins to form. In an emergency, the child needs to know that the door will open and that safety is available. If the child knows that the door may remain closed, some measure of trust is lost.

This is a parable for leadership. To develop the qualities needed to reach our potential, we must practice being an open door. Begin by choosing the people with whom you want to build trust and keeping genuine avenues of communication open. Let them know how and when they can reach you, especially when something is truly wrong.

An open door does not mean abandoning all boundaries or rest. It means refusing to use silence, distance, or inaccessibility as tools of control. Keep communication dependable. Build this trust first with one person, then with family, coworkers, and the people you lead. That circle may eventually expand to a town, a state, or a country. We do not know the outer limits of trustworthy leadership.

In practical terms, a leader can begin with the phone and the ordinary channels of daily life. Do not casually tell trusted people that they may never call, text, or approach you when they genuinely need help. Set honest expectations, then keep them. Reliability transforms a communication channel into an open door.

Trust is among the highest forms of energy between people. Material goods do not compare with the gift of being trusted. A person who receives trust receives something more powerful than money or possessions. Leaders gain trust through intelligence, love, consistency, accessibility, and the other Golden Keys. It is easier to trust someone whose character has become visible through action.

Countries and economies are built on trust. We even call certain financial arrangements trust funds. Commerce cannot circulate without confidence that goods will cross borders, reach the correct destination, and be paid for as promised. Before an exchange can happen, trust must exist.

Importers trust exporters to send what was purchased. Exporters trust that payment will arrive. Workers trust that wages will be paid, families trust promises made within the home, and citizens trust public institutions with responsibilities no individual can carry alone. When trust collapses, circulation slows across the whole system.

Trustworthy people naturally move toward leadership because others are willing to place responsibility in their hands. Our present world urgently needs leaders who hold this key. No single Golden Key must be declared more important than all the others, because they work together. Yet without trust, the door between leader and people closes. With trust, that door remains open and a people can move forward together.

DOWNLOAD 09

PEACE

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / PEACE

Peace is the Golden Key that unlocks possibility for a leader and the people. A long-lasting leader moves in peace, speaks about peace, and works for peace. The leaders whose influence endures are princes of peace.

Such leaders have already considered the losses leadership may require. Jesus, Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., and John F. Kennedy all suffered loss. The degree to which you desire leadership is the degree to which you must prepare for sacrifice. When that possibility is honestly accepted, a person can move in peace rather than fear.

Many modern leadership positions are filled superficially, but a genuine leader can often be recognized by peace. Barack Obama, for example, moved with composure while accepting the unusual danger attached to becoming the first Black president. His speech, confidence, and posture communicated that he had considered the risk. When a leader carries peace, the people can receive peace.

Whatever political judgment someone makes about his presidency, the willingness to occupy that position deserves respect. He entered a role in which the threat of assassination could not be dismissed, yet he appeared with his family before the world and carried himself without visible panic. Acceptance of risk produced an ease that others could feel.

Most of us will not face the possibility of losing our lives, but we should be prepared to bear an appropriate cost for whoever is entrusted to us. The highest expression of leadership is the willingness to give one's life for another. We see a form of this in parenthood. Children rest more peacefully when they know their parents will protect them at real personal cost. That confidence helps establish peace within the family.

The opposite also teaches us something. When parents have not accepted leadership, children may grow up testing every boundary because they do not feel the calm strength of protection. Peace is not created by saying that everything is fine. It grows when sacrifice has been considered and responsibility has been accepted.

Peace also makes room for justice. A leader who carries justice treats people fairly and gives justice room to operate. Justice is not manufactured by a leader; it is respected and allowed to express itself.

Law can serve justice, but law can also confine it. Once a just outcome becomes precedent, justice has entered the narrow structure of legal rules. Judges and lawyers administer that structure, but leadership must also keep sight of the people and principles the structure exists to serve. The law depends upon constitutional principles; those principles do not depend upon every law written beneath them.

Judges and lawyers hold responsibility for law, but they do not possess the whole heart or destiny of a people. Their work commonly preserves a system and its precedents. Leadership has the additional task of asking whether the system still points upward—whether it is producing the freedom and justice for which it was created.

As law books grow larger, the words of the Constitution can seem smaller. Leaders should establish firm roots in principle so that people caught inside an automatic system remain protected by love, equality, freedom, and justice.

As a parent, I want my children to become their best, grow in confidence, equal or surpass me, and reach their potential. I do not want our relationship reduced to rules about cleaning rooms, washing dishes, or raking leaves. Those duties matter, but they are subordinate to the principles guiding the family. Leadership by principle asks what helps the person grow; leadership by rule asks only whether a condition was obeyed.

A leader holding the key of justice sees every person as part of the country. Every individual in America is America. If equality is a founding principle, our treatment of each person reveals how we are treating the nation itself. We need to return to constitutional roots and lead from principle rather than allowing procedure to replace conscience.

The founders did not write every future rule. They articulated principles capable of guiding people beyond the circumstances of one century. When daily regulation becomes more visible than equality, liberty, and justice, the structure has inverted its order. Rules should descend from principles; principles should not be shrunk to fit rules.

This does not mean pretending law has no value or placing oneself above it. Law can be a stepping-stone toward better leadership, and the suffering produced by a flawed system can become a catalyst for change. Rome contained darkness and injustice, yet it was also the world in which the leadership of Jesus confronted that darkness. Our present limitations may likewise prepare the way for leaders who develop better law, a better democracy, or even a form of society beyond what we presently call a country.

The point is not that darkness is good. It is that human beings can answer a dark structure with a greater light. The Roman world gave Jesus a setting in which teachings of mercy, dignity, and the kingdom of God could confront power. Two thousand years later, those teachings still influence institutions that once seemed permanent.

Human thought can evolve. Discipline should ultimately produce growth, not opposition for its own sake. When a parent relies on violence, a child may develop oppositional patterns. When society relies chiefly on chains and imprisonment, it can create the same resistance on a larger scale.

Animals protect territory, gather food for winter, seek safety, and defend their young without constructing vast systems of legal punishment. Human beings possess the greater instrument of reflective thought. That gift should enable us to produce more freedom, provision, security, and intelligent protection—not merely more elaborate methods of confinement.

Our gift of mind should be directed toward freedom, equality, safety, provision, and solutions. Animals instinctively gather food, seek safe ground, and protect their families. Human intelligence should enable us to do at least as well for one another. A principled leader expands the prosperity and freedom of the people rather than treating punishment as the central purpose of government.

Ask how many people a law has imprisoned and how many families it has truly helped. Lasting protection comes not merely from rules but from helping one another grow, evolve, and move toward a higher future. Justice should allow a person to be known as a human being, not only as words on a page. It should make room for truth and mercy.

An innocent working person can bear a hidden punishment through taxes and labor that sustain a costly system unable to see individuals clearly. Meanwhile, a defendant may be reduced to reports prepared by strangers. Justice requires more than processing. It requires leaders willing to intervene for people, hear their truth, and preserve mercy.

The Constitution was built around amendments and principles. A leader is likewise built around principles. As developing leaders, we should apply principle where others apply rules mechanically.

Imagine a manager whose workplace prohibits open shoes. When an employee breaks the rule, a mechanical response moves immediately toward punishment. Principled leadership first considers safety, circumstance, intent, and the best outcome for everyone involved. The rule remains meaningful, but it serves people rather than replacing judgment.

Perhaps the employee misunderstood, lacked proper shoes, or faced an emergency. Perhaps the rule protects against a genuine hazard. Justice does not ignore these facts. It sees more of them. Principle allows a leader to uphold safety while responding to the actual human being rather than to an abstract violation alone.

As our species grows, we may develop more principle-based ways of living. This would give justice more room to operate. Applying the highest available principles to a person who has done wrong is not the same as abolishing consequence. People do not escape cause and effect. The goal is a society in which resources, opportunity, and dignity reduce the conditions that produce crime.

If every person has enough to live, learn, work, and belong, many crimes lose the soil in which they grow. Principle-based leadership therefore asks not only what penalty follows an act but what conditions would prevent the act, repair the damage, and return strength to everyone affected.

A leader should study the best laws within the local jurisdiction and beyond it. The greatest laws are those that most benefit human beings, because human beings created law for human good. A leader may not be a lawyer or pass the bar, yet can still recognize and teach the principles with the greatest power to produce justice.

This study should cross borders. A practice that works well in another state or country may illuminate a better path at home. Leadership is not embarrassed to learn from another people. It collects the laws and principles that most effectively protect dignity and asks how their wisdom can be adapted.

Justice is like lighting a fire. Large logs alone do not easily catch. Small sticks and kindling create the flame that eventually sets the larger wood alight. People in poor or weak positions are not disposable; they are part of the same unifying fire. A society concerned only with powerful people, winners, and the wealthy cannot sustain the flame of justice.

The smallest pieces are not less important simply because they are small. Without kindling, the largest log remains cold. In the same way, justice that protects only the "big fish" eventually loses its light. A leader keeps the entire fire alive by giving attention to people at both ends of the social spectrum.

Peace is not passivity. It is the strength to accept sacrifice, protect people, govern by principle, leave room for mercy, and pursue justice without becoming consumed by conflict. That is why peace is a Golden Key of enduring leadership.

DOWNLOAD 10

FUTURE

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / FUTURE

The future is a Golden Key held by every leader, even when it does not yet appear to be in the leader's hand. What exists only in the mind today may eventually enter the physical world. Some call this destiny, fulfilled purpose, or a path well walked. Great leaders rise to meet a future that can seem prepared for them.

Sometimes we meet people whose presence feels unusually strong. They may not yet occupy a leadership role, but we sense the force of their potential. What we feel is the future—the destiny toward which their words, gifts, and actions are moving.

Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy, Barack Obama, Nikola Tesla, Albert Einstein, Isaac Newton, Vincent van Gogh, Leonardo da Vinci, and Michelangelo all created in the present while carrying a presence that belonged to the future. Could Michelangelo have believed the effect of his work five hundred years later? Could Lincoln have fully imagined the outcome of his courage? Could anyone standing beside Jesus have pictured the reach of His teachings two thousand years afterward?

Leaders must learn where their future contains the most light and good fortune. This is not a claim that we can fulfill prophecies at will. It means that deep authenticity and careful attention can guide us toward the work, place, and people connected to our highest possibility.

The future begins as a mental realm before it becomes physical. A building exists in imagination before construction. A movement exists in conviction before people gather. A work of art exists in vision before paint touches canvas. Leadership respects this unseen stage and gives it enough discipline to become visible.

Parents sometimes know intuitively that they must leave a country and become immigrants so their family can survive and prosper. Great leaders cultivate this inward direction. They ask whether the greatest light lies in the present location, relationships, or work—or whether courage requires movement.

Few people fully meet the light of their future, but figures such as Michael Jordan, Gandhi, and Bruce Lee show what can happen when preparation and destiny meet. The future is formed through a coalition of past and present. We have hope because present action can answer and transform the past. We should embrace not only technological advancement but also our evolution from undisciplined creatures into leaders who hold the Golden Keys.

Legendary people did more than wait for destiny. They guided themselves toward it. Their leadership skills helped them recognize the field in which their gifts could mature, endure the training required, and act when opportunity arrived.

Predicting the future does not always require clairvoyance. Because future results grow from past actions, patterns can teach us a great deal. Families, nations, markets, and individuals repeat trends. Investors study a stock's history to estimate its future movement. A person who has driven the same car for ten years often senses when it will need service because its patterns have become familiar.

Nations also reveal cycles. Periods of war and peace, expansion and contraction, unity and division can recur across generations. A leader studies these movements to recognize danger before it becomes inevitable. The purpose of pattern recognition is not fatalism. It is the opportunity to intervene.

Skilled investors examine how many months a stock has risen, how long it has fallen, and what conditions accompanied each movement. They call these patterns trends. Their success depends partly on how accurately they connect past performance to future probability while remembering that no prediction is guaranteed.

The owner of an aging car performs a similar act on a personal scale. Years of listening to the engine, feeling the steering, and observing maintenance intervals create an intuitive sense that a checkup is approaching. Familiarity turns memory into foresight.

A leader studies history without becoming imprisoned by it. Patterns reveal what is likely; principled action determines whether the pattern will be repeated or changed. The Golden Key of Future is the ability to recognize direction, choose the path with the greatest light, and act today in a way that prepares the good we hope to meet tomorrow.

DOWNLOAD 11

HUNGER

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / HUNGER

Hunger is a Golden Key because passion for leadership fuels accomplishment on behalf of others. A true leader's hunger is not easily satisfied. Even after stepping down from an official position, the leader continues to guide people in some form. Leadership has become part of the person's purpose.

Some leaders hunger for money, possessions, status, or ego. A leader holding the Golden Keys hungers to lead people in the best manner possible. Life itself seems to give such people their desire. They are drawn toward helping others reach a better collective position.

Because the hunger is connected to purpose, retirement from a title does not end it. A former president may continue public service. A teacher may continue advising after leaving a classroom. A parent continues caring after a child becomes an adult. The office can end while the leadership remains.

The true leader of America, for example, would hunger for genuine equality. Jesus taught that the master is not greater than the servant, nor the servant greater than the master. A wise leader therefore treats the poorest person with the dignity given to the self. Albert Einstein was said to treat a university janitor with the same human respect he gave its principal.

National happiness can also reveal the quality of leadership. Countries whose people report security, trust, and contentment show that public success is more than the wealth or fame of rulers. A leader should want the people themselves to flourish.

America has pursued equality for centuries. The Constitution describes rights and principles that point toward a destination we have not yet fully reached. Leadership requires a hunger strong enough to continue moving the people toward that promise.

The document did not claim that the nation had already perfected freedom, equality, and justice. It established principles toward which future generations could move. The leader's hunger closes the distance between the declared right and the lived reality.

The passion can resemble the love of a person who desires to share an entire life with another. The leadership role becomes a covenant with the people. The leader remains hungry until the people are truly content and flourishing.

That comparison shows both devotion and responsibility. A healthy covenant does not use the beloved for ego. It seeks the beloved's good. In the same way, leadership hunger must desire the people's well-being rather than their dependence or applause.

That hunger must be disciplined. It can move in a productive direction under a moral leader guided by freedom, fairness, and justice, or it can drive an unprincipled leader into destructive repetitions of history.

Diet gives us a simple metaphor. A person following a healthy diet and a person eating without restraint may feel the same hunger, but they direct it differently. One chooses food that produces wholeness and strength; the other may choose what eventually produces weakness. Hunger is not automatically good. Discipline gives hunger its direction.

The disciplined person may even eat abundantly within a healthy pattern and become stronger. The undisciplined person can consume the same amount of energy through choices that produce weight, fatigue, and eventual breakdown. The appetite is equal; the outcome differs because wisdom selected what would feed it.

We develop leadership hunger by sincerely desiring what is best. A person who decides to pursue the highest good begins to assume leadership over the self. That first taste of growth produces a desire for more growth, and the cycle continues.

The cycle must remain guided by moral and ethical judgment. Discipline and an intuitive knowledge of the good can direct every appetite. When you accept leadership, take this key and develop a hunger to lead in the best way you can.

DOWNLOAD 12

SOLUTIONS

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / SOLUTIONS

A leader is solution-minded. Whatever the desired destination, solutions become the stepping-stones that make arrival possible. Some people are so well-rounded that they can offer an answer to almost any problem. This often comes from intelligence and the ability to simplify what appears complex.

The leader gives more attention to the solution than to the problem. The greatest leaders do not treat fighting and war as final answers. Conflict may produce a temporary result, but a true Solution—with a capital S—benefits both parties. It is not merely a win-win outcome; it seeks the best responsible outcome available to everyone involved.

Suppose my son prefers cereal while I prefer bacon and eggs, but we want to enjoy breakfast together. Leadership looks for something better than forcing either preference. We might improve the meal with a large bowl of fruit and honey that I enjoy and that can also be added to his cereal. The example is simple, but the principle applies widely: enlarge the options until shared benefit becomes possible.

Speed matters as well. Strong leaders formulate, act upon, and complete solutions promptly. The power of a solution is measured not only by the idea in the mind but by its completion in life. History remembers leaders by the problems they solved and the manner in which they solved them.

Speed without depth creates another problem, while depth without action leaves the original problem untouched. Leadership joins careful perception to timely execution. A solution becomes historically meaningful when people can actually live inside its result.

To obtain this key, look deeper than ordinary calculation. Our first interpretation may be wrong, and ego can trap us inside it. Study great problem solvers. Einstein observed that a clever person solves a problem while a wise person avoids it. Einstein, Tesla, and Newton looked beyond the accepted paradigm to explain light, gravity, energy, and other realities that were not immediately visible.

Their formulas were the visible result of inward work. They examined assumptions, entertained what others could not yet see, and found a deeper order beneath appearances. Solution-minded leaders practice the same humility: the current paradigm may be incomplete.

Sometimes we must set aside what we think we know in order to discover a fresh answer. Meditation, introspection, reflection, and study prepare us, but some solutions also rise from the heart through God, Christ, life, or the animating force by which we understand inspiration. Large solutions require a leader healthy, energetic, and motivated enough to complete them.

Books on problem-solving and biographies of inventors can train the mind, but preparation cannot manufacture every revelation. At times an answer appears whole within the heart. The leader's responsibility is then to test it, give it form, and gather enough energy and assistance to carry it into the world.

Expect resistance. A new solution interrupts familiar cycles of thought and emotion, and people often defend those cycles fiercely. Prepare to meet resistance with all the Golden Keys—with love, words, unity, trust, peace, and integrity—so it can be dissolved rather than needlessly intensified.

The ordinary mind can move in a loop: a thought produces an emotion, the emotion reinforces the thought, and the cycle begins again. A genuine solution may break that loop and create a new way of thinking. Resistance often appears because the cycle feels familiar, even when it causes suffering.

Study not only human leaders but life itself. How does a tree answer damage? How does an ocean respond to contamination? The ocean moves, dilutes, binds, breaks down, and absorbs. In a similar way, when someone spills harm across my reputation, I can bring fresh goodness from the center of my abilities, use creativity to break down the injury, and refuse to become identical to it.

Nature, communities, and cultures contain countless models of problem-solving. We can study how they survive and adapt, then integrate their wisdom into personal and collective problems. Many people ask, "What would Jesus do?" The same habit can expand outward and inward: What can we learn from God, the universe, the galaxy, the solar system, the Earth, the ocean, living creatures, great civilizations, and the best within ourselves?

An oil spill offers a vivid natural picture. The ocean moves water, minerals, organisms, and chemical processes through the damaged area as the larger system attempts to disperse, bind, and break down contamination. A leader facing reputational harm can imitate the pattern by bringing fresh good work from the center, surrounding the damage with truth, and allowing consistent creative action to reduce what the injury can control.

Trees respond differently: they seal wounds, redirect growth, deepen roots, and continue reaching toward light. Different communities and cultures preserve their own knowledge about surviving hardship. A leader does not need to copy one model blindly. The world offers a library of solutions.

The Golden Key of Solutions turns vision into a path. It seeks the deepest truth, the broadest benefit, and the action capable of carrying an answer into completion.

DOWNLOAD 13

INTEGRITY

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / INTEGRITY

Integrity brings a leader into radiance. It is closely related to principle and virtue: justice, freedom, equality, honesty, courage, and the willingness to treat another person as a human being. A leader grounded in integrity is protected against forces that would purchase, frighten, or manipulate a weaker character.

The human body has an integrity of its own: its systems work together under natural laws to preserve health. In the same way, a leader should work within the highest laws governing the leader and the people so that health and radiance can move through the whole community.

Integrity acts like a force field around leadership. In an internet society, people can attack a leader's reputation and question the character of the people who follow. What people say to our faces may differ from what they say behind our backs. When we are absent, integrity is the witness that can still speak for us. Leaders who want the moral strength of history's greatest figures should study their lives, but should also examine the virtues already growing within themselves.

One principle that has grown within me is "live and let live." Leadership reaches a high rung when it becomes strong enough to protect life rather than control it. Debates about integrity are not merely arguments about appearances. They ask what exists beneath our rules and whether our conduct agrees with the principles we claim.

Perhaps this virtue was present in me from the beginning and matured through experience. That is how virtues often develop: life gives them occasions to appear, be tested, and become conscious. A leader should identify which virtues are already alive within and deliberately strengthen them.

Every leader should ask: Which laws are most guided by integrity? Many laws divide the world into a rewarded side and a punished side. A leader holding this Golden Key looks beyond that immature division and seeks laws that protect all people. America's highest promises—equality for all, freedom for all, and justice for all—are examples of principles large enough to include everyone.

When debate remains trapped at the level of a material problem, the argument may never end. A leader can often move the conversation upward by asking which spiritual virtue would heal, improve, or optimize the situation. A discussion about integrity reaches deeper than a contest over who can impose a preferred rule.

Rules should not exist merely because they benefit the people imposing them. When a society uses one set of rules for the powerful and another for everyone else, it creates a deep wound. Our desire to survive may tempt us to accept that arrangement, but integrity requires leaders to keep moving law and custom toward fairness.

Rules are commonly administered by leaders and obeyed by followers. That structure can quietly establish superiority and damage the integrity of a group. The ultimate goal of leadership is to create more leaders. A system that permanently reserves judgment for one class and obedience for another works against that goal.

This division creates cold distance between people. The leader who sincerely calls everyone a brother or sister must examine whether the rules imposed on others are rules the leader would accept personally. Brotherhood cannot remain only a word; it must alter jurisdiction, punishment, and benefit.

You can often recognize these leaders by the language of brotherhood and sisterhood. They understand that human dignity cannot be distributed according to class, race, usefulness, or popularity.

Our court system illustrates the danger of removing a person from decisions about that person's own freedom. A lawyer and prosecutor may negotiate what to present to a judge, while the defendant has little control and may not even speak directly to the judge. People spend substantial money to participate in a process that can feel staged around them rather than conducted with them.

In many cases, the agreement reached by the lawyers becomes the outcome the judge adopts. Three trained officials can exercise enormous influence while the person who will live with the decision feels voiceless. Integrity asks how responsibility can remain professional without erasing the human being at the center.

A creative leader might establish an additional role—a judicial overseer, justice preserver, or independent advocate—whose duty is to observe the proceedings for the person whose freedom is at stake and ensure that integrity and justice remain intact. Whether or not that exact role is adopted, leadership should keep creating benefits and safeguards for people wherever a rule has concentrated power above them.

Our treatment of marijuana offers a painful example of changing judgment. For years, people lost freedom, work, and family life through severe punishment for possessing a plant. Later, many states and medical institutions recognized therapeutic uses, while stores openly sold products derived from it. The shift forces us to remember the families harmed under the former judgment. Integrity does not erase accountability, but it has the courage to examine whether punishment was just.

Holding this key therefore requires courage. A leader may have to challenge customs, rules, or institutions while they are still popular. When people lose freedom, money, and family through injustice, the whole country eventually carries the cost. A nation whose leaders learn to treat people as they would wish to be treated can move from debt and division toward prosperity.

The virtuous objection is larger than one argument about the medical use of a plant. It concerns the natural right of people to life, freedom, family, and a future. No matter how negatively we judge a person, that person entered the world through months of intimate care. A mother carried and protected that life through pregnancy. Every human being passed through that initiation of dependence and love before birth. Remembering this makes cruelty harder to justify and fairness easier to understand.

No government, institution, or majority created that original dignity. Leadership inherits an obligation to honor it. A country that apologizes for unjust treatment, repairs what can be repaired, and begins treating people as leaders would wish to be treated can recover moral and material strength.

Integrity also applies to ordinary leadership. A parent, teacher, employer, public official, or friend should ask whether decisions protect the dignity of everyone affected. Convenience is not the same as virtue. Winning is not the same as justice. Compliance is not the same as goodness.

The leader of integrity gives people fair consideration, tells the truth, keeps principles when they become costly, and repairs harm when judgment changes. This does not make leadership weak. It brings leadership to its highest level because people can trust power that remains governed by conscience.

Take this Golden Key and use it to align the inner person with outward action. Integrity is what allows the leader to stand in the light without hiding what created the result.

DOWNLOAD 14

INTELLIGENCE

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / INTELLIGENCE

Leadership intelligence is more than storing information. It is the ability to find truth, form a reliable path, and open the minds of people. An intelligent leader develops steps that can be tested, understood, and used—not simply ideas that sound impressive.

The most intelligent person is not merely the person who solves the most problems. Leadership intelligence brings people to their promised land—the destination the people genuinely desire to reach with the leader, not a destination imposed for the leader's private benefit. Bringing an entire people together and helping them move toward one place demands intellect, strategy, and emotional intelligence.

Intellect allows us to study, remember facts, and pass examinations. Emotional intelligence reaches into the survival and feeling systems of human beings. It requires greater willpower to remain calm, collected, and peaceful during the tests of life than to repeat information from a book. That calm intelligence allows a leader to enter situations of oppression or conflict and seek the greatest benefit for the people.

A leader may work among other leaders who do not want the people to travel as far toward freedom. Behind closed doors, the long-lasting leader continues designing a strategy. The plan may extend across years and consist of deliberate steps as dependable as a trusted formula.

The public sees a speech or decision, but not always the preparation behind it: the reading, emotional discipline, conversations, revisions, and patient timing. Intelligence turns vision into sequence. It knows which step must happen first so that a later step becomes possible.

When such a leader explains the plan, people light up. They gather, shout, cry, move, and begin to act because the strategy reaches both mind and heart. Those who heard Martin Luther King Jr. during the great civil-rights marches knew they were participating in history. The intelligence within the leader radiated beyond the visible crowd toward people not yet born.

Leadership intelligence can be imagined as light of different wattages. A dim light occupies a room without revealing much. A powerful light opens eyes, awakens minds, restores hope, and helps people feel healthier, happier, and more capable. We can still receive that light through recordings of a great speech decades later. That is one mark of long-lasting leadership.

Some officeholders carry enough light to fill a temporary position. Others seem created by life, destiny, or God to connect people with universal principles such as unity, freedom, justice, prosperity, and equal human strength. Those principles act like clear openings through which light travels without a shade.

A gifted person can choose a role too small for the gift. The role then becomes a lampshade: some light escapes, but much of it remains covered. The answer is not to despise ordinary work. It is to choose the highest responsible expression available and refuse to let a title become the boundary of the mind.

Each person carries light that should not be hidden. Jesus taught that a light is not placed beneath a covering. If life is choosing to shine through you, the light will continue pressing outward. Do not choose a role that permanently places a lampshade over your mind. A professor, professional, or employee can certainly lead, but no title should confine a person to repeating a curriculum when a larger teaching has been entrusted to that person.

I chose to write because this platform allows my light to travel. A reader may encounter an idea about leadership here that no formal position would have allowed me to share. Intelligence becomes leadership when it is offered for another person's growth.

I am a teacher and a registered nurse, but authorship gave me another platform through which to share what life entrusted to me. A person may still need ordinary employment to pay bills and care for family. Even then, preserve some platform—perhaps only one day a week—where your creative light can be exercised and respected.

One of its greatest tools is optimization. Optimization means continually asking what the best available choice is—not from vanity, but from the desire to bring life toward its highest responsible condition.

The intelligent leader seeks the best available questions, answers, resources, learning, relationships, places, purchases, health, wealth, defense, offense, methods, thoughts, emotions, principles, and paths. The leader studies what is available and refuses to settle automatically for a lesser option.

Optimization touches the whole life. Seek the best available respect to give people, the best learning to receive, the best affirmations to practice, the best future to build, the best health and wealth to cultivate, and the best thoughts and emotions you can responsibly choose. Seek the best principle and path—not merely the easiest one.

This includes the best available defense and offense, the best method and modality, the strongest people with whom to build, and the most constructive place to direct attention. "Best available" matters: optimization begins with reality as it is, then chooses the highest option genuinely present rather than fantasizing about a perfect option that cannot yet be used.

As this becomes habitual, suboptimal patterns begin to dissolve because attention no longer feeds them. People follow with greater confidence when a leader consistently asks what choice is most truthful, healthy, just, and effective. The leader may not be Moses guiding an entire people to a promised land; optimization still applies to a family, workplace, relationship, and personal life.

This does not mean demanding perfection from every moment or discarding people who are still growing. It means directing attention toward what strengthens life. When attention consistently moves toward the optimal, many suboptimal habits lose the energy that sustained them.

Future leaders will increasingly use this form of intelligence. Their followers will gain confidence because the shared question becomes, "What is the best available path?" Earlier leaders also sought what they believed was best for themselves and their people; optimization makes that search conscious, disciplined, and repeatable.

Apply it first to the areas already entrusted to you. What is the healthiest available decision for the family? What is the clearest way to teach? What is the most honorable response to conflict? What is the strongest use of time and money? What choice produces the best future without violating love, freedom, justice, or integrity?

Intelligence without the other keys can become cold calculation. Joined to love, trust, peace, vision, and integrity, it becomes a light that opens doors in the human mind. That is why intelligence is a Golden Key of leadership.

DOWNLOAD 15

TRADITION

INSTALLATION FOLDER LEADERSHIP / TRADITION

A leader creates traditions for the self and the people because no one can fully predict how far a good tradition will reach. Traditions carry values across time. Until humanity reaches complete freedom and learns to live together as brothers and sisters, tradition will remain a Golden Key.

Healthy traditions help us remember what daily pressure makes easy to forget. A weekly day of worship, a family meal, a shared prayer, or a recurring act of service can increase love, health, confidence, and prosperity. Their power grows through repetition.

Holidays show how powerfully tradition can organize memory. Easter may bring children and families together around worship and Easter eggs. New Year's Eve gathers people to watch the ball drop and welcome another year. The energy does not come only from the activity. It comes from knowing that people across generations return to it together.

We may not establish a sacrament like Christ breaking bread, but leaders can create smaller practices that still guide people. A mother or father might establish a special breakfast on one day each week as a reminder that the family is moving together toward greater love, health, and prosperity.

A manager can establish a simple workplace tradition: coffee and food on a certain morning, recognition of good work, or a regular time when people gather without pressure. The material object is not the heart of the tradition. The dependable act tells people that they belong and that something good awaits them.

Bringing coffee or doughnuts every Monday may seem small, but the practice can motivate workers and give them confidence. Christmas gifts operate similarly. The deepest power is not located in the object; it lies in opening gifts with family and friends within a shared tradition.

Tradition matters even when leadership involves only one other person. In a relationship, repeated shared practices become a form of glue. Couples who create traditions often possess a stronger sense of continuity than couples who leave every connection to chance. The tradition may be as simple as eating out on a certain evening, watching a movie together, walking, praying, or protecting time for conversation.

A tradition gives people a future to anticipate. It places a point of light on the calendar and says, "We will meet here again." In uncertain seasons, that promise can carry surprising strength.

The four classical elements offer one way to design a memorable tradition. Earth can appear through food and the table. Water can appear through a meaningful drink or fine juice. Fire can appear through candles or warm light. Air can appear through music, fragrance, prayer, or the atmosphere created in the room. These details engage the senses and help memory take root.

Tradition must remain alive. A practice that no longer serves love, truth, or growth should be examined rather than obeyed mechanically. The purpose is not to imprison the future inside the past. It is to carry forward what gives a people identity, strength, gratitude, and unity.

The natural elements can help make traditions memorable. Earth appears in a meal, bread, fruit, or a tree. Water appears in a shared drink or fine juice. Fire appears in candles, colored lights, and fireworks. Air appears outdoors, in music, or through a fragrance associated with the occasion. New Year's Eve and the Fourth of July use fire through fireworks. Easter often includes the open air of spring. Christmas joins the earth of the tree with the fire of lights.

When leaders intentionally combine time, meaning, people, and sensory memory, a practice becomes easier to love and repeat. There are countless ways to use this understanding to create traditions of the highest quality.

The leader asks what should be remembered, what should be repeated, and what future the repetition is quietly building. Create traditions that make people more loving, healthy, confident, connected, and prepared for what comes next. That is the Golden Key of Tradition —and the final leadership download for the new Jesus New OS.

FINAL CHAPTER

THANK YOU FOR READING

THERMAL PROTECTION LIGHT FOR THE GENERATIONS

Thank you for reading. Right now, I feel that this book will give you an ultimate amount of light for your future. It will also give you an ultimate amount of light for your family's future. This book is here for you so that you can weather the storms of life.

As Christians, we will ultimately weather storms and face the heat. Every piece of technology is made with temperature gauges and thermal guards to protect it from heat so that it does not shut down. Your mind is the same way. Your mind needs that heat protection.

When we talk about heat, we are talking about the stress of life: things that are not fair, injustices, persecutions, deaths in the family, ill will from strangers, ill will from your community, lies placed upon your name, and all types of evil that can come upon us. They are all there either to overheat us or to strengthen us. This book is an ultimate tool that can be used when that heat rises.

We are grateful to God that He is able to give us this kind of wisdom, knowledge, and protection. It is God's will that He chooses people to write these books and give them to you so that our generations can have more light. The more this book is read, the more light enters this world. The more my technology is used, the more light goes into this world.

Scripture is there for us to protect and preserve that light. One of the main preservations of Scripture is our mind: remembering the stories of the Bible, remembering God's good graces, and remembering His promises to us. During our hardships, when it seems as though our system is going to overheat, we can continue through the habits we have formed and the disciplines we grow into through Jesus New OS.

That protection is available whether it is your personal Jesus New OS, lived through your own life and discipleship, or the technology that I offer you. I hope you enjoyed this book. God loves us. Thank you for carrying this light forward. Let us share the technology until Jesus New OS is the technology that this world depends on, that the solar system depends on, that this galaxy depends on, and, ultimately, that the universe depends on.

END-OF-BOOK RESOURCE

SOFTWARE FOR YOUR OS

250 KJV SCRIPTURE REFERENCES FOR THE MIND

Scripture references are to the King James Version.

Renewing and Directing the Mind

1. Romans 12:2
2. Philippians 4:8
3. 2 Corinthians 10:5
4. Colossians 3:2
5. Ephesians 4:23
6. 1 Peter 1:13
7. Romans 8:5
8. Romans 8:6
9. Romans 8:27
10. Romans 7:25
11. 1 Corinthians 2:16
12. Philippians 2:5
13. Colossians 3:10
14. Titus 1:15
15. 2 Timothy 1:7
16. Hebrews 8:10
17. Hebrews 10:16
18. 1 Peter 4:1
19. 1 Peter 5:8

20. Luke 24:45
21. Mark 12:30
22. Matthew 22:37
23. Luke 10:27
24. Isaiah 26:3
25. Psalm 51:10

Thoughts and the Heart

26. Proverbs 4:23
27. Proverbs 23:7
28. Psalm 19:14
29. Psalm 139:23-24
30. Jeremiah 17:9
31. Jeremiah 17:10
32. Genesis 6:5
33. 1 Chronicles 28:9
34. Proverbs 12:5
35. Proverbs 15:26
36. Proverbs 16:3
37. Proverbs 16:9
38. Proverbs 19:21
39. Proverbs 21:2
40. Proverbs 21:5
41. Proverbs 24:9
42. Isaiah 55:7
43. Isaiah 55:8-9
44. Isaiah 65:2
45. Jeremiah 4:14
46. Ezekiel 11:19
47. Matthew 5:8
48. Matthew 9:4
49. Matthew 15:18-19
50. Luke 6:45

Wisdom and Understanding

51. Proverbs 1:5
52. Proverbs 1:7
53. Proverbs 2:2-6
54. Proverbs 3:5-6
55. Proverbs 3:7
56. Proverbs 3:13

57. Proverbs 4:5
58. Proverbs 4:7
59. Proverbs 4:11
60. Proverbs 8:11
61. Proverbs 9:10
62. Proverbs 10:14
63. Proverbs 10:23
64. Proverbs 11:2
65. Proverbs 12:15
66. Proverbs 13:10
67. Proverbs 13:16
68. Proverbs 14:6
69. Proverbs 14:8
70. Proverbs 14:15
71. Proverbs 15:14
72. Proverbs 16:16
73. Proverbs 18:15
74. Proverbs 19:8
75. James 1:5

Peace and Anxiety

76. Philippians 4:6-7
77. John 14:27
78. John 16:33
79. Psalm 4:8
80. Psalm 23:4
81. Psalm 29:11
82. Psalm 34:4
83. Psalm 34:17
84. Psalm 37:7
85. Psalm 46:1
86. Psalm 46:10
87. Psalm 55:22
88. Psalm 56:3-4
89. Psalm 62:1-2
90. Psalm 91:1-2
91. Psalm 94:19
92. Psalm 112:7
93. Psalm 119:165
94. Proverbs 3:24
95. Proverbs 12:25
96. Isaiah 26:3-4

97. Isaiah 41:10
98. Matthew 6:25
99. Matthew 6:34
100. 1 Peter 5:7

Courage and Freedom from Fear

101. Deuteronomy 31:6
102. Deuteronomy 31:8
103. Joshua 1:7
104. Joshua 1:9
105. 1 Samuel 17:47
106. 2 Samuel 22:31
107. 1 Chronicles 28:20
108. 2 Chronicles 20:15
109. Nehemiah 8:10
110. Psalm 3:3
111. Psalm 18:2
112. Psalm 27:1
113. Psalm 27:14
114. Psalm 31:24
115. Psalm 34:7
116. Psalm 56:11
117. Psalm 91:4-5
118. Psalm 118:6
119. Proverbs 28:1
120. Isaiah 12:2
121. Isaiah 35:4
122. Isaiah 43:1-2
123. Daniel 10:19
124. Romans 8:31
125. Hebrews 13:6

Focus, Discipline, and Diligence

126. Proverbs 4:25-27
127. Proverbs 6:6-8
128. Proverbs 10:4
129. Proverbs 12:24
130. Proverbs 13:4
131. Proverbs 14:23
132. Proverbs 16:32
133. Proverbs 20:13

134. Proverbs 21:25
135. Proverbs 22:29
136. Proverbs 24:27
137. Ecclesiastes 9:10
138. Matthew 6:33
139. Luke 9:62
140. Luke 16:10
141. John 9:4
142. Romans 12:11
143. 1 Corinthians 9:24
144. 1 Corinthians 9:25
145. 1 Corinthians 9:27
146. 1 Corinthians 15:58
147. Galatians 6:9
148. Ephesians 5:15-16
149. Colossians 3:23
150. 2 Thessalonians 3:13

Learning, Memory, and Meditation

151. Deuteronomy 6:6-7
152. Deuteronomy 11:18
153. Joshua 1:8
154. Psalm 1:1-3
155. Psalm 49:3
156. Psalm 63:6
157. Psalm 77:11-12
158. Psalm 78:5-7
159. Psalm 90:12
160. Psalm 103:2
161. Psalm 104:34
162. Psalm 111:10
163. Psalm 119:11
164. Psalm 119:15
165. Psalm 119:18
166. Psalm 119:27
167. Psalm 119:34
168. Psalm 119:66
169. Psalm 119:73
170. Psalm 119:97
171. Psalm 119:99
172. Psalm 119:105
173. Psalm 119:130

174. Psalm 143:5
175. John 14:26

Discernment and Sound Judgment

176. 1 Kings 3:9
177. Job 12:13
178. Job 28:28
179. Psalm 25:4-5
180. Psalm 32:8
181. Psalm 119:125
182. Proverbs 2:10-11
183. Proverbs 3:21
184. Proverbs 8:5
185. Proverbs 10:13
186. Proverbs 14:33
187. Proverbs 15:21
188. Proverbs 17:24
189. Proverbs 18:1
190. Proverbs 18:13
191. Proverbs 18:17
192. Proverbs 22:3
193. Proverbs 27:12
194. Isaiah 11:2
195. Isaiah 30:21
196. Matthew 7:16
197. John 7:24
198. Romans 12:3
199. 1 Corinthians 14:20
200. Hebrews 5:14

Resisting Temptation and Deception

201. Psalm 101:3
202. Psalm 119:9
203. Psalm 119:37
204. Psalm 141:3-4
205. Proverbs 1:10
206. Proverbs 4:14-15
207. Proverbs 14:7
208. Matthew 4:4
209. Matthew 4:7
210. Matthew 4:10

211. Matthew 26:41
212. John 8:31-32
213. John 8:44
214. Romans 6:12
215. Romans 13:14
216. 1 Corinthians 6:12
217. 1 Corinthians 10:13
218. 1 Corinthians 15:33
219. Galatians 5:16
220. Ephesians 4:27
221. Ephesians 6:11
222. James 1:14-15
223. James 4:7
224. 1 Peter 2:11
225. 1 John 4:1

Hope, Joy, Perseverance, and the Mind of Christ

226. Psalm 16:8
227. Psalm 30:5
228. Psalm 40:1-2
229. Psalm 42:5
230. Psalm 71:14
231. Psalm 126:5
232. Proverbs 17:22
233. Isaiah 40:29
234. Isaiah 40:31
235. Jeremiah 29:11
236. Lamentations 3:22-23
237. Habakkuk 3:17-18
238. Matthew 11:28-30
239. Romans 5:3-5
240. Romans 8:28
241. Romans 12:12
242. Romans 15:13
243. 2 Corinthians 4:16-18
244. Galatians 5:22-23
245. Philippians 1:6
246. Philippians 3:13-14
247. Philippians 4:13
248. Colossians 3:15
249. Hebrews 12:1-2
250. James 1:2-4

EXPERIENCE JESUS NEW OS

Now it is time for you to actually experience Jesus New OS through your technology. Download Jesus New OS onto your phone, enter the connected world, and continue through the books, radio, Scripture, and official work available at these destinations.

PineconePhone.com

JesusNew.com

JesusNewRadio.com

ChristBooks.org

LatinVulgate.org

ChristianCassarly.com

ChristianCassarly.net

But it doesn't stop there. Jesus OS was created not just for you to have a phone in your hand, but to create an entire city. So we've created Jesus Dash, which is an OS for an installable tab that can go anywhere. You can install one in your bedroom, in your shower, or in your boat. We will have dashes for cars, airplanes, first-class travel, and private jets.

We will also have a Jesus Dash incentive, a free incentive for any country or alliance of countries to be as courageous as me and use Jesus Dash in the best way possible: to unify an entire city with the Jesus Dash system. Each tab would unify with the user's phone, and they would all have a sense of unity within the electronics. This means that you could take your phone and sign in or connect it, in some way, shape, or form, to any Jesus Dash tab.

We have a technology that we call user learning, otherwise known as Unity Learning (UL). It takes all the information from the phone you use and creates a kind of higher extension of yourself. So when you log in to your tab, or use your phone on other tabs, this higher self follows you wherever you go in the city. And everyone has their own higher self in the city.

We also created Codex Library, a digital library of 250,000 books. It's the biggest Christian digital library in the world, and we are going for the next goal of 400,000 books, eventually reaching one million books. Our desire is to create a library within that Jesus Dash city. But for now, for any country or alliance of countries that would like a Christian-exclusive library, the first one ever, we would offer the library for printing, preferably all in Moroccan leather, so everyone can have the Codex.

But the Codex is actually within Jesus Dash and within the Jesus New OS phones, and that library becomes alive through AI. So you're able to literally talk to the library, and it will bring you back responses to improve your life or give you more wisdom. And then, on top of that, we also have an option to use UL with it, so it talks like you. It sounds like you. It feels like you. And this technology follows you wherever you go in the city.

So if you want to check out more information on it, you can visit JesusDash.com.

JESUS NEW OS

RECEIVE THE FULL EXPERIENCE

To receive the full experience, download Jesus New OS on iOS.

VISIT JESUSNEW.COM

DOWNLOAD NOW ON THE APP STORE

JESUSNEW.COM